Johnson starts state House run

Westland councilman would replace Kosowski

LeAnne Rogers

USA TODAY NETWORK - MICHIGAN

Appropriate levels of revenue sharing, public safety and insurance rates are among the top issues that Bill Johnson would like to tackle if elected to represent Westland and Wayne in the Michigan House.

Johnson, 67, a Westland city councilman, recently kicked off a campaign to fill the 16th District seat being vacated by Rep. Robert Kosowski, D-Westland, who is term-limited.

"I just believe that Lansing is Johnson so screwed up it's pitiful. I believe there are more moderates than people on the far left or far right," e Johnson said. "The moderates have got to put some sanity into what they are doing up there."

To address that divide between Democrats and Republicans, Johnson, a Democrat, said the double desks on the House floor should have one member from each party assigned to sit together.

"That aisle divides them This

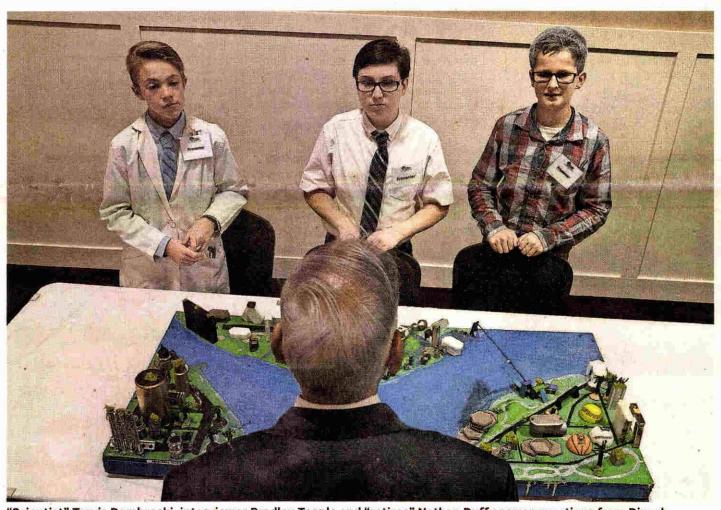

"That aisle divides them. This way, they would have to talk to each other. It would stop a lot of deadlocks. I'm sure it would never happen," he said.

Appointed to Westland council in 2007 and elected for his first term the following year, Johnson's current term ends Jan. 1, 2020. He retired last July after 48 years working at the Ford Michigan Assembly Plant, 42 of those years serving full time as an elected UAW representative, including the last 20 years as building chairman. The 16th District includes all of Wayne and most of Westland.

As a councilman, Johnson said he knows that if state-shared revenue reductions were restored to local communities, cities like Wayne and Inkster wouldn't be in the financial mess they

In Valdada, in the year 2065, senior citizens get help from Herbie, a robotic personal assistant that can cook, clean, have conversations and even use Braille to communicate with the visually impaired.

"It looks like us, but it's animatronic," said Joseph Waller, an eighth-grader from New Era Christian School, who explained Valdada — and Herbies — to visitors at Novi's Suburban Collection Showplace. "It's made by Apple, so you know it's good."

In Kutali, where it's 2232, older people routinely interact with college students and seniors can get groceries or prepared meals delivered by drones.

Implanted microchips keep track of individual dietary needs, which are relayed to the central food emporium so that meals can be customized.

And in Stratified, in 2150, seniors benefit from moving walkways, get household help from an AVCS, or advanced voice command system, and can ward off the effects of Alzheimer's and dementia with a memory chip implanted in the temporal lobe.

These imaginary towns and several dozen others were on display at SCS during the Michigan Future City competition.

Organized by the Engineering Society of Detroit, the contest has middle school students plan various aspects of a city of the future — the economy, in-

AAUW brings Disney classic to stage

"Harry Potter" star Emma Watson brought the Disney classic "Beauty and the Beast" to the big screen last year and now the American Association of University Women Plymouth-Canton branch is bringing it to the stage at Garden City High School.

The AAUW presents "Beauty" Feb. 1-3, with 7 p.m. shows Thursday and Friday and 11 a.m. and 2 p.m. matinee performances Saturday.

"Beauty and the Beast" tells the story of a monstrous-looking prince and a young woman who fall in love. The AAUW production is being directed by Sue Bellows, with Kaytee Bellows starring as Belle and Lisa Gapa as the Prince.

It's the latest presentation by the AAUW Plymouth-Canton chapter, which got its start in 1952. Nationwide, the group started in 1881 and supports more than 170,000 local branches and have been working through.

"A healthy increase in revenue sharing would help cities that are barely making it avoid possible bankruptcies and may enable them to add to their public safety workforce," he said.

Also regarding public safety, Johnson said he spent the day in Lansing a couple of weeks ago with police and firefighters from across the state as they protested efforts to dismantle contractual benefits.

"These are our first responders and they put their lives on the line every time they put on their uniforms," he said. "These contracts are local issues and should be honored and managed by local governments. This is just another attack on the middle class. Look what the Republican majority has already done to our teachers, who are the custodians of our dearest assets — our children."

Along with two adult children from a previous marriage, Johnson has two stepsons, ages 15 and 13, with wife Tonya.

After having his auto insurance more than double in recent years despite no tickets or claims in more than 25 years, Johnson said he wants to address the nearly $200 per vehicle collected for catastrophic injury claims.

"That is a top-secret fund with no transparency. It is rumored to contain more than $31 billion. The fund is administered by insurance companies who are accountable to no one," he said. "I think that is like letting the fox watch the hen house."

Other priorities if he is elected, Johnson said, are veterans services, senior issues and assistance to small businesses.

With Kosowski, who is running for state Senate, Johnson said, "I believe we will make a great one-two punch."

Not surprisingly, Johnson is also getting support in his campaign from sister Eileen DeHart Schoof, herself a former state representative and Westland's first elected city clerk.

Student nominated for science gathering

Lee Bradford, a junior at John Glenn High School, was nominated for the Congress of Future Science and Technology Leaders in Boston from June 29 through July 1.

The event is an honors-only program for high school students who are passionate about science, technology, engineering or mathematics.

Bradford was nominated by Dr. John D. Mather, winner of the Nobel Prize in Physics and science director of the National Academy of Future Scientists and Technologists, to represent Michigan based on his academic achievement, leadership potential and passion for science and technology.

During the three-day Congress, Bradford will join students from across the country and hear Nobel Laureates and National Medal of Science recipients talk about leading scientific research; be given advice from deans of the world's top tech universities; be inspired by fellow teen science prodigies; and learn about cutting-edge advances and the future of science and technology.

The contest develops students' research and writing skills (an essay about each city is required), as well as the technical skills used in putting together the models. Students also polish public-speaking skills, as each team has to present its city to judges who are professional engineers, plus answer questions from them and other Future City visitors.

"They like the teamwork. They like the collaboration aspect," said teacher Leandra Edwards-Brandel, adviser to the team from Geisler Middle School in Walled Lake, where Future City was an after-school activity for a team of nine students. "They're all, academically, pretty driven students."

The Geisler team put together Stratified, population 75,000, located on what is now Puerto Rico. They gave themselves an extra challenge by siting Stratified in the aftermath of a nuclear disaster; the city is partially underground and, because the air is contaminated, the above-ground portion is protected by a dome.

Kutali, planned by eighth-graders from St. Valentine School in Redford Township, also rose following a disaster: The city was built on the ruins of George Town, on the Grand Cayman island in the Caribbean, a city that had been destroyed by storms in the year 2054.

Edward Austin, a presenter for St. Valentine, said open communication among members of the Future City team was important in coming up with a success-

You really have to be an open person when you're doing projects like this," Edward said. "You want to make sure you're all working together to achieve the St. Valentine placed second to the team from St. John Lutheran School in Rochester. That team's city, Copper Valley, population 132,000, is planned for the year 2132 in the community now known as Butte, Mont.

In Copper Valley, seniors are assisted by strain energy (the energy used in walking, for example) that is recaptured by special sensors, solar power is harnessed to melt snow on the roads to make traveling safer and food production is accelerated by feeding excess carbon dioxide to plants in domed farms. As in Kutali, seniors and students learn from each other.

The St. John team now moves to the Future City finals, which are in Washington, D.C., next month. Last year's St. Valentine team went to the finals.

Joseph, the eighth-grader on the New Era Christian School team, said he enjoyed the tinkering required in putting the Valdada model together.

"It was great," he said. "We got to do all the engineering, wires and stuff I've never done before."

Teacher Phil Morse, the New Era team's adviser and also principal of the school in New Era, which is north of Muskegon, said it was his school's first trip to the Future City contest.

"I'm hooked," he said. "I think this is a great thing for

The Conference of Western Wayne, an association of 18 chief elected local officials in Michigan's largest county, announced that it has selected its new 2018 leadership team.

The CWW 2018 Executive Committee is composed of Chairman LeRoy Burcroff (Romulus mayor), Vice Chairman Robert Nix II (Northville Township supervisor), Secretary Kerreen Conley (Belleville mayor), Treasurer Pat Williams (Canton Township supervisor) and Chair Emeritus Jack O'Reilly (Dearborn mayor), who led the CWW the last year. The committee was sworn in by the Wayne County Circuit Judge Melissa Cox.

"I am truly grateful to serve the 18 communities in western Wayne County that make up this organization," Burcroff said. "Our board has met monthly for over three decades to discuss issues such as state and federal legislation, county matters, transportation, public safety, substance use prevention and community and economic development. improve the quality of life for the nearly 700,000 residents who live in the region. CWW also serves as the 9-1-1 Service District for western Wayne County.

The CWW communities include the cities of Belleville, Dearborn, Dearborn Heights, Garden City, Inkster, Livonia, Northville, Plymouth, Romulus, Wayne and Westland and the townships of Canton, Huron, Northville, Plymouth, Redford, Sumpter and Van Buren. The CWW area is 340 square miles, bordered by Washtenaw County to the west, Oakland County to the north, the city of Detroit to the east and Monroe County to the south.

Despite the diversity of size, economic development and population density, these communities have been working together – working regionally – to enhance this area of Wayne County for more than 38 years.

"All of our 700,000 residents and 340 square miles are impacted by the decisions and laws that are made at the federal, state and county levels," Burcroff said. "It is vital that we continue to collaborate in order to create the best solutions possible to the challenges we face."

The 18 members of CWW selected the new leadership at its board meeting Jan. 12in Plymouth Township.

Neighbors say suspect in CNN threats 'nice guy'

Novi man charged in federal court after making threatening calls

Matt Jachman

hometownlife.com USA TODAY NETWORK — MICHIGAN

Residents of Chestnut Tree Way in Novi were surprised to learn Tuesday that a neighbor had been accused in federal court of making violent threats toward the news network CNN.

"When you hear something like this, it knocks my socks off," Bill Nelson said at a house across the street from where Brandon Griesemer lives with his parents.

Griesemer, 19, faces a charge of using interstate communications to threaten injury, conviction of which could mean a prison sentence of up to five years. A complaint by Sean Callaghan, an FBI special agent, alleges the Atlanta-based network received 22 calls Jan. 9-10 from Griesemer; the specifics of four of those calls, some of which included racial slurs, references to "fake news" and threats to shoot staffers, were detailed in the complaint.

Nelson, who said he uses a cane, said he has known Griesemer for years and described him as a "nice guy" who, with friends, would carry equipment or furniture for him if they saw him grappling with it. "They're always helpful," he said.

The teen and his mother would also fetch groceries for him from the local Busch's supermarket where Griesemer works, Nelson said. "Just normal people" is how Nelson described the family.

"Would never have believed it," he said of the accusation of threats.

Griesemer, a 2017 Novi High School graduate, was arrested Jan. 19 and charged in U.S. District Court. He was freed on an unsecured $10,000 bond, meaning he will owe the government that amount, plus face an additional charge, if he fails to follow the terms of his release.

A preliminary hearing is scheduled for Friday, Feb. 9, at the federal courthouse in Detroit.

No one answered the door at the Griesemer house Tuesday afternoon, but a man behind the closed front door said, "We have no comment" when asked about Griesemer. Later, people were seen coming and going from the house.

Griesemer's attorney, Tenny R. Beardslee of the federal public defender's office, did not return a call.

Nelson said he and Griesemer often greeted each other in passing: "How's it goin'? What's new?' You know, chit-chat," he said.

Like Nelson, four other neighbors said Tuesday that they were hearing about the charge against Griesemer for the first time. One refused to comment, two others would not give their names and a fourth said she did not know the family.

An employee at the Busch's on 10 Mile, where Griesemer works, referred questions to the company's corporate office, where a message was left late Tuesday afternoon. An employee outside on a smoke break said he could not comment because of company policy.

Nelson said that as a young boy, Griesemer would stop by and tell him about superheroes.

"He kept me up to date on all the superheroes and how good they were," Nelson said.

In federal court Jan. 19, U.S. Magistrate Judge Anthony P. Patti highlighted several of Griesemer's bond conditions, which include that he not have contact with CNN, not possess weapons or drugs and not travel outside the court's jurisdiction of the U.S. Eastern District of Michigan.

Patti sternly told Griesemer not to make any sorts of threats. Griesemer was accused of making a threatening call to an Ann Arbor mosque in September and the FBI's complaint says Griesemer admitted to police that he made that call. He was not charged in that case.

"You're not going to be committing any illegal activity while you're on bond, so don't be making any threats to anybody," Patti told Griesemer, according to a recording of the Jan. 19 hearing. "Understand?

"Yeah," Griesemer said.

Qualified charitable donations help avoid tax issues for seniors

Q: My wife and I are in our mid-60s and retired. Because of a lawsuit, I receive more than enough money to cover all our needs. From a tax standpoint, we itemize our deductions only because of the amount of charitable contributions we make on a year-byyear basis. We average about $15,000 a year in charitable contributions. We always make our yearly contributions in February. My first question to you is, since under the new law I will be taking the standard deduction as opposed to itemizing, I wanted to know if in making this year's charitable contributions if I could use my IRA? My second question is, since I won't be itemizing in the future, is there any reason to save any of my re-

A: I love the way you think, however, you cannot use your IRA to make charitable contributions. If you take an IRA distribution, you will be taxed on it, no matter what you do with the money.

There is an exception to the rule, but you do not qualify for it. For someone who is over 70% and required to take minimum required distributions, they can do what is known as a qualified charitable distribution. In this transaction, you can transfer all or a portion of your minimum required distribution directly to a charity and you're not taxed on that money. The key to qualifying for this exception is that you must be over 70½. Since you are not, you cannot take advantage of it.

For seniors who are over 70% and are taking required minimum distributions from their IRAs, if you are charitable in nature you should look at the new tax law to determine whether you are going to itemize your deductions. For those who are not going to itemize their deductions, making your charitable contributions through your IRA can be a significant tax savings. The key to the transaction is the money must go directly from the IRA to the charity. If you have the check sent to you and you sign it over to the charity, you still must pay tax on the transaction. The only way to avoid the tax is to have the money directly transferred to the charity.

With regard to saving tax receipts, this is a tough question. If someone knew with 100-percent certainty they would not be itemizing their deductions, they would probably not have to save the receipt. On the other hand, since the tax law is brand new, I would generally lean toward being safe rather than sorry. I would save the receipts.

It is important that everyone set up a tax file for 2018. When you get receipts or other documentation that could have some tax implications, it is important to save them. You're also going to start receiving your 2017 tax information and I cannot stress enough the importance of saving those documents. One sure way of having IRS scrutiny is to not report income on a 1099 or W2. It is important that you save all the tax information you receive over the next couple of

One thing people should always understand about tax laws is that they are constantly changing. You may not read about it in the papers and it doesn't get much publicity, but tax laws are always changing and we never know if the tax law today is going to be the tax law at the end of the year. I would encourage everyone to set up a good record-keeping system with regard to taxes so that, no matter what happens to the tax law, you will be prepared.

Good luck!

A Wayne man faces drunken driving charges after police say he drove his vehicle into his neighbor's gas meter with alcohol in his system.

Wayne police were called Jan. 18 to the 4200 block of Mildred on the report of a vehicle that had damaged a fence of a residence. When police arrived, they spoke to the driver, 61-year-old Jerry Morrow, who told police he backed up his car into the side of the neighbor's home while driving down his driveway.

A gas meter was struck, along with some non-electrical wires. Surrounding homes were evacuated because of a gas leak, though residents returned shortly after once it was deemed safe. The gas meter, fence and tele- Morrow phone cables were all damaged.

While police were speaking to Morrow, they noticed a smell of intoxicants on him. They began doing field sobriety tests, all of which Morrow failed. Officers then conducted a preliminary breath test, which Morrow agreed to. He registered 0.277 percent, more than three times the legal limit of

Rice grad Malzone to leave U-M

Marty Budner

Excited about his future and with no regrets regarding his past, Alex Malzone is ready to begin anew.

After deciding to leave the University of Michigan in December, Malzone announced earlier this week he will continue his college career at Miami (Ohio) University as a graduate transfer. The 21-year-old quarterback will graduate from Michigan later this spring and will have two seasons of football eligibility remaining.

Malzone said Miami was one of the school's he considered while being recruited out of Brother Rice. He is eagerly looking forward to the his new opportunity with the RedHawks.

"I'm super-excited about going to Miami," said Malzone, who is majoring in economics with a minor in political science. "Once I announced I was transferring from Michigan, (Miami) was one of my top schools throughout the whole two months. I just feel it's going to be a really good fit, football-wise and academically.

"I went down there for my official visit this past weekend and their facilities are absolutely incredible and it made me want to go there even more," he added. "I know it is definitely a highly-regarded school that I am looking forward to being a part of and I've had a good relationship with (head) coach (Chuck) Martin and (offensive and quarterbacks) coach (Erik) Koehler."

Another battle for playing time

Malzone has not been guaranteed anything by Martin and the Miami coaching staff. Like he did at Michigan under coach Jim Harbaugh, Malzone realizes he will have to battle for playing

Canton two-sport athletes carry mission from football field to basketball court

Less than a yard kept the 2017 Canton Chiefs from perhaps realizing the dream of winning a football state championship - at the least, reaching the final four in Division 1.

As heartbreaking as it was to come up just short on the two-point conversion that would have defeated Novi Detroit Catholic Central in the D-1 regional title game, a handful of those players have another chance at destiny.

Five key senior football players -Noah Brown, Chase Meredith, Colin Troup, Connor Engel and Danny Lanava - now are part of Canton's off-thecharts varsity boys basketball team.

Not all agree that one sport's mission carries over to another, but most do believe this is a very special year for Canton High School athletics. They still have one final kick at the championship

"Football guys are playing with a chip on their shoulder now," Lanava said. "They know how easy it can be (over). Your whole career is over now for

The next few months promise to be an interesting adventure for Jack Mah-

A senior at Bloomfield Hills High School, Maher-Gogonis will be finishing his final year of lacrosse as a member of the Black Hawks varsity team. After the prep season concludes, he will head to Europe to play in the lacrosse world championship tournament.

Maher-Gogonis recently earned a spot on the inaugural Greece National Lacrosse Team, which will make its debut in the 2018 Men's Lacrosse World Championship, scheduled for July 19-21 in Israel.

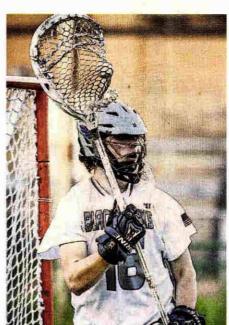

I never thought something like this would happen. It was never on my list before," said Maher-Gogonis, who will soon become an official citizen of Greece. "I'm very happy about it and I'm really looking forward to it. We are going to go to Greece to practice before the (world championships)."

Passing through tryouts

Maher-Gogonis learned of the opportunity to compete for the Greece National Team after his mother received an email correspondence on the subject. The 18-year-old goalie decided to go for it and eventually worked his way on to the team by surviving a pair of tryouts.

Maher-Gogonis was one of six goalies who attended an initial tryout in mid-November at Drew University. He

Marian wins division showdown with Mercy

Marty Budner

hometownlife.com USA TODAY NETWORK - MICHIGAN

Bloomfield Hills Marian took a huge step towards ending Mercy's two-year reign as the Catholic League Central Division girls basketball champion Tuesday in Farmington Hills.

The Mustangs used a sizzling second quarter to propel themselves past the Marlins, 34-25, in the first-place showdown. Both teams entered the battle with one Central Division defeat.

Marian (10-1 overall), with four Central Division games remaining, now rests alone atop the standings with a 7-1 record. The Mustangs still must face Divine Child, which handed them their

'We knew if we can hold off Regina and some of the other teams we still have to play, this was going to be the big one," Marian head coach Mary Cicerone said. "And Divine Child knocked us off at their place so, hopefully, we can get them. We don't have it easy yet."

Veteran Mercy head coach Gary Morris knows his squad faces an uphill battle if it has any hopes to at least finishing as co-champ. Mercy (11-2 overall) is a game behind at 8-2 with just two division games left.

"I'm sure both teams talked about how we each had one loss and that, obviously, who ever won this game was in the driver's seat for winning the Central Division," Morris said. "That's what we talked about. We won the Central Division the past two years and we wanted to win it again this year. That's how we looked at the game."

Mercy goes up early

The host Marlins held the early advantage and led 4-0 through the lowscoring opening quarter's first sevenplus minutes on baskets by Julia Bishop and Bella Dugas.

Marian, however, avoided the firstquarter shutout by scoring five points in the final 25 seconds, on a trey by senior Samantha Patterson and a put-back buzzer-beating bucket by junior center Megan Kraus.

Veteran Canton boys basketball coach Jimmy Reddy knows he has a pretty special group of seniors, talented and as together a group as can be.

It's no accident that the quintet is following up its stellar football act with one perhaps even better in basketball. Meanwhile, the team also has footballbasketball players in junior Darius Robinson and sophomore Ben Stesiak.

"Some of those guys are going on to the next level to play football, some are going to go play basketball, maybe," Reddy said. "But this is their last opportunity.

"I think Chase is the only guy that plays a spring sport - he plays lacrosse so this is kind of the end of it for high school sports for them. So the sense of urgency is high and they're trying to prove something.

Concurring was Brown, who is in his fourth season with the basketball squad one of which was the 20-0 regular season of 2015-16.

"This team, I think our schedule is a little bit harder than that 20-0 team and also I feel like this team is more focused on the little things in practice," Brown said. "We hold each other accountable. We'll get on each other in practice about how hard we're working.

'It's a really special group of seniors that we have this year. There's a lot of experience on this team. Each senior on this team is really into this season. We all know that this is our last chance to make a run at a state championship. We're taking this season very seriously."

Camaraderie counts

Troup also was on the 2015-16 team, but currently is sidelined after breaking a bone in his foot in December. He hopes to be back at it before the highly anticipated postseason begins.

'We are back with a skilled veteran group and we have team goals to do our best for one another," Troup said. "So motivating a teammate to try harder or picking one up when they're struggling benefits the team."

Being part of such a standout group of multi-sport seniors is no accident. It requires hard work and an all-for-one attitude. There is a definite brotherhood feel among them, to not let the others down.

"It's very challenging, but my teammates on the football field and basketball court make it very fun and entertaining," Troup said. "Groups of guys like your teammates are the ones that you'll remember forever."

Lanava pointed out that the football/ basketball buddies have pretty much been together constantly since ninth grade, resulting in a tight-knit bond and almost a sixth sense to know what the others might do in a game situation.

"That's helped a lot, being with them since freshman year, workouts in the summer for football and then carrying over to basketball and then back to football," Lanava said. "Being with them for and they're like brothers to me

"We're all on the same page when we get to the end of the game. Last year, it wasn't like that. But now, we're in close games and we've come out on top at the end just being with each other, team chemistry and all that."

Double duty

According to Engel, "having six or seven guys on our team that all played football, that helps. And we got after each other in the summer at basketball workouts, too. We really came together."

Meredith said positive team chemistry transfers from football to basketball.

"Oh yeah, definitely," Meredith said. "Last year, we had great team chemistry, too (in basketball). New pieces were added, but we all still knew each other. We're all good friends, so I would say (it's) trusting each other on the basketball court."

Brown appreciates the brotherhood and unique two-sport path the Chiefs might be carving. But he sees what happened on the football field as not necessarily having an impact on the basketball season.

"No, I feel this team is different from the football team," Brown said. "Our goals are the same as football, but I'm looking past football now and I'm just focusing on this basketball season.

"I think team chemistry is similar to football, but it's different because this team has so many returners from last four years, you really start to like them year. I think it's more just carrying over from last year's basketball season than from football."

But Brown did note similar characteristics he brings to both sports.

"Yeah, just like in football, I'm the hustler on the team," he said with a nod. "I'm expected to play defense and rebound. Similar traits I carry from football, I carry on the basketball court."

Reddy said he welcomes having players who move the needle in multiple sports, especially in today's age of specialization - many athletes are encouraged to choose a sport and stick to it.

"We want guys to play multiple sports," Reddy said. "To be honest, I hate the way it's going today in youth sports. Kids at such a young age are only playing one sport or coaches are telling the kids to only focus on one sport. I think that's the thing that's really hurt-

"I think it's best to compete in as many things as you can compete at. Those guys are usually the best college athletes. Most guys that succeed in college played multiple sports."

It makes sense to play more than one sport, Lanava explained, because physical tools can be applied from one to the other.

"Basketball gets you faster and quicker and that will help you in football if you're a running back hitting a hole," Lanava said. "And in football, it gets you a lot stronger for basketball, which helps you get rebounds. Each sport helps the other out, in a way."

excelled in that first round and was invited to attend the final tryout at Furman University in South Carolina just after the new year.

Maher-Gogonis showed enough talent, ability and character that he was one of 23 players named to the team.

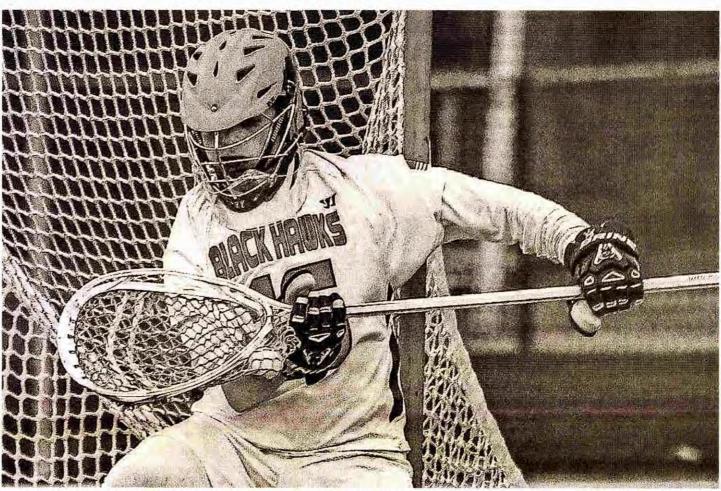

"I wasn't so sure about trying out at first, but figured I would at least try. The first session was just with the team, but the second session had a scrimmage against Furman University which is a D-I school," Maher-Gogonis said. "I think I did good in that scrimmage and I think that was one of the reasons I made the team. The coaches loved me and I liked them. They are great people to be

"It was great to make the team, but I was surprised because I was one of the youngest players among a group of almost all older guys," he added. "But I have been playing with players a lot older than me for a long time and I have the skills to play with them."

Maher-Gogonis, who started playing lacrosse when he was age 7, has made great strides in his three years as a member of the Black Hawks varsity team.

Last spring, he was named to the Michigan High School Lacrosse Coaches Association's all-state third team in Division 1 after leading the Black Hawks to the regional semifinals. He was named his team's Defensive Player of the Year and later was named an all-star goalie at the Blue Chip Showcase in Massachusetts.

"Since I first met Jack, when he was an eighth-grader, he has always impressed me with his can-do nature, competitive attitude and hard work, Bloomfield Hills head coach Jerry Meter said. "As a goalie, there are a lot of times a young player can get frustrated by letting a goal score, getting hit by a shot, trying to make a pass with a stick that is meant to stop the ball and not necessar-

A college future

Maher-Gogonis plans to play college lacrosse, but is undecided as to where at the moment. He hopes the summer journey will help in his decision.

"I'm undecided right now, but I have an offer from Albion College because they heard about me making the (Greece National Team)," he added. "But I'm still looking at other schools and we'll see what happens."

For now, Maher-Gogonis is excited about the opportunity to play in the world championships and is well aware of his obligations as a national team

"There are not that many schools in Greece that have lacrosse. They are trying to grow it there," Maher-Gogonis said. "Now there is a national team they can bring to Greece and show the kids how to play lacrosse. They hope to have a good future in lacrosse."

Maher-Gogonis's lacrosse future also promises to be very bright.

play," Malzone said. "But I'm excited to go down there and compete and I definitely want to be the guy. I know I'm going to get my shot and I'm going to have to make the most of it.

"I definitely gave it my all (at Michigan) and I know I didn't play too much," he added. "But I still have two years left and I have to make the most of it."

Malzone Malzone, one of the state's most recruited high school quarterbacks as a four-star prospect, committed to the Brady Hokecoached U-M program in May 2014. Hoke, however, was let go after the 2014 season and succeeded by Harbaugh, whose record is 28-11 in his three years at the helm. Despite the coaching change, Malzone, a longtime Michigan fan while growing up in Farmington Hills, remained true to his commitment.

Malzone enrolled early at Michigan, determined to make an impact. It never worked out in his favor as he barely found the field. He constantly found himself in a crowded field of quarterbacks, including Jake Ruddock, John O'Korn, Zach Gentry, Wilton Speight, Brandon Peters, Shane Morris and Dylan McCaffrey.

Red-shirted his freshman year, Malzone made his college debut Sept. 3, 2016, in a game against Hawaii. Last fall, he had a few snaps in Nov. 4 a win over Minnesota, but did not attempt a pass.

During his time with the Wolverines, he was named academic all-Big Ten (2016), won the U-M Academic Athletic Achievement Award (2016) and was named Scout Team Offensive Player of the Week prior to a game against Indiana last fall.

Ready for new challenge

Despite the dearth of playing time in Ann Arbor, Malzone has no regrets.

"There aren't any regrets. I mean, I grew up as a Michigan fan all my life and, obviously, I knew coming (to Michigan) there was going to be a big competition quarterback-wise at one of the best schools in the Big Ten," he said. "I was part of some good quarterback competitions and really got to see only mop-up duty here.

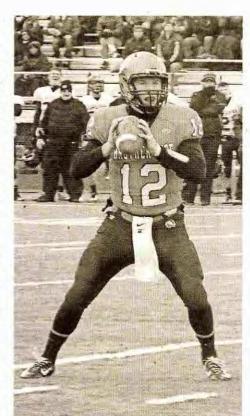

"I would say it was definitely a little disappointing that I didn't get to play much. I mean, when you're in a competition and trying to compete at the highest level and you're not getting much playing time, that's going to be disappointing, just like anything in life. At times, I thought I was going to get my shot at some point, but never really did.

"Now I'm going to go somewhere else and, hopefully, I get that shot," he added. "But I got a great education here, made a lot of good friends and had a lot of great experiences playing football."

Miami finished the 2016 season with a 6-6 record and played in the St. Petersburg Bowl, its first bowl appearance in 10 years. The RedHawks finished 5-7 last year and were 4-4 in the Mid-American Conference.

"I'm going to be getting down there in May, right after I graduate (from Michigan), get acquainted and then get ready for fall camp and get ready for the season down there," Malzone said. "I know the team is returning a lot of guys, which is pretty exciting. I'm going to go into the new year and get prepared for it."

Mercy held Marian without a basket in the fourth quarter, but could come no closer than eight points (33-25) with 2:10 left. Marian hit 5-of-8 free throws in the final quarter to nail down the victory.

"We had such an awesome first half, even though we couldn't score in that first quarter," Cicerone said. "And then we just came out like marshmallows, melting marshmallows (in the second half).

"The girls did everything they were supposed to do (in the first half). They worked hard. I told them, 'The key to that first half was, even though we missed everything, we put up — even easy layups — that we didn't get mentally down.'

"I told them, 'That was the sign that you guys are becoming a good team," she added. "That you played through all those missed layups and put-backs and they got it together in the second quarter. Then Mercy had it going in the second half after they hit a couple big shots."

Low-scoring stats sheet

No one reached double figures on either side.

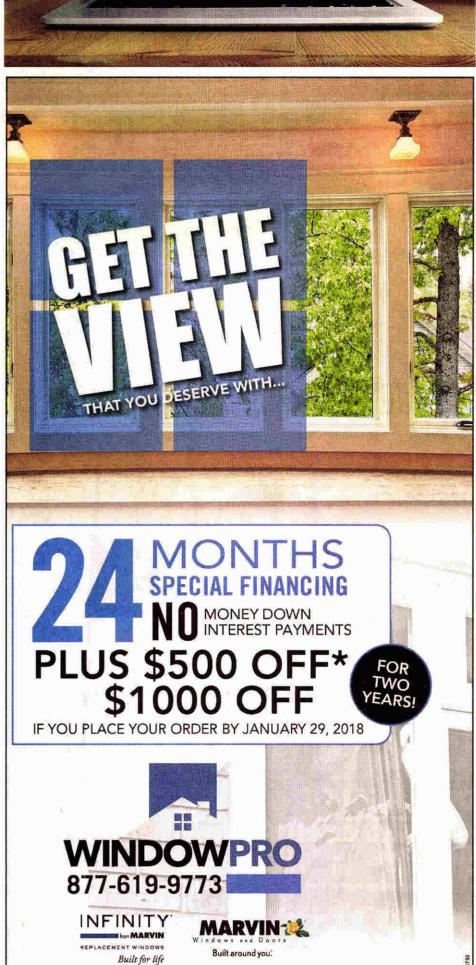

Marian was led by Kraus, who had eight points, and Moore, with six. Eight different players scored for the Mustangs. Senior center Uche Ike missed most of the game with foul trouble, but senior Megan Riddle came in and did a fine job in her place.

For Mercy, Smith led the way with eight points and Bishop added seven.

"We got it to eight and, if we could have gotten it to six or five, who knows?" Morris said. "But we just couldn't quite come all the way back. We had a long ways to climb back. It's disappointing, but we'll just have to get back at it."

Why the perfect resume won't get you the job

BY ERICTITNER THEJOBNETWORK.COM

e've all been there: The seemingly endless hours of toil, the struggle and intense focus, the attention to every detail, the tweaks and rewrites based on multiple rounds of feedback and criticism from everyone who was ever important to us in our lives ... until a version as close to perfection as possible is achieved.

What could we possibly be talking about?

That's right, it could only be one thing - it's your resume, and we all know how valuable a document it can be.

In short, your resume is your initial handshake, your smile, your first impression to potential employers and hiring managers. And you really want to make it count.

According to a recent article in Psychology Today, the power of first impressions is undeniable and "first impressions matter, for good and bad." (Google "the halo effect" if you're curious and want to learn more about the lasting power of first impressions.)

We also know that the competition to get a new job is intense, and some fields are tougher than others, so the time and effort spent on perfecting your resume is worth it in the end.

However ... if you think your resume will be your "golden ticket" to your next job, think again.

While it's true that an impressive resume can help open doors and put you in the running for new job opportunities, even an absolutely perfect resume won't automatically guarantee you the job.

Your resume is a document designed to grab the attention of recruiters, hiring managers and potential employers, but it's up to you to seal the deal.

Remember, they're looking to hire a person, not a piece of paper, so more than just your resume will be under scrutiny during the hiring process.

While it's true that your resume can, and hopefully will, get them interested, they'll want to know if you actually live up to the initial impression they got from reading about you.

Furthermore, the competition you'll face is just as hungry for the jobs you're going after, and you better believe that many of their resumes will be perfect, too. So, in a universe of impeccable resumes, the thing that separates the winners from everyone else in the job-hunting game is what they bring to the table after their resumes make the initial impression.

If you're lucky enough to get to move forward in the hiring process, perhaps to a phone call or video conference call, or even a face-to-face interview, you're going to have to continue the job that your resume started.

This means looking your best, demonstrating impeccable communication skills, instilling confidence that your skill set, experience and innate abilities match well with the job, and giving the impression that you'd be a great person to work alongside everyday and a valuable addition to their team.

You'll also need to make a convincing case as to why you're a better choice than all the other people with perfect resumes that you'll be competing against.

Here's the bottom line: It's definitely worth your time and effort to craft a stellar resume, but if you're really serious about landing the job opportunity you have in your sights, you need to pay just as much attention to ensuring you make as good of an impression as your resume does. Don't forget - your resume will get your foot in the door, but it's up to the rest of you to get you through it!

Here's How It Works: Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzlel
