Teachers win classroom makeovers

Insurance company presents three $300 checks

Meemic Insurance chose three Wayne-Westland Community Schools teachers as Classroom Makeover winners. The Toler-Stemen Agency presented each of them with a $300 check on May 3.

Each of the teachers submitted an essay on how they would use the funds to improve their classrooms.

Maureen VanHulle, a Schweitzer Elementary School teacher, wrote, "I have 27 active students in my class. Each is in need of a whole lot of love, attention, and guidance. Each one comes to me for new knowledge every day, and it is my passion to instill the love or learning in each growing mind. "If I were to get this grant, I would use the money in two ways. The first way would be to purchase alternative seating and fidget gadgets for my students.

"The next would be to buy some discovery center items. As a new kindergarten teacher, my classroom does not include all of the items necessary to enhance the educational experience of my students."

When she started working as a hostess at a Red Lobster at age 16, Danielle Cleary didn't envision a restaurant career. She wanted to be a school teacher.

Seventeen years later, Cleary is still with restaurants — and a teacher of sorts as well — as the general manager of the Olive Garden in Livonia.

The Canton Township resident, who has also run Olive Garden locations in Ann Arbor and Novi, oversees a management team of three people and a staff of more than 100 at the popular location on Middlebelt just north of Schoolcraft Road.

Cleary found that first job at the Red Lobster in Waterford suited her: It was close to home (she grew up in Pontiac), put her people skills to use (she was an usher at her church) and was familiar to her, as she had frequented it with her family.

Her company, Darden Restaurants, found something, too. Three years later, while employed at the Olive Garden in Auburn Hills, Cleary began climbing the company ladder, working as a hostess, server and trainer, and then moving into management.

"We are always looking to develop people," Cleary said recently at her restaurant. "You're able to be recognized for what you do."

Genital cutting probe targets doctors' daughters

Tresa Baldas
Detroit Free Press

The federal government's investigation into female genital mutilation has gripped a small Indian Muslim community in fear as many of the group's young girls have been interrogated and medically checked for genital cutting in recent weeks.

They include the daughters of the accused Livonia doctors at the center of the historic case.

Multiple sources familiar with the case told the Detroit Free Press that in the wake of allegations that a local doctor cut the genitals of two Minnesota girls, the federal government and Child Protective Services have targeted several families in the Dawoodi Bohra community, which has long viewed female circumcision as a religious tradition. They say several young Bohra girls have been pulled out of class without their parents' knowledge, questioned by CPS about genital mutilation and eventually subjected to medical exams to check for cutting.

Sources say among the girls who have undergone such exams is the 11-year-old daughter of Dr. Jumana Nagarwala, who is charged with cutting the genitals of two Minnesota girls at a Livonia clinic in February; and the 8-year-old daughter of Dr. Fakhruddin Attar, who is charged with letting Nagarwala use his clinic to carry out the procedures.

Several Bohra families whose daughters were ordered to undergo these medical exams have retained their own attorneys but are afraid to talk, according to the lawyers.

Defense lawyers, meanwhile, are questioning the government's tactics in a case that they say is wreaking havoc on an otherwise quiet, dis-

Elizabeth Clark, a Stevenson Middle School teacher, wrote, "I would like to use the classroom makeover grant to purchase a class set of the book, Harriet Tubman: Conductor on the Underground Railroad, by Ann Petry. This would enhance my students' educational experience because there is an excerpt in our literature series, but to be able to enjoy the entire book would give them a much broader picture of what she did in history. This is also cross-curricular because students in history learn about the Civil War and Underground Railroad."

Paul Chisholm, a Tinkham Educational Center teacher, wrote, "This grant will allow approximately 90 alternative education high school students an opportunity to produce a significant, permanent, autobiographical piece of ceramic art. Funds from this grant will purchase 250 lbs. ceramic clay, glazes and mosaic supplies. Students will make connections between art and a variety of core curriculum subjects such as history, science, and social studies."

Management also sent her to Italy for a week, in 2007, to absorb the culture and experience the cuisine there.

"It was really an exposure to the Italian culture and what we attempt to replicate in our restaurants," she said. "It was bringing our passion to life."

That Italian culture, she said, was warm, generous and welcoming, and she was always among people who made her feel a part of things, a part of the family.

at work by 8 a.m., to start food preparation and make sure the restaurant is ready to open. The doors open at 11 a.m. for lunch.

(The food? Cleary's partial to Olive Garden's shrimp scampi and gives high marks to the lasagna and the linguine di mare.)

Cleary, who lives with a boyfriend and three children, said her company is respectful of personal and family time and that long hours, common in the restaurant business, and emergency phone calls while she's off duty aren't an issue.

"When we're at home we're at home. When we're at work we're at work," she said.

Still, she's passionate about her job, she said, and does what's needed to make sure diners are taken care of.

"I think you have to be passionate to work in the restaurant industry," Cleary said.

"We love what we do," said Karl Shaw, an Olive Garden director of operations in Michigan.

Beautification project benefits seniors

As part of the Community Choice Foundation's Scholarship Program, 20 high school seniors and their families from across Michigan led a cleanup and beautification project April 29, clearing brush, laying sod and planting flowers on behalf of The Senior Alliance in Wayne.

Each student will be awarded a $5,000 scholarship — $100,000 total — for pledging to attend college in Michigan and committing to giving back to the state by building their careers here.

By becoming a Community Choice scholar, the students pledge to use their time, talent and education to improve Michigan's future, as well as participate in networking and volunteer opportunities. The beautification event was just the first of many activities that will showcase the scholars' commitment to giving back.

A.J. Carter from Royal Oak High School and Kelsey Postler from Canton High School plant flowers at the senior center. Both students plan to attend the University of Michigan next fall.

cret community.

"They are terrified that if they don't cooperate, the state is going to come and take their children. And the fathers are terrified too," said attorney Margaret Raben, who is representing two families whose daughters underwent medical exams for genital cutting last month.

Especially alarming, Raben said, was that the families were interrogated days before the doctor was even charged. Raben said she was contacted by two Bohra families in April, about two days before criminal charges were formally announced against Nagarwala. She said parents told her that their daughters had been pulled out of their classes and questioned at school about genital mutilation. The mothers were then called to the school and questioned, she said, and authorities eventually went to their homes and "ambushed" the parents.

"They literally had no idea the context of this," Raben said, noting her clients' two girls were examined on April 11 and 13. Nagarwala was arrested on April 12.

"There is a steady stream of these investigations," Raben said. "Everybody is anxious."

"My clients are not sophisticated people," Raben said. "They are not familiar with the ways of the court system and frankly, they are terrified ... What they're telling these parents is that they want all of these little girls examined by a particular physician that they've already chosen."

According to Raben, the exams are being performed at Children's Hospital by a doctor who does a lot of child sexual abuse investigations. She said many in the Bohra community are cooperating with authorities and she described her clients as "good, loving people."

"My parents firmly deny that anything was ever done in a ritual way to their 7-year-olds," Raben said.

The U.S. Attorneys Office declined comment. So did the FBI and the lawyers for Nagarwala and Attar, both of whom are locked up pending trial.

In a lengthy hearing Wednesday, Attar's lawyer, Mary Chartier, argued for bond, saying the government is "over-reaching" and wrongfully accusing her client of engaging in female genital mutilation. She argued that her client did not take part in any actual cutting procedures, and that the case is really about a less-harmful procedure that is part of a deeply held and long-standing religious tradition.

"It is his deeply held religious belief that what was happening at the clinic was not FGM," Chartier said, stressing it was a "religious based" tradition that is only performed by women. "Dr. Attar has every reason to fight this out."

Chartier also stressed: "There is not one piece of evidence that Dr. Attar ever touched a child."

Attar is charged alongside his wife, Farida Attar, who is accused of holding the girls' hands during the genital cutting procedures and then trying to cover up what happened. She was ordered locked up as well, despite her lawyer

"My clients are not sophisticated people. They are not familiar with the ways of the court system and frankly, they are terrified ... What they're telling these parents is that they want all of these little girls examined by a particular physician that they've already chosen."

MARGARET RABEN, attorney

Matt Newburg's assertion that "this is a religious practice."

U.S. Magistrate Elizabeth Stafford rejected the religious argument altogether, saying bond would be decided on the allegations, not religion.

"It is important to me ... to take religion out of it and focus on the allegations that young girls' genitals were mutilated and that the defendants played a role," said Stafford, noting the defense claim that the procedure isn't as harmful as the government claims isn't "persuasive."

"I think it's common knowledge that the cutting of the genitalia of a 7-year-old child would be painful," Stafford said. "I find this to be a serious crime."

Chartier also suggested her client was being persecuted for being Muslim. Specifically, she challenged the government's characterization of phone calls that Dr. Attar had with a Muslim religious leader. The government has claimed that Attar helped organize the Minnesota girls' visits to Michigan and that his 50 phone calls to that Muslim man — who had a Minnesota number — were part of that planning. But Chartier said her client was only talking to the man because he was helping him memorize the Quran.

"I highly doubt that if ing as early as 2005. And they went to great lengths to cover up what they did, she said.

"Dr. Attar told people in the community to say, 'We didn't do this. Deny it. Say it's a medical exam and nothing else,'" Woodward said. "There is no question that these defendants knew that this was illegal and they did it anyway."

The judge noted that while the surveillance photos were grainy, the text messages and other evidence in the case were strong enough to warrant detaining the defendants.

Nagarwala, an emergency room doctor with the Henry Ford Health System, has been fired. She is not accused of performing any genital mutilation at the hospital, but rather at a clinic in Livonia owned by Attar.

All three defendants are part of a small, Indian-Muslim community known as the Dawoodi Bohra, which was at the center of an Australian genital cutting prosecution that sent three people to prison in 2015. Nagarwala has maintained that she did not engage in any actual cutting but rather removed only a membrane from the girl's genitalia and gave it to the parents for burial as part of a religious custom.

According to the court documents, Attar, an internist, has admitted to authorities that Nagarwala used his clinic after hours to treat children ages 6-9 for problems with their genitals, including genital rashes, but that she only saw the patients "when the clinic is closed on Friday evenings or Saturdays." She never billed for the procedures nor documented them, the complaint said, noting multiple other young girls have told authorities that Nagarwala also performed genital mutilation on them.

The Dawoodi Bohra community in Detroit has said that it is cooperating with authorities and that it does not "support the violation of any U.S. law, local, state or federal ... Any violation of U.S. law is counter to instructions to our community members. It does not reflect the everyday lives of the Dawoodi Bohras in America."

According to court records, the federal government's investigation has relied on cell phone records, surveillance video and medical evidence to bring charges against three individuals who were all placed at the alleged scene of the crime. The case involves two Minnesota girls whose mothers brought them to Michigan in February for what the girls thought was a special girls weekend. Instead, prosecutors allege, they ended up at the Livonia clinic on Feb. 3, where they underwent genital mutilation procedures.

A follow-up exam by a Minnesota doctor revealed that the girls' genitals had been altered or removed, the government has argued.

Authorities said they also intercepted phone calls in which Attar's wife is heard telling one Michigan member of the religious community not to cooperate if investigators inquire about the procedures. She allegedly told that parent to "completely deny" allegations of genital mutilation and "to say that nothing happened."

LIVONIA POLICE BRIEFS

Wheels taken from vehicle

Livonia police were called the morning of April 30 to the 37600 block of Summers on the report of a vehicle that had been taken and its wheels missing.

When police arrived, they checked the area the car was last seen. They saw broken glass on the ground. After checking the area, police found the vehicle parked in the 14100 block of Stonehouse nearby, with all four tires missing. The car was resting on landscaping bricks and had a window smashed. The owner checked the vehicle and discovered nothing was missing.

Retail fraud reported

An employee of Marshalls, 13200 Middlebelt, came to the police station May 1 to report a retail fraud.

The employee said the suspect was seen walking into the store and selected shoes and clothing off of the rack rapidly. The suspect then allegedly placed items in a cart and went to the front of the store, trying to leave without paying. An employee stopped them, but the suspect reportedly then refused to come back in the store with them and left. Several items were recovered, including earrings, a necklace, shirts and yoga pants.

Shirts taken from store

An employee at TJ Maxx, 30965 Five Mile, came to the police station the afternoon of April 28 to report a retail fraud.

The employee was notified via email that there had been an apparent theft of shirts on April 18. After reviewing footage, the employee saw two suspects allegedly select a dozen polo shirts and walk out without paying. The employee reportedly said the suspects were familiar, as they were believed to have committed other retail fraud at the store previously.

WESTLAND POLICE BRIEFS

Counterfeit $100 passed at Burger King

Police were called April 24 to Burger King, 120 S. Merriman, on the report of a counterfeit bill that had been passed through the restaurant's drive thru.

An employee called police and told them the suspect and a passenger had left the area. Police checked around and did not locate them. An employee said the suspect pulled up in an older model vehicle in the drive thru and passed along a $100 bill, which was pulled from the passenger's purse. The employee went to check the bill to make sure it was legitimate, and when they discovered it was fake, they returned to the drive thru window. The suspect had then left the drive thru and was not in the area. Police took the counterfeit bill and tagged it as evidence.

Catalytic converter taken from vehicle

Police were dispatched April 26 to the 7400 block of Wildwood on the report of the theft of a catalytic converter.

The victim told police he parked his vehicle in front of his residence the day before. When he came out to the car the next day, he said he started it and it sounded like the muffler had been removed. After investigating further, the victim said the catalytic converter had been taken.

Vehicle broken into

A resident in the 7500 block of Terri Drive came to the police station April 25 on the report of a larceny from auto.

After parking his vehicle in his driveway the night before, he came out to the car that morning and found someone had gone through his vehicle, leaving loose change and paperwork all over. The only thing the victim said was missing was a leather jacket. He said the car may have been left unlocked; there were no signs of forced entry.

Fence vandalized

Police were called April 24 to a home in the 35000 block of Schley on the report of vandalism to a resident's fence.

The resident said someone overnight had spray-painted her wooden privacy fence. Police saw what appeared to be a face spray-painted on the fence in blue paint. Police checked the area and saw another fence had been vandalized in the 35000 block of Manila. The next day, the resident called police and informed them that more vandalism had taken place at the home including on her vehicle, mailbox and nearby stop sign.

Grant enables Kennedy students to tackle innovation

These days, being an educator doesn't just mean keeping up with coursework and homework. It means helping transform students into the innovators of tomorrow.

Alisha Bashawaty, a technology teacher in elementary schools in Novi and now Kennedy Elementary in Livonia for six years, is always looking for ways to improve the student learning experience. A visually impaired third-grade student named Kyden made her realize that a 3-D printer could add another dimension to her students' knowledge of the world around them.

When Kyden, who can only slightly see color in one eye, handed Bashawaty a picture book and pleaded, "Can you explain this picture because the other kids are laughing and I just don't understand what they think is funny," Bashawaty knew that she had to pursue this kind of teaching. "I initially wanted to be able to give visually impaired students the opportunity to 'feel' the picture with their hands."

But then she realized all her students could benefit. That's where the Livonia Education Foundation and DFCU Financial stepped in. The foundation, through donors like DFCU, makes grant monies available for just such unique classroom purchases.

"No way would this school have been able to provide this 3-D printer and HP Sprout computers without this support," Bashawaty said. "The kids are so excited."

DFCU Vice President Theresa Aquino and Foundation Executive Director Diane Policelli recently visited Kennedy's fourth-graders to see them at work on the new computers. These creative students make their imaginations a reality with this technology that was installed in April.

The glow of many large screens illuminate the small faces as they watch their creations come alive. The children learn dimensions of shapes and sizes — from a Hogwarts castle to a home with plants and shrubs to a huge egg with chicken legs — and that helps with geometry, design theory, problem solving and collaboration.

Four girls from the class then take the visitors to the Maker Faire room where the 3-D printer is housed. Avery, Charlotte, Helena and Sadie explain how the computer takes an image from the screen (like a dinosaur head) and sends it to the 3-D printer, which works by "printing" objects. But instead of using ink, it uses more substantive materials: plastics, metal, rubber, and the like. It scans an object — or takes an existing scan of an object — and slices it into layers it can then convert into a physical object.

"With technology like this, kids don't even know they're learning," Bashawaty said. "This will help us create STEM projects like building three-dimensional bridges and buildings. It also give the visually impaired students access to manipulatives to enhance their experience. Next year we'll try a new unit that teaches coding."

Alisha, a self-described book nerd, doesn't just support advanced technology applications. Good old-fashioned reading is also her priority at the school. The entire student body is clad in pajamas on this particular day as a reward for a reading contest. The students read 181,000 minutes in the month of March. "We try to come up with fun, unique ways to encourage the students in all areas," Bashawaty said.

'RETIRED' CEO TURNS TO EDUCATION

'The most rewarding thing I've done': Dick Munro, a youth teacher and mentor

ANNIKA HAMMERSCHLAG
USA TODAY NETWORK

Each week, this series will introduce you to an exceptional American who unites, rather than divides, our communities. To read more about the American profiled here and more average Americans doing exceptional things, visit onenation.usatoday.com.

NAPLES, Florida - When asked about the three Purple Hearts he earned while serving in the Korean War, Dick Munro responds like he does to any question about his accomplishments: with absurd modesty.

"It doesn't mean I'm a hero — it means I didn't duck," he laughed.

Munro, 86, is the former chairman and CEO of Time Inc., which later became Time Warner, and a current education activist in Naples, Florida.

He began his career at Time Inc. as a trainee and retired 40 years later as top dog.

"I just went to work every day. It just happened," he said.

After Munro "retired" from Time Inc., he took to sitting on corporate boards — 20 of them, he counts. They include prestigious companies, foundations and universities such as Genentech, IBM and Columbia. And that 25-year stint as director of the United Negro College Fund.

When Munro moved to Naples, a resort town known for its white-sand beaches and exclusive golf courses, he had no intention of relapsing into his philanthropic addictions. But then he peeked behind the luxury condos and five-star restaurants.

"I had no idea that just a stone's throw away there were people hanging on by their fingernails," Munro said.

Thirty miles northeast of Naples lies Immokalee, home to a community of Latino farmworkers. Many live in trailers. Others cram into one-bedroom bungalows with their entire family.

"It was mind-boggling, seeing how these poor people lived. There's an underbelly to this county that most people don't know about," he said.

Profession: Retired chairman and CEO of Time Inc.; education activist

Mission: Empower children to reach their full potential.

Q&A WITH DICK MUNRO

What does it mean to you to be an American?

It means that I was fortunate to be born in a country the world envies. A country whose democratic principles have had an enormous positive impact on the world almost since its founding. We have set an example of civility, generosity, diplomacy and when required, power. With all that comes the responsibility of leadership. And we should cherish that responsibility.

Yet, despite all of our enormous resources, we are becoming a nation divided, angry and lacking the civility we once knew. Issues of income in equality, racism and the treatment of immigrants are disturbing. But, I am an optimist. There will always be more good guys than bad guys.

What moment touched and motivated you to launch this effort?

My first exposure to poverty occurred years ago when I was involved with Save The Children. I visited Indian Reservations in the West, the Mississippi Delta and parts of Appalachia. It was an eye-opener, to say the least. I never realized parts of the USA were similar to third-world countries. Here in Naples, my first visit to Immokalee was equally shocking. This is a remarkable community of good, hard-working farmworkers, many of whom live in severe poverty.

What gives you hope or what concerns you?

Public schools give me hope. The privilege to be exposed to students, teachers and administrators gives me hope. I wish more citizens could have the opportunity to visit classrooms to observe the learning process in action, to observe the professionalism and passion the great majority of teachers bring to their classrooms every day.

What do you hope to accomplish through your efforts?

There will never be enough volunteers. Naples is made up of extremely generous and civic-minded people, but there is still a whole bunch of them who don't become involved. This is unfortunate for both them and our community. Seniors have lots of skills to contribute. Many simply have not been exposed to the challenges we face. You really do get more out of volunteering than you put in.

Book reveals horrors local soldiers faced in Civil War

hometownlife.com

They came to a soldier recruiting effort in what is now downtown Plymouth, eager to fight against slavery and not realizing the horrors they would face on Civil War battlegrounds.

Author Gary Rembisz points toward Kellogg Park, the site where area soldiers lined up to volunteer to enlist in the 24th Michigan Infantry. Some lied about their age, claiming they were 18 even though they were younger. One man was 70, but didn't look it.

They just wanted to serve. "They were ready to kill rebels," Rembisz said. "They were hot to get at it."

As Plymouth celebrates its 150th year as a city, Rembisz remembers a slice of history that dates back further to 1862, the year 1,037 soldiers joined the 24th Michigan Infantry, attended boot camp in Detroit and headed south to help change a nation's history.

Rembisz, a Plymouth Township resident, has penned a book, "Black Feathers in Black Hats," that tells the story of what this brave group of men faced. The title refers to attire worn by the elite Iron Brigade, which the 24th regiment joined after the brigade lost nearly half of its soldiers during the Battle of Antietam.

Led by Col. Henry Morrow, the 24th Michigan Infantry was initially shunned by the Iron Brigade, but earned respect in its first real test, the Battle of Fredericksburg. Rembisz reveals the horror as men of the 24th witnessed scenes such as a soldier's head being blown off and another losing his arm.

It catapulted them into manhood, the author said, but it couldn't prepare them for the war's biggest clash in 1863, the Battle of Gettysburg, where 80 percent of the regiment either died, was wounded or came up missing.

Gary Rembisz is author of "Black Feathers in Black Hats," a story of the Union Army's 24th Michigan Infantry. He is photographed in Plymouth's Kellogg Park, where men were recruited to fight in the Civil War.

BILL BRESLER | STAFF PHOTOGRAPHER

The 315-page book also tells the story of Nelson Pooler of Canton, who was captured by Confederate soldiers during the Battle of the Wilderness and sent to a prisoner of war camp in Andersonville, Ga.

"That was a death camp," Rembisz said, but Pooler managed to escape.

Rembisz, a retiree who earned his master's degree in history at Eastern Michigan University at age 64, said he wrote his book because he wanted to preserve this important part of local history. He also is a docent at the Plymouth Historical Museum, where he is on the board of directors, and he has toured Civil War battlegrounds.

"The focus of my book is really what it was like for the Union soldiers in the Civil War," he said, with a strong emphasis on local soldiers.

He describes it as a history book disguised as a novel.

There are brutal stories and some that are more touching, such as the 24th Michigan Infantry being part of the honor guard at President Lincoln's funeral. His book also reveals song lyrics and trivia from the era.

The soldiers faced difficulties other than combat. Some died from pneumonia, measles and other illnesses. Every day brought a challenge, whether on the battlefield or not.

For most Civil War soldiers, disease claimed lives more often than actual combat did, Rembisz said. The opposite was true for the 24th Michigan Infantry, which had higher losses on the battlefield.

Of the regiment's original 1,037 soldiers, only about 200 were able to march when they returned home to a welcoming crowd. Some others came back maimed.

Among some of the soldiers mentioned in the book:

» Able Peck of Nan-kin, now Westland, was the Color Guard sergeant carrying the flag and the first man from the 24th regiment killed at Gettysburg. His picture is in the Gettysburg Museum and Abraham Lincoln Presidential Library and Museum in Springfield, Ill.

» Andrew Lanning of Nankin escaped with Nelson Pooler from Andersonville, but was killed when a boat he was on capsized during a storm going to Washington.

» O.B. Curtis of Wayne was wounded at Fredericksburg and had his arm amputated. He became the regimental historian and was a professor at the University of Michigan.

» Detroit's Mark Flannigan, a sheriff and lieutenant colonel in the 24th, had his left leg amputated at Gettysburg. He became active in politics and charities in Detroit.

» Detroit's Capt. Albert Edwards led 26 men of the 24th to safety on the first day at Gettysburg. He later became a lieutenant colonel.

» James Rowland of Romulus, who was the 70-year-old man who lied about his age to join the 24th, died from disease in the war. He had claimed he was 43 when he enlisted.

» John Ryder of the 24th and his brother Alfred of the 1st Michigan Calvary, both of Plymouth, were both killed at Gettysburg.

Their stories could have been forgotten. They represent soldiers united by one cause, fighting an enemy. They died, they were wounded. Some came home. Some didn't. Because of Rembisz, however, their memories are kept alive.

The book is available at the Plymouth District Library and the Livonia Public Library, civic center branch. Anyone interested in a copy of the book may contact Rembisz at Church lassos the faithful and Colbert jokes

Sharon Dargay
hometownlife.com

When Mark Bernabei and his family heard about Cowboy Church at Miracle Ranch in Milford, they were ready to saddle up and pray.

The Clinton Township man, his wife and three daughters all take riding lessons at the ranch. They also attend church regularly in Sterling Heights, but they were intrigued by the idea of a Christian event that promised equestrian demonstrations and a free chuck wagon dinner in addition to prayer and spiritual lessons.

"This is our first Cowboy Church," said Bernabei, as he ate pizza, pasta and salad after attending the hour-long celebration on Saturday, April 29. "It was awesome."

The family arrived early to stake out front-row seats in what would become a packed viewing area set up just outside the riding ring in the ranch barn. Bernabei's daughter, Sophia, 9, was close enough to touch a pony that stuck its nose through the metal barrier in search of a treat. All three daughters left the event with a free toy, and the family ate dinner together with other attendees in the ranch classroom afterward.

"More churches should be like this," Bernabei said. "You've got music. You've got horses. You've got acrobats, a story, a message and they've got free food."

That combination of horse and faith activities drew some ribbing from late-night talk show host Stephen Colbert during a sketch on his CBS network show last week.

JOHN HEIDER | STAFF PHOTOGRAPHER
Steven Patterson presents some maneuvers while astride a cantering Percheron.

Quoting from a Milford Times story that previewed the event, Colbert said the gathering would include a scripture lesson from a cowboy perspective, then he added a punchline that "instead of wine, Jesus turns water into sarsaparilla."

Cowboy Church organizers, Dominic Francese, an ordained minister, and ranch owners, Karen Rach-St. Clair, who also runs the Miracle Ranch Riding Academy, and her husband, Don "Cowboy Don" St. Clair, took the joking in stride.

"It was good. It could have been way worse," Francese said. "This must be a God thing because he could have mocked the whole thing.

He did not do that. He had some good lines." "That's what he does. It was a funny take. We found amusement in it," Rach-St. Clair said.

Her husband said the segment was good exposure for Cowboy Church. "He used the line that a religion had started in a barn," St. Clair noted.

Faith experience

The couple and Francese have offered Cowboy Church on a seasonal basis since 2015. The event draws horse owners, horse lovers, church goers and those with little to no church experience.

"There are so many people out there that want a spiritual experience because they are spiritual people, but they've had a negative church experience," Rach-St. Clair said. "It's providing an outlet for that, for people who have had a negative experience in church but still want to pursue God.

"This was something we could do for the community."

Cowboy Church also offers simple lessons in kindness. Miracle Ranch uses "natural horsemanship" in training and caring for its charges. Horses may to enter and leave the barn day or night. Rach-St. Clair and Cowboy Don establish themselves as leaders, "but not in an overly dominant way," Rach-St. Clair noted.

"It's letting the horse be a horse. They are loved and appreciated. We communicate in ways horses understand," she said.

Horse vaulting

For riders Rachel Harris, 11, of Commerce Township, Jenna Crantas, 16, of Highland Township, and Steven Patterson, 34, of Ypsilanti, Cowboy Church was a chance to demonstrate their vaulting skills on horseback in the ring. Individually, and then in pairs, they posed in gymnastic-style stances, balancing atop Ranger, the horse used for vaulting at the ranch.

Rachel slid into a split on the back of the horse while he trotted around the ring. Patterson and Jenna looked similar to pairs figure skaters as they posed together on Ranger's back.

"I loved it the first time I tried it," said Jenna, who has vaulted for three years.

The next Cowboy Church is set for 5 p.m. Saturday, June 10, at Miracle Ranch, 3380 Morrow Lane, For more Benjamin McClellan Benjamin McClellan Snyder III, the only son of Dorothy Palmer and Benjamin McClellan Snyder Jr., passed away on April 29, 2017 at the age of 96. Born in Philadelphia, Ben lived in his early years between his grandparents in St. Petersburg, Florida and his father in Pennsylvania. As a boy, he attended Camp Cedar Pines in the "Little Grand Canyon" of Pennsylvania where he ultimately purchased a 100 acre farm, his most treasured place on earth. Ben attended the University of North Carolina, graduating with a degree in English, Phi Beta Kappa and becoming a lifetime Tarheels' fan. In 1943, he enlisted in the Air Force and was trained as a bombardier where he flew 41 missions in the Pacific. In 1947, Ben obtained a master's in history from Harvard University. Roth IRA a perfect way to help grandchildren

Q: I have three grandchildren who I would like to help out financially. They're all in their early 20s, single and they all have decent jobs. They make between $30,000 and $50,000 a year. I want to help them save money for their retirement. The question is what, is the best way of going? I want to give them about $5,000 apiece every year. All three of my grandchildren have no idea how to handle money and I'm afraid that if I just give them the money, it will be gone relatively quickly. Therefore, I am looking for something that will sort of lock them in. Do you have any suggestions?

A: I think it is great that you want to help your grandchildren with their retirement. Even though I am sure they would prefer to have the money today, I can almost guarantee you they'll be very appreciative of your decision down the road, because they will have a nest egg that will help them in retirement. I think an excellent vehicle to use for your grandchildren would be a Roth IRA.

Considering the ages of your grandchildren, they are eligible to invest $5,500 yearly in a Roth IRA. The beauty of the Roth is that the money grows tax-free. Down the road, when your grandchildren withdraw the money in retirement, they will not have to pay any taxes. Just think how much that money will be worth at the time they need it for retirement. I cannot think of a better investment for a grandchild than investing in a Roth IRA.

There is another opportunity that you should take advantage of that may be as valuable, if not more so, than the money you are contributing. I believe you should also take this opportunity to try to teach the grandchildren about the importance of investing and how investments work. The sooner they learn about investing and its benefits, the better it will be for them. Maybe getting them involved in where and how the money is invested can be a good start.

Rick Bloom

It is more important than ever that, when people enter the real world and have to be accountable, they know the basics of investing. They don't have to be Warren Buffet, but at the same time, we want them to avoid Bernie Madoff. It would be nice if by the time someone graduated from high school or even college they had an understanding of investing; the reality is, they don't. For whatever reason, investing and personal finance are sadly neglected. If you don't teach your child or grandchild about personal finance, more likely than not, they won't acquire those skills, putting their financial future in jeopardy. Obviously, life would be difficult if you couldn't read. Trust me, life is also difficult if you don't know how to take care of your finances.

For those parents or grandparents who want to help their adult children in a way other than retirement, some other good options for money would be to pay down outstanding debt such as a student loan or charge card debt. Typically, I would say charge card debt first because it is non-tax deductible and usually the interest rate is substantially higher than other types of debt.

One last note — if you want to encourage your adult children to invest, think of a matching program where you'll provide some sort of match if they invest their own money. I know you shouldn't have to provide a match to encourage your adult children to invest, but it is what it is. Good luck!

Grieving mother devotes life to saving kids

Most people will never understand or experience pain like Lisa Pardington feels every day. Her son wasn't sick. He was healthy. He was strong. He was 20 years old.

She wonders if a simple test could have saved his life.

"Max was a loving, free spirit and a deep thinker. He lived each day to the fullest, always pursuing his next adventure," Pardington said.

Pardington, who lives in Canton, has every right to be angry. No one would blame her if she didn't want to talk about Max. No one wants to know what it feels like to bury a child. No one would question her if she shut out the world.

But Pardington chose a different, more difficult path. She tells Max's story to anyone who will listen. Her family created LiveLikeMax, a foundation to raise money for a program that didn't exist before Max died. A program that might have saved his life.

"The Beaumont Children's Student Heart Check helps me channel my grief in a positive way. I get to talk about Max and share my life experience," she said.

The Pardington family has raised nearly $350,000 for the program. With those funds, Beaumont purchases new equipment for heart screenings and AEDs for schools.

In addition to raising money, the Pardington family also attends many of the screenings.

"It's a bittersweet feeling when I go to a Student Heart Check. It forces me to re-live Max's final hours, but I am grateful to have the opportunity to help other families and save lives," Pardington said.

Since the program's inception in May 2007, Beaumont has screened 14,989 Michigan high school students. Of those students, doctors told 185 students to stop sports and follow up with a cardiologist due to heart abnormalities. Seven were diagnosed with hypertrophic cardiomyopathy, or HCM.

HCM is the most common cause of death among U.S. athletes. Nearly 4,000 of those deaths are young people, like Max. But his family refuses to let him become a statistic.

By volunteering at screenings and supporting the program through fundraising events, Pardington has formed friendships with people she would have never met.

"You can choose the path of least resistance or you can choose to be a positive force for others. We were not aware of heart checks for high school students, and we paid the ultimate price," she said. "Our involvement in the program gives meaning and purpose to our lives."

Student Heart Check program manager Jennifer Shea added, "Many parents don't realize their child could be at risk for a life-threatening heart condition. Having parents like Lisa involved in our program demonstrates why these screenings are so important."

Pardington will never stop grieving for her son. She will never stop missing Max. She will never stop asking herself, "What if?" And she will never stop trying to prevent other mothers from planning a funeral for their child.

"Volunteering is a way to transform the sadness, anger, frustration, loneliness into something positive. Volunteering is rewarding, heart-lifting and energizing," she said.

On May 13, the Pardington family will volunteer at a Student Heart Check screening at Greenhills School, 850 Greenhills Drive, in Ann Arbor.

Balint relishes double duty at Madonna

Stevenson senior to run for Crusader men's cross country, track and field programs

Tim Smith
hometownlife.com

The next mile marker for Livonia Stevenson senior runner Jack Balint is just down the road at Madonna University.

Balint, 18, recently signed his national letter of intent to compete on the Crusaders men's track and field and cross country teams.

"It's a really cool opportunity to be able to sign and run at the next level," said Balint, talking about his college opportunity during the April 22 Livonia

Franklin Patriot Relays. "They're making a really good program over there at Madonna and I'm just happy to be a part of it."

Balint, whose parents are Tom and Maggie Balint of Livonia, said the fact that Madonna isn't too far away from home was a consideration. He also was considering signing at Ferris State University.

But a key factor in his ultimate decision was already having friends with the

Garden City makes most of Redford Union errors in 4-0 WWAC victory

Tim Smith

Wednesday afternoon's Western Wayne Athletic Conference varsity baseball contest between Garden City and host Redford Union boiled down to which team took care of the basics.

That edge went to the Cougars, who played a good fundamental game in a 4-0 victory over the error-plagued Panthers.

Garden City (7-9 overall, 3-1 in the WWAC) broke a scoreless tie in the top of the fifth with a three-run frame that was helped by two of the eight errors committed by RU (8-4, 1-2).

"We've always preached there's only two ways to win and that's pitching and defense," Panthers head coach Bob Miller said. "I thought our pitching was good enough today and we made at least eight errors, and you just can't overcome that."

Garden City head coach Matt Penn said the victory demonstrated that his players must be listening to him.

"I keep telling them, you play good defense, pay attention and don't make any

Spartans, Rocks battle to scoreless deadlock

Tim Smith
hometownlife.com

Earlier in the week, Livonia Stevenson varsity girls soccer coach Ken Shingledecker found out senior captain Megan Verant definitely would miss the rest of the season with a torn ACL.

"We know we're going to be for the rest of the season without her," Shingledecker said. "And I think we're starting to come together."

So on Thursday, the Spartans continued to deal with adversity — although of a different kind — battling rain and whipping winds during a home game against their nearest competitor in the KLAA Central Division, the Salem Rocks.

Both teams played a hard and spirited match, finishing in a 0-0 tie.

"It was really, really tough," said one of Stevenson's go-to players, junior defender/forward Kennedy Thurlow. "The harsh winds and rain made it really tough because the ball kept skipping on the ground."

"... But I think our team did a really good job tonight, we came together, we knew it was going to be a tough game and we persevered."

Stevenson (11-0-3 overall and 5-0-2 in the KLAA Central) came within inches of getting the win that would have pretty much sealed up the division title.

With about 10 minutes remaining, freshman forward Abby Werthman served a corner kick into the box and the ball bounced behind Salem goalkeeper Skylar Brant, who found herself out of position.

The carom went to Stevenson sophomore midfielder, who wheeled and — with a wide-open cage in front of her — got under the ball and lifted it over the crossbar.

PREP GIRLS TRACK AND FIELD ROUNDUP

Salem bests Spartans
Blustery weather Tuesday didn't slow down Salem's varsity girls track and field team, as the Rocks rolled to a 103-34 win over Livonia Stevenson.

Salem posted several events with runners in the top three spots, including the 200 dash (Madeline Kernahan, first; Ayanda Brydie, third), 400 dash (Haven Essien, first; Madison Grieb, third); 800 run (Hannah Jeffress, first; Erin McCann, second), mile run (Shea Wilson, Hallie Younglas and Jessica Hughes took the top three spots) and two-mile run (Madison Grant, Gabby Mancini and Anna Kubinski finished 1-2-3.).

The Rocks kept the pressure going in the 100-meter hurdles, with Essien and McKayla Ward finishing first and second, respectively. They took the 2-3 spots in the 300 hurdles.

Salem won in throwing events, with Lyniah Wilson (shot put) and Alex Johnson (99-10 in discus) doing the job.

Other individual wins were scored by Cloe Longeway (pole vault, 8-6) and Ward (long jump, 16-3 and high jump, 4-10).

Salem's 400-meter relay team of Brydie, Maddie Kernahan, Lauren Ogarek and Alex Szegi captured the top spot while the 800-relay unit of Brydie, Kernahan, Ogarek and Mari Westley also won.

Other standouts included Annika Schmitt (second in the high jump, 4-8), Kate Mockaitis (third in the high jump, 4-6) and Marisa Rowland (second in the pole vault, 8-0).

Patriots win big
Livonia Franklin's varsity girls track and field team dominated KLAA South Division rival Westland John Glenn on Tuesday, earning a 93.5-43.5 victory.

"The Lady Patriots struggled a bit today with the weather and the level of competition," Franklin coach Megan Wilson said. "Wayne Memorial has some extremely talented kids and they made a great showing."

Individual wins for the Patriots were posted by Ava Morrison (high jump, 4-2), Jessica Huddleston (long jump, 13-5), Erin Seibert (mile run, 5:33.52; 800 run, 2:31.49) and Mikaela Hille (400 dash, 64.9).

Franklin's Kelly Peyton, Alaina Herrera, Hannah Strasser and Emily Esker won the 800 relay with a time of 1:58.27. The Patriots' quartet of Hille, Brooke Gietzen, Ciera Echebelem and Herrera won the 400 relay.

Also victorious for the Patriots was the 1600 relay, with a time of 4:36.52.

Ladywood triumphs
Ally Hill captured three individual events Wednesday leading host Livonia Ladywood (1-3, 0-3) to a its first girls track and field dual meet win of the season with a 77-51 victory over Wixom St. Catherine of Siena.

Hill won the long jump (15 feet, 2 inches), while also sweeping the 100- and 200-meter dashes in 13.85 and 27.73, respectively, while Kelly Solak added firsts in the shot put (31-8.5) and discus (85-6).

Other individual winners included Maddie Bastin (300 hurdles, 51.16) and Meghan Sullivan (400, 1:09.09).

The 400 and 800 relay teams of Maria Chacon, Catherine Harrington, Lexie and Mattie Vlademar won in 58.95 and 2:03.28, respectively. The 1,600 relay team of Sullivan, Bastin, Jill Ahmad and Chacon was also victorious (4:41.08).

Ladywood second-place finishers included Rachel Rykwalder, shot put (25-11) and discus (73-11); Bastin, 100 hurdles (18.18); Sarah Fracala, 100 (14.21); Molly Riordan, 800 (2:53.14); and Sam Horn, 3,200 (14:10.32).

The Blazers also received thirds from Carly Fraker, shot put (23-11.25) and discus (72-11); Ellie Kindseth, high jump (3-11); Caroline McLaurin, long jump (12-3.75); Abby Danger, 100 (15.42); Ahmad, 300 hurdles (57.11); Dana Santilli, 800 (3:04.19); and Horn, 1,600 (6:35.95).

Rocks, Mustangs go down to the wire

hometownlife.com

Tuesday's varsity girls soccer clash between KLAA Central Division rivals Salem and Northville featured blood and sweat — but no tears — as the teams left it all out on the field in a 1-1 tie.

Along the way, two Mustangs were bloodied or bruised, while Salem senior goalie Skylar Brant had to leave the game for five minutes in the first half after taking a foot to the face while diving to smother a ball.

Although Salem head coach Kyle Karns said junior goalie Anna Lundh played well during her brief stint for the Rocks, there was no way Brant wasn't going to come back for the final 42 minutes of the contest, which was played at Plymouth-Canton Educational Park on a cold, windy evening.

"She's a gamer. She'll get back in there as quickly as possible," said Karns, whose team improved to 5-2-3 overall and 4-0-2 in the KLAA Central.

Also going all-out for the Mustangs was junior goalkeeper Charlie Castiglione, who seemingly was 10-15 yards out of her goal crease all night scrambling after bouncing balls. The best stop at either end of the pitch was Castiglione's with about 20 seconds remaining in the first half, with the game tied 1-1.

GARDEN CITY 8, CLARENCEVILLE 0: Goalie Allison Lay made 14 saves in a losing cause as Livonia Clarenceville (1-6, 1-4) fell Wednesday to the host Cougars in WWAC match.

STEVENSON 2, SOUTH LYON 1: Livonia improved to 11-0-2 overall and 5-0-1 in the KLAA Central Division on Tuesday.

The Spartans, ranked No. 7 in Division 1, outshot the Lions, 16-4, but needed to survive the one-goal victory.

Scoring both goals for Stevenson was Audrey Kopitz, who now has 17 for the season. Kennedy Thurlow and Maria Bayouk both had one assist.

LUTHERAN WESTLAND 4, ROEPER 0: Lutheran Westland improved to 1-2 with Monday's Michigan Independent Athletic Conference victory.

Starting the scoring for the Warriors was freshman Emilie Fremder, from senior Becca Gembarski (who also scored a goal).

Also scoring was freshman Faith McLeod as the Warriors built a 3-0 lead at halftime.

Posting the shutout with a five-save performance was freshman goalkeeper Hannah Brown.

GARDEN CITY 6, FORDSON 0: Ashley Hahn set the tone for the Cougars with her goal just three minutes into Monday's Western Wayne Athletic Conference matchup.

Brooke Collins blasted home a penalty kick late in the first half and goalie Amanda Noel posted the shutout.

Garden City (5-5-1 overall) went on from there, scoring all six goals in the first half.

"I was very impressed with the poise of our midfield in controlling possession of the ball and distributing to our forwards," Garden City coach Jeff Szypula said. "We are in a must-win situation every conference game."

On a down note, captain Alex Sherlock will miss the rest of the season due to an injury suffered against Belleville.

REDFORD UNION 5, THURSTON 2: The one-two scoring punch of Cassidy Sandelin and Maggie Osowski combined for all five goals Monday as Redford Union (3-4, 2-1) turned back winless Redford Thurston in a Western Wayne Athletic Conference match.

Crusaders — including some from KLAA rival teams that he had gotten to know during his two-sport high school career.

"I have a lot of friends that attend there," Balint said. "I got a couple teammates that ran there and talked to me about how they like it so much."

"... Andrew Baumbach, Tony Floyd, people like that, all the Livonia guys. Tdsony Floyd went to Franklin but I ran against him a lot so we became friends. It's pretty cool going from competitive rivals to teammates is going to be a cool thing, I think."

Another plus, he continued, was getting to know Crusaders coach Patrick Daugherty, who immediately made him feel comfortable about ultimately choosing Madonna.

"Coach Daugherty seemed like a really good guy when I first met him," Balint said. "Which is kind of the reason I wanted to (go) there."

Balint added that Daugherty might be giving him different assignments than he's used to.

"He's talking to me about running the steeple chase, which is something I've never run before, but I'm excited to," Balint said. "Also the mile, the 800, stuff like that."

Although Balint, who intends to pursue a business degree, is happy to look forward he doesn't mind giving props to those at Stevenson who helped him grow as a student-athlete, with Spartans cross country coach Chris Inch topping the list.

errors, you'll have your chances and when they come you capitalize on them," Penn said.

Exhibit A came in the crucial fifth. RU errors opened the door, with the Cougars storming through thanks to some clutch hitting.

Logan McGraw started the inning by ripping a one-hopper off the leg of Panthers starting pitcher Tyler Collard — who up until that point was in a duel against Garden City senior Collin McHugh.

Jacob Wladysiak followed with a base hit to left-center, and Avery Emerson dropped a bunt in an attempt to move McGraw and Wladysiak into scoring position.

Cashing in
But the Panthers threw wildly to first and McGraw trotted home. Then came a two-out single to right by Austin Even to make it 2-0 and the inning's third run scored when an RU outfielder couldn't put the squeeze on a fly ball off the bat of Brady Sephar.

An error also resulted in Garden City's tack-on run in the sixth.

"I felt we played well," said Emerson, a senior shortstop who had three hits in the game and has a batting average north of .300. "I wouldn't say Redford Union didn't make plays, I thought we hit the ball well and made our plays."

Yet Panthers senior shortstop Jacob Gagnon, who tallied two hits in the game and sports a .330-plus average, lamented the miscues his team made that essentially cost RU the game.

"We just need to subtract the errors," Gagnon said. "Our pitching is good and our hitting's good too. It's just the errors."

Gagnon, who Miller said is drawing looks from college teams, singled to open the bottom of the third, with the game still 0-0. The next batter, Brandon Pratt, bunted for a single to give the Panthers a chance to strike first.

That's where the threat ended as McHugh got Jackson

Allison and Collard out before picking off a RU base-runner.

"First couple guys on, we tried to sacrifice bunt them over and we weren't successful with that," Miller said. "But I do agree, if we would have gotten a base hit there the guys would have got their confidence."

Bottom line
Miller, however, tipped his cap to McHugh — who pitched five scoreless innings before being replaced by Sephar for the final two — and the Cougars.

"Garden City's a really good team," Miller said. "I like their team, they have a really good pitcher (Collin McHugh), so I'm taking nothing away from them. But we just didn't catch the ball today, that's the bottom line."

Penn also gave props to McHugh, who is battling back from arm soreness earlier this season.

"I know he had a double-header where he came out and said his arm was hurting him," Penn said. "So we've been taking it easy on him. So today was his challenge, I told him you need to keep your pitches under 14-15 per inning. "And he did a very good job with that. I pulled him out to save his arm."

STEVENSON 3, S. LYON EAST 2: Behind the combined pitching of starter and winner Josh Marquardt (four innings, one run) and Bovy Cavin (two scoreless innings for the save), Livonia Stevenson eked out a KLAA Central Division baseball win in Game 1 of Wednesday's twinbill.

Chris Tanderly went 1-for-3 and drove in two runs for the Spartans (17-4 overall, 9-3 in the KLAA Central).

Helping the Stevenson cause were Cavin (1-for-3, RBI) and Devin Dunn (1-for-3, run).

STEVENSON 7, S. LYON EAST 3: Wednesday's nightcap also went to Livonia Stevenson, with Tanderly (2-for-2, two runs), Brandon Pasky (2-for-3, run) and Jacob Way (1-for-2, RBI) keying a seven-hit attack.

Jason Cantrell went three innings in relief and posted the win for the Spartans (18-4, 10-3). He gave up one run and three hits.

CLARENCEVILLE 17, ROBICHAUD 1: Nick Schiffman went 3-for-5 with two RBI Wednesday as Livonia Clarenceville (7-5, 4-0 WWAC Red Division) in a five-inning rule-rule victory at Dearborn Heights Crestwood.

Matt Drain added two hits and scored four runs, while Logan Calimazzo, the winning pitcher, notched his first victory of the season with a two-hitter over five innings. He also helped his own cause collecting two hits.

The Trojans scored three times in the first, three in the second and five more in the fourth before putting it away with six in the top of the fifth inning. Chase Carter, Max Woodcock, Austin Portwood and Brad Trout also contributed hits as the Trojans out-hit the Bulldogs, 11-2.

"We got a chance to play a lot of reserves," Clarenceville coach Craig Cotter said. "They took advantage of their opportunity."

it's all difficult, it just went over," Shingledecker said. "Good location, she was in the proper spot. She's just got to put it away."

The Rocks (5-2-4 overall, 4-0-3 in the division) also had an opportunity off a corner kick with mere seconds remaining.

But Stevenson freshman goalie Mackenzie Fifer was able to bat away the bid taken by Salem junior defender Gabriella Mazzuca.

"She's just a freshman," said Shingledecker, about Fifer. "She's done very well for us."

Mazzuca nearly put the Rocks on the scoreboard midway through the second half, again off a corner kick. Her rising shot hooked off the crossbar and bounced out of harm's way.

"This is what KLAA games are supposed to look like," Shingledecker said. "No one left disappointed (after) seeing a good soccer game tonight."

Concurring was Karns, who said that the weather conditions added another wrinkle to the KLAA Central matchup. The Rocks also faced tough weather in Tuesday's 1-1 tie with Northville.

"I think both teams had chances back and forth," Karns said. "They had a nice chance there at the end that went over the bar."

"In a game like this, with conditions like this, you just hope you can find one. In a night like this, one's going to be enough."

Although Karns and the Rocks would have loved to have knocked off the division leaders, he insisted there's plenty of time left.

"We're one point behind them, there's still a lot of (season) left," Karns said. "Northville's taking care of (third-place) Novi tonight, so that's in our favor. But there's a lot of games left to be played."

Encore victory for Garden City over RU

Bria White's win is Panthers' bright spot

Brad Emons
hometownlife.com

For the second time this season Garden City owns bragging rights over Redford Union in girls tennis.

The Cougars duplicated their 6-2 Western Wayne Athletic Conference Red Division win on April 11 with another 6-2 triumph on a sunny, but breezy afternoon April 27 on RU's home courts.

In the feature match at No. 1 singles, RU junior co-captain Bria White avenged a previous setback by ousting Cougars junior Haleigh Maszatics in a three-set battle of ground strokes, 6-2, 3-6, 6-0.

White has stepped into the No. 1 singles spot for the graduated Abby Walters, who lost just one WWAC match in four years and claimed the conference title in 2016. She now serves as an assistant coach under her mother Alice.

"I'm really enjoying coaching," Abby Walters said. "It's another side of the sport and I can certainly relate to the girls and share the competitive experience with them."

The Panthers' other win came at No. 4 singles when junior co-captain Haley Hebner downed Savanna Davis in straight sets, 6-1, 6-1.

Garden City captured the other two singles matches with Marissa Repasky (No. 2) defeating RU's Abby Bishop, 6-1, 6-0, while Samantha Major (No. 3) downed twin sister Sarah Bishop, 6-0, 6-1.

"Garden City fields a strong team and the competition is great experience for our players," Alice Walters said. "Our singles lineup is filled with returning players adjusting to a move from doubles to singles play. I've been impressed with

At No. 1 doubles, Garden City's Nicole Maiden, a junior, and Alisha Saile, a sophomore, defeated RU juniors Amy Sitar-ski and Anna Vincent, 6-4, 7-6 (7-2 tiebreaker).

The Cougars also captured the other three doubles flights with the Panthers defaulting at No. 4.

At No. 2, GC's Bailee Noll and Makenzie McMillin downed RU's Sarina Anderson and Isis James, 6-4, 6-4, while Joana Verala-Luna and Natalie Warwick topped the Panthers' Kaitlyn Mizille and Sydney Brown, 6-0, 6-2. The Cougars' No. 4 team of Marlee Troger and Jasine Wells won by default.

Meanwhile, RU improved to 4-2-2 overall on Friday with a 5-3 non-conference win against Hazel Park as Abby Bishop won at No. 2 singles, 6-0, 6-0, while Hebner moved up to No. 3 singles for a 6-2, 6-2 win.

The Panthers swept three of four doubles flights while defaulting at No. 3. The highlight was a 7-6 (7-5), 7-6 (8-6) back-to-back tiebreaker win by Brown and Elizabeth Cashion at No. 4. The Panthers, who stand 3-2-1 in the WWAC Red Division, have five division matches and one non-conference match remaining heading into the MHSAA Division 3 regional beginning at 8:30 a.m. Thursday, May 18 at Bloomfield Hills Cranbrook.

The WWAC tournament will be held Tuesday, May 23 at three different sites including Dearborn Heights Crestwood, Dearborn High and Dearborn Edsel Ford.

RU stops Cougars

Redford Union (5-2-2, 4-2-1) won six of eight flights on Tuesday in a 6-2 WWAC victory over visiting Dearborn Heights Annapolis.

BOYS GOLF ROUNDUP

Stevenson wins Livonia City golf meet

Livonia Stevenson's varsity boys golf team won Thursday's Livonia City Meet held at Fox Creek, winning 11 out of 12 points to best Livonia Churchill and Livonia Franklin.

Eight players per team were divided up into four groups of two players, each playing a different format. Those included scramble, medal play, best ball and alternate shot.

Churchill and Franklin finished with eight and five points, respectively.

"They won three out of four formats and came in second in the alternate shot format, one stroke behind Churchill," Stevenson head coach Mark Hay said.

The Chargers' Logan Welch and Adam Sinclair finished with a 38 in the alternate shot contest, edging Stevenson's Craig Jakacki and Evan Kucz-marSKI.

In the scramble, the Spartans' tandem of Jacob Anderson and Alex Pohl registered a 34 score, defeating the Chargers' Peyton Elkins and Davis Coughlin (36) and Patriots' Jacob Kenward and Devin Visnau (36).

It was a three-team battle for the best ball victory, but Stevenson held on to first as Connor Jakacki and Griffin Matic combined for a 34 — enough to top Franklin's Brandon Tirador and Eric Liberati, second with a 38. In third, with 39 strokes, were Churchill's Aaron Walton and Max Proulx.

Medal play also went to the Spartans. Trevor Lopus and Schlatterbeck finished with an 82 score, with John Doyle and Chase Fallu of Churchill right behind with an 88. In third were Franklin's Trevor Vanvie and Graham Opie (96).

After the tourney, the Spartans had their photo taken behind the Nick Collins Memorial Bench at Fox Creek. Collins was a former Spartans golfer who died suddenly from meningitis just one year after graduating from Stevenson.

Livonia Stevenson's varsity boys golf team celebrates after winning the annual city meet.

4 reasons why you should join a talent network

BY DEANNA HARTLEY
CAREERBUILDER

If you want to work for a company but can't find open positions, or have been rejected for a position at your dream company, it doesn't mean you're out of luck. You may be the right candidate for the company you're applying to, but not the best fit for any open positions right now. That means the right fit for you is still out there — and you can get closer to it by joining a talent network.

Talent networks are automated platforms where job seekers can enter their information into a company's database with the goal of being notified of new job opportunities. It's beneficial for the company because it allows employers to create a talent pipeline, and there are many ways job hunters can benefit from talent networks as well. Here are a few:

1. It will give you a chance to understand the company better. Companies today are increasingly leaning toward building and nurturing relationships with job seekers over time versus just looking to fill positions that may be open right now. Subscribing to a talent network opens the door to enabling employers to engage with you — and other candidates who have opted in to a talent network — more so than they would with other job seekers who don't opt in. It will give you an opportunity to get to know the company, its culture and the expectations that are set for employees. And you can leverage this additional insight when applying for future positions at the company.

2. It will save you time. One pet peeve many job seekers complain about is that they're forced to re-enter or resubmit the same information over and over again. With a talent network, you won't need to re-enter your information because it already lives in the database.

Also, since you will be alerted to new relevant opportunities that will open up down the road, you won't have to keep checking back in.

3. It will keep you top of mind for employers. Even if your dream employer or employers don't have any job openings at the moment, you don't need to feel like you have to sit on the sidelines and wait. You can take a proactive step that could get you closer to landing that dream job when it becomes available. You'll have a better chance of remaining on a company's radar if you're in their pipeline.

"It can't hurt if it's a company you've always wanted to work at," says Christy Hopkins, a human resources consultant and writer at Fit Small Business who also maintains an HR consulting and recruiting firm with small business clients. "If there are no open roles we are looking for that fit you, you can still submit your résumé to the general database. This is useful for us in that when a client comes to us for an urgent need — we can search our database and see if anyone fits their criteria by setting parameters around keywords and locations."

4. The talent network can do some of the work for you. We get it — you're a motivated job seeker and you want to get out there and do the hard work of finding the right job. But don't be afraid to get a little help from your friends — and in this case, a company's talent network can be your best friend.

Some companies will go so far as to send you personalized alerts with jobs that best match your experience and interests. You will be able to make the most of tailored job recommendations and customized messages coming directly from the company itself.

THE NEW CHEVROLET EQUINOX ELEVATES THE BRAND IN CRUCIAL SEGMENT AS MARKETING CAMPAIGN KICKS OFF

By Dale Buss

The Equinox utility vehicle is Chevrolet's highest-selling retail nameplate once again this year behind the monster results of the Silverado pickup series. So it's been crucial for the General Motors-owned mainstream brand to get it right when it comes to launching the greatly improved 2018 version.

So far, so good: Sales of Equinox have defied the overall industry slowdown so far this year, registering more than 83,000 units through April, or nearly 4 percent higher than a year ago. It has continued to edge out the hot Cruz compact sedan as Chevy's No. 2-selling model.

"It delivers on a variety of things, everything that compact SUV shoppers demand: design, capability, technology and safety," Paul Edwards, vice president of Chevrolet marketing in the US, told me about the new Equinox. "It needs to perform well in all those different categories."

And now the marketing kicks in behind the latest version of a vehicle that has sold more than two million units. Appropriately, one ad to promote the new Equinox. "Everybody Everywhere," shows off the tremendous versatility of the new version, in all of the settings in which consumers make various demands on their vehicles.

In another new TV ad that extends Chevy's two-year-old "Real People, Not Actors" theme, the vehicles and the advertising "moderator" venture far outside of the warehouse-like space where Chevrolet has been showing actual customers -- not actors -- participating in what they think are focus groups.

The brand has put Equinox in a hotel valet scene. The valet brings a stylish new Equinox in front of the hotel. Because the rightful driver is late in getting there, the valet takes the liberty of inviting all kinds of passers-by to steal a spell in the vehicle that has rolled up and impressed them.

Naturally, of course, the people in this ad love the 2018 Equinox, with its interesting new "S" curve exterior design cue along the vehicle's shoulder, its "down-and-away" instrument panel and big new touchscreen.

I talked with Edwards about Equinox, "Real People" and marketing Chevy:

Q: Why do you think "Real People" has been effective for so long? And how much longer can you find actual individuals who will be "surprised" to find out how good Chevy and your products and features are?

Edwards: The effectiveness has gradually increased over the last 25 months. We've kept it fresh. We're always trying to find a fresh new way to engage consumers within the work itself and to extend it across everything that Chevrolet has to say in the marketplace: brand, retail, and across all our different segments.

It does the quality job equally as well as to launch a nameplate like Equinox. We're seeing our highest breakthrough measures and our highest impact on opinion measures of all time because there's a familiarity with it in the marketplace.

But today's perceptions still lag reality. As much impact as we've made, there's still a long way to go. There are a lot more people to bring to the brand.

Q: Even as good as the new Equinox may be, and your advertising, how do you find something truly "new" to say in SUVs these days, given how every brand keeps flooding into the segment with new models and features?

Edwards: That's the No. 1 segment and there's a lot of very healthy competitors. We do it in two different ways. One is the total package of Equinox. In "Everybody Everywhere," we wow people with the total package.

In another one we compare ourselves to the gold standards in the segment, Toyota and Honda. Those owners are blown away. A lot of people in the [buying] cycle are familiar with our competitive brands and are used to that level of technology, refinement and design, and when they get in a Chevrolet they're blown away by how we beat those competitors hands-down.

Q: With US sales slowing and consumers largely rejecting sedans and flocking to utility vehicles, is it a pretty daunting environment these days for Chevrolet as a mainstream brand -- and one that has a lot of sedan models out there?

Edwards: Well, over the last two years we've gained nearly a full point of retail market share, and sales of 120,000 incremental units. We went from 10.3 percent in 2015 to 11.2 in 2016. Another measure we look at is "excellent" opinions for the brand, and we've had a 30-percent increase in that from the baseline before we started the "Real People" campaign. And in our conquest business, it's grown about 20 percent -- our share of the conquest opportunity each month.
