McDermott to run for state House

Westland resident is Democratic candidate in 16th

LeAnne Rogers

USA TODAY NETWORK — MICHIGAN

As he kicks off his campaign for state representative, Mike McDermott notes he had already knocked on 4,800 doors and talked to thousands of voters in Wayne and Westland.

"There are a lot of big challenges in the Wayne-Westland community. There is union busting. The Republicans and (Gov. Rick) Snyder are taking away power from union men and women," said McDermott, 31. "When unions are strong, the middle class is strong. And they are taxing pensions. It's unfair."

Joining the race for the 16th District House seat representing Wayne and much of Westland, McDermott is making his first run for office. The Wayne native and current resident notes it's not his first campaign, having been a statewide organizer for Bernie Sanders in 2016. He worked for Hillary Clinton after she received the Democratic nomination for president.

A small business recruiter for Allstate Insurance, McDermott dates his political campaign experience back to working on the Obama presidential campaign while a student at Wayne State University. He received a bachelor's degree from Wayne State and holds a master's degree from Walsh College.

Along with overturning right to work and repealing the pension tax, McDermott said he also wants to see roads and infrastructure repairs and to close the immense funding gap for the Wayne-Westland Community Schools district, with more resources put into classrooms.

"I can no longer sit back and watch politicians repeat the mistakes of the past. Our state government in Lansing has failed to deliver solutions to the problems that are devastating people across our community. We need people in Lansing who will represent our interests, not just those who are rich, well-connected special interests," said McDermott, who describes himself as a lifelong progressive Democrat.

Closing the income gap is a major issue, with Michigan considered to be the 11th worst state nationally for income inequality, McDermott said.

"When the 2008 great recession hit, like many, my parents' retirement savings was decimated. The strain forced my mother out of retirement, back into the work force and I saw my father lose his home to foreclosure," McDermott said. "I was working on President Obama's 2008 campaign and watched as the very same people who wrecked our economy — millionaires and billionaires — got bailed out, while hard-working people like my parents were left out in the cold. Watching this greed showed me that the system was no longer working for us."

Ice cream in the winter isn't as hot a commodity as it is in July. But drive around any major road in the region and you'll find plenty of independent ice cream stands with neon signs flashing "open" hanging in the window.

Why are they open? If you ask some of the owners, sometimes even they don't know.

"Every year, I say I'm going to close, but I don't close," said Julie Skore McBride, who owns Marv's Dairy Dan at

Senior from Franklin is recognized as Livonia's top youth

USA TODAY NETWORK — MICHIGAN

Most high school juniors have a certain set of priorities: sports, activities, grades, maybe even preparing for their future after graduating.

Not many are planning a community event designed to raise thousands of dollars to help another teenager suffering from Duchenne muscular dystrophy. That was Caitlin Jodway last year and it's a big reason she has been named the Livonia Observer's Outstanding Youth this year.

Jodway, a senior at Franklin High School, was selected to receive the honor after being nominated for her work. In addition to keeping excellent grades, she is a member and currently serves as treasurer of the National Honor Society chapter at the high school, has served as a mentor to freshman students through the Franklin Relate program and swims for local swim clubs and for the high school.

She, along with several local businesses, educators and Livonia's First Citizen, John Murphy, will be honored at the Livonia Leadership and Awards dinner Thursday at Laurel Manor. There, awards for businesses of the year, teachers of the year and more will be given by the Livonia Chamber of Commerce, the Livonia Public Schools district, the Clarenceville School District and the city's Greenleaf Commission on Sustainability.

One of Jodway's biggest recent accomplishments was a swimathon she put on last year to benefit another teenager, Joseph Penrod, whom she met in 2016. Penrod has Duchenne muscular dystrophy, which has evolved to a point where he needed to use an electric wheelchair. Seeing how his mother had a difficult time transporting the electric wheelchair around, Jodway decided she would try to help raise money for the $60,000 van he needed to be able to move around.

She found herself going around to businesses asking for donations of food, drinks and other items. About 100 swimmers took part and plenty more people donated money through a GoFundMe account.

The swimathon, held last spring, shattered her original goal of $10,000, bringing in $24,000 to help the now-freshman at Walled Lake Central.

"I didn't know how to believe it," she said. "But I knew it was quite some ways from where they needed to be, because it was $60,000 for the van itself and I know that would be hard to get to."

She said Penrod, whom she considers a close friend, received the van last fall, using some of that money to pay for it.

"That was really cool," she said. "It's definitely made us closer."

Andrew Pesci, the new principal at Franklin High School, said Jodway's spirit is one that's incredible, especially after her efforts last year.

"She is truly amazing," he said. "Generating that amount of money for the cause that she did in such a short amount of time shows how passionate she is about helping others."

In the water

Jodway, who lives in Westland with her parents and brother, finds herself more comfortable in the water than doing other sports. She's been involved in swimming since she took lessons beginning when she was six months old, and moved on to join a swim club when she was 8.

"My swim teacher was very adamant about me joining a club, because swim lessons were too easy," she said.

She recently changed teams, now swimming for the Bulldog Aquatic Club out of Stevenson High School.

During her time swimming for Franklin, she and three other girls set a school record for the 200 medley relay not once, but twice. She was a part of the record as a junior with three seniors last year and set it again this year swimming with three underclassmen, even doing so while not doing her normal backstroke spot on the team.

"Nobody else could swim fly, so I had to give up my back spot to take the fly spot," she said.

After graduating, she plans on continuing her swimming career at Alma College. There, she hopes to study biology and eventually work as a dentist.

Thinking back on the event she hosted last year, Jodway said it's her hope she helped inspire others to give back to the community. She's particularly inspired by a quote from President Ronald Reagan, one that drove her to launch the initiative: "We can't help everyone, but we can help someone."

"I really think hosting that swimathon really inspired some of the other swimmers on the team, not to necessarily host their own swimathon or anything, but just do something," she said. "You can do anything to help someone — big or small."

ally Democratic district, the race will likely be decided at the August primary.

STUDENTS VISIT ANTARCTICA, AS WELL AS PENGUINS

Second-grade students at Walker-Winter Elementary School studied penguins and got to take a virtual trip to Antarctica. "The Antarctica Penguin project was amazing and the students seemed to enjoy every part," teacher Chris Kozaczynski said. First, they took a trip to the Detroit Zoo and were able to visit and talk with zoo staff member at various exhibits. The big focus was the Polk Penguin Conservation Center, where students were able to see the penguins up close and ask questions. After the visit to the Detroit Zoo, students continued their research and slide show presentations. These slide shows included pictures from the zoo, penguin facts from their research and highlights from the visit with a research scientist. The most exciting part of this project were the discussions with Jean Pennycook, a research scientist who is stationed at Cape Royds, Antarctica, studying the Adelie penguins. Prior to the Skype call, the class worked together with high school students in the graphic design program, with the help of their teacher, Mr. Benglian, at the William D. Ford Career-Technical Center. After several designs and a very close vote, one design was chosen. John Glenn student Emma O'Beirne completed the flag and then the students sent it to Antarctica to be flown at the research station. Checking online, the class was very excited to see their flag there.

American Montessori moves to new Westland building

The students and families at American Montessori Academy celebrated a move to a newer and bigger building in early January. The move relocates grades 3-8 from the previous building in Redford to the transformed previous site of St. Damian Church in Westland.

Executive director Dr. Ticheal Jones is thrilled to see the vision and hard work of the staff and stakeholders come to life in this new building. "The larger classrooms help teachers incorporate the individualized Montessori approach we offer and is just one of the great things about this new site," Jones said. "The building feels like home and we look forward to continuing to expand and grow our school in this community."

The new school building is on 9.28 acres and gives students two playground areas and baseball and soccer fields to play on. It is also 15,000 square feet larger than the old school, providing many more features for students. In addition to the larger classrooms, it includes a library, art room, gym, café, collaboration space and a tech room. The computer lab in the new school was also upgraded with new computers and an interactive white board for teaching.

Long-time American Montessori staff member Cookie Peters revealed her favorite room in the new building is the commons room. In addition to using it as a collaborative project space for students, she often works with special-needs students in this area as an Act 18 aide.

"It's absolutely incredible to look back and think about the growth that AMA has made in the last few years," said Meagan Scott, who has taught at AMA for nine years and currently serves as preschool director. "Through consistent hard work and perseverance, amazing leadership, a strong and supportive staff, loyal and dedicated families and hardworking and incredible students, the dream of moving into a new, beautiful building became reality. I am so excited and proud to be a part of this amazing school."

American Montessori enrolls 539 students from preschool to eighth grade. Students in preschool to second grade attend school in American Montessori's lower building on Middlebelt in Livonia, with grades 3-8 in the new Westland building. Next school year, second grade will also move to the new building.

"The acquisition of this property will bring a much-needed increase in space and opportunity for American Montessori and I'm extremely happy that we were able to find and re-purpose this facility," board member Gerald Olkowski said. "We're well-poised to continue our mission of educating the leaders of tomorrow here."

Opened in 2004, American Montessori Academy is a tuition-free public charter school for children in preschool through eighth grade. At AMA, the environment promotes a child's natural ability to become a self-directed learner, flexible thinker and creative problem solver. Individualized learning allows children at the school to advance at their own pace. Open houses for families interested in enrolling for fall 2018 will be held March 13 and 19. Open enrollment begins March 2. For more information, go to americanmontessori.net.

Two officials finalists for western Michigan job

Matt Jachman
hometownlife.com
USA TODAY NETWORK — MICHIGAN

Two area municipal officials are finalists for the job of city manager in the city of Holland in western Michigan.

Tracey Schultz Kobylarz, the Redford Township supervisor, and Victor Cardenas, the Novi assistant city manager, were among three applicants chosen by a search committee for final interviews in Holland. Keith Van Beek, deputy administrator in Ottawa County, in which part of Holland is located, is the third finalist.

The three are scheduled to tour Holland and meet with employees and the leadership staff Wednesday, Feb. 14, then be interviewed by the search committee Thursday, Feb. 15. They will also be introduced to citizens during a two-hour public reception at Holland City Hall that evening, according to the city's website.

Cardenas, assistant manager in Novi for more than seven years, said he enjoys his job there and that there are only a few other towns in the state in which he'd want to work. Holland, he said, is one of those places.

"I'm very passionate about college towns and I aspire to work in a college town," Cardenas said. Holland is home to Hope College and Western Theological Seminary, plus Grand Valley State University and Davenport University each has a campus there.

Cardenas is a graduate of GVSU, which is based in Allendale, about a 35-minute drive from Holland, and is a member of the GVSU Board of Trustees.

"I believe that I owe a lot to my undergrad experience, so I just want to give back and be a part of that environment," he said.

Kobylarz, in her third four-year term as supervisor in Redford, said she only recently opened up to the possibility of a career move, though she has been approached several times with opportunities.

"Sometimes you just have to consider opportunities that you really didn't think existed and be open to them," she said.

Kobylarz's two children are adults and her daughter Amy lives in Kalamazoo, which is about an hour from Holland.

Cardenas

"Now that the kids are out of the house, it's time to be open to those options as they come up. It was a difficult decision to be open to them," she said.

Kobylarz was recently a finalist for the city manager position in Garden City, but was not chosen.

Kobylarz, a lifelong township resident and a Redford Union High School graduate, said her love of Redford "can never be denied," but that she is also a big fan of the west side of the state.

"When opportunity knocks like this, I owe it to myself and my family to consider those options," she said, adding that she hopes anyone would do the same.

Tourism is a major industry in the city of about 33,000 people and automobile parts, furniture and battery companies have a presence there.

Cardenas said he and wife Kathryn, who have three children, are drawn to the energy and vibrancy of college towns and that Holland "is a fantastic community."

Before coming to Novi, Cardenas was city manager in Brooklyn, Mich., for more than three years and assistant city manager in Oak Park for more than two years.

Kobylarz was an administrator at a human services agency before becoming township supervisor. While supervisor, she served two terms as chairwoman of the Conference of Western Wayne, an alliance of 18 communities in the western part of the county.

Holland's search committee is planning to recommend one of the three finalists Friday, Feb. 16, and the Holland City Council is expected to make its decision Wednesday, Feb. 21, the city's website says.

The job became vacant when Ryan Cotton, former city manager, resigned last June, according to the Holland Sentinel. Public Safety Chief Matt Messer is now interim manager, following a seven-month stint by Greg Robinson, who was hired on an interim basis.

6950 Wayne Road in Westland. "I close if it's 20-below or if it's eight feet of snow. I close for a day or two."

There's nothing that beats a nice ice cream cone when temperatures are in the 80s in July. But what about closer to 8 in February?

Diehards stay open

Plenty of ice cream stands buck the cold Michigan winter and decide to cater to those ice cream die-hards who can't get enough sprinkles, soft serve and sundaes. From Ritter's Frozen Custard on Eight Mile in Livonia to Snack Attack on Highland Road in Highland, more ice cream stands are catering to those who can't get enough.

McBride, whose father originally bought the stand about 25 years ago, said there have been plenty of times already this season — including the last weekend in January, when temps soared into the 40s — when they need all the help they can get to serve their hungry customers.

"If you would have come here, it would have looked like summer," she said. "It was 45 degrees. You could not get into the parking lot."

"In the winter (the weekend of Jan. 26-28), we had cars that could not get in off of Wayne Road."

Rougher than expected

Jack Seto, a Highland Township resident who owns Snack Attack, decided he'd give staying open during the winter a try last year. He stayed open until close to Christmas, then took a month and a half off to recharge and catch up with family and friends before opening in February again.

He decided he'd try staying open for the winter for the first time last year and admitted it was a little rougher than he expected.

"We didn't get the results we wanted to right away," he said. "I kind of knew that was going to happen, but you just have to try anyway."

Once he's open, though, Seto expects he'll see many of the same faces he sees throughout the year stop by and want some cold treats.

In about one week, the machines behind Jack Seto will be cranking out soft-serve ice cream. BILL BRESLER | HOMETOWNLIFE.COM

"The hard-core fanatics," he said.

A brief rush

And there's no telling when a customer can show up to one of these businesses. Even in the middle of the day during the week, Dairy Dan sees plenty of drive-through traffic.

McBride said despite frigid temperatures and a reduced staff in the winter, operating an ice cream stand is the work she feels she was called to do.

"It's awesome to serve something to somebody that makes them happy," she said. "We have customers that become our friends, part of our family. It's a fun place."

Livonia declares health crisis around opioids

David Veselenak
hometownlife.com
USA TODAY NETWORK — MICHIGAN

Wayne and Oakland county officials made headlines last fall when they announced they would sue manufacturers of opioids. Now, several communities, including Livonia, are preparing themselves in the likelihood they'll be doing the same thing.

The Livonia City Council voted at its last regular meeting Jan. 29 to declare a public health and safety crisis in the city because of the increased use of opioids in the last few years. The vote, which was unanimous, marks the city's first step in joining a potential lawsuit against pharmaceutical companies surrounding the recent increase in illegal activity with the substances.

"It's the first step in commencement of litigation against manufacturers and wholesalers and distributors of opioids," said Don Knapp, Livonia's city attorney, who drafted the declaration. "That public nuisance, as I understand it, will be one of the counts in the complaint that is filed against the manufacturers, wholesalers and distributors of opioids, because there's been a large saturation of these controlled substances in communities like Livonia."

The lawsuit Livonia hopes to be a party to, if filed, would hope to secure funding to reimburse the city for the increased costs it's had combating the influx of opioids in the city.

Knapp said it was typical for the city to see just shy of 40 overdoses a year between 2012 and 2015. That number jumped to 68 in 2016 and increased again to 86 in 2017.

"It's obviously becoming a big problem, not only for Livonia, but for Wayne County and the state of Michigan," he said.

'Next big tobacco'

No dollar amount for damage calculation has been determined for the city, something Knapp said would come at a later date.

The suit Livonia would join, which is being handled locally by Southfield law firm Sommers Schwartz, would consist of several communities across several states, including Canton Township, which declared a public health crisis surrounding opioids in December.

Canton Township Supervisor Pat Williams said he is working with leaders in other communities on this and he believes this is going to be a big case.

"This is the next big tobacco," he said.

Knapp said a judge in Ohio is coordinating the discovery process for several cases that span several states, a process called multi-district litigation. Knapp said it's expected a legal case could be filed in the U.S. District Court for the Eastern District of Michigan at a later date.

Livonia Councilwoman Cathy White said she understands the effects these drugs can have on a community, especially after a relative of hers battled addiction after being prescribed drugs after a surgery. She said she recently read a report that 175 Americans die every day from drug overdose, roughly the same number of people that can fit in a Boeing 747.

"They went on to make the point that if a plane was crashing every day, you'd be sure that people would be on top of it," she said. "So the fact that this has been going on for a while now is just further evidence that leaders in the communities, leaders in the state, really need to step up and address this issue."

Staff Writer Darrell Clem contributed to this report.

Livonia firefighters save two from house fire

David Veselenak
hometownlife.com
USA TODAY NETWORK — MICHIGAN

Livonia fire crews had to battle several elements early Saturday morning as they rescued two people from the basement of a burning home.

Keith Bo, the city's fire marshal, said firefighters were called at about 4 a.m. Saturday to a home in the 15000 block of Green Lane, one block west of Inkster. He said a woman, who was sleeping in the basement, woke up smelling smoke. She then woke up her husband and woke up the other four people sleeping in the house.

She noticed a fire had begun on the porch and got her parents-in-law and her children out of the house, Bo said. She went back inside to help her husband in the basement get out when the fire entered the kitchen and consumed the room in flames, trapping them in the basement.

Bo said crews were notified by dispatch they needed to rescue the two in the basement as well.

"Our guys were informed on the way to the fire that they could not get out," he said.

Firefighters entered the home and got the two people out of the basement before battling the fire. Crews then were able to combat the flames, which only damaged the porch and the kitchen. The rest of the home, Bo said, sustained smoke, heat and water damage.

The fire was deemed accidental and no suspicious activity was involved in the fire, Bo said.

The fire was not the only problem fire crews encountered while battling the blaze. En route to the hospital, an ambulance carrying the two got caught in the snow that had been falling for nearly a full day. More than seven inches fell in Livonia as a result of that storm, according to the National Weather Service.

Another rescue squad at the scene was able to transfer the two to the hospital. They were released later that day after receiving treatment for minor injuries.

Bo said the fire department coordinated with the Department of Public Works trucks in order to clear a path for fire crews.

"They plowed us a path out, so that helped," Bo said.

The fire was a good reminder, Bo said, to take precautions, as there was no egress window from the basement and the smoke detectors in the home were not working.

Every day is Italian Food Day for Cantoro chef

Brad Kadrich
hometownlife.com
USA TODAY NETWORK — MICHIGAN

Tuesday was National Italian Food Day around the country. For chef Anthony Calabrese, that pretty much describes every day since he was 15 years old.

That's when Calabrese, the chef at Cantoro Italian Market in Plymouth, embarked on what would become his life's work, learning to cook at the feet of his mother and grandmother in their Canton home.

"I liked watching my mom and grandma in the kitchen," Calabrese said. "I was always at their ankles, helping."

Calabrese is a 1998 graduate of the renowned culinary arts program at Schoolcraft College in Livonia.

Q: What's been your background in cooking?

A: My first job was doing prep work and as a bus boy at (Livonia's) Laurel Manor. My first cooking job was at Wyndgate Country Club (in Oakland Township). I've also been at Tribute (formerly in Farmington Hills), at Bacco in Southfield and the Italian American Club in Livonia. I've been here (Cantoro, 15550 N. Haggerty) since 2012 and have been cooking since it opened in March 2014.

Q: Why is Italian food such a favorite for you?

A: My dad was born in Italy, then moved to Canada. I come from an Italian household, so there was always a lot of cooking going on. I like the diversity (of Italian food). From the top of Italy to the bottom ... cooking is vastly different.

Q: What's your favorite dish to prepare?

A: Pretty much any kind of pastas. It doesn't matter what kind. You can change pasta dishes like you change your mind. There's so much you can do with it.

Q: Who is most responsible for your pursuit of cooking as a career?

A: My parents and my grandmother. My mom and my grandma saw how much I enjoyed it and they encouraged me. I think my dad would have liked me to be a doctor or something (Calabrese smiles when he says that), but they've all been very supportive.

Q: Do you see yourself with a restaurant of your own someday?

A: Yes. The end goal has always been to own my place of my own. When and where? I have no idea. But that's the plan.

GIRLS BASKETBALL

Tigers' Sherwood leads by example

Belleville senior guard barges her way into the conversation for Miss Basketball award

Tim Smith
hometownlife.com
USA TODAY NETWORK — MICHIGAN

Katelyn Sherwood is the embodiment of intensity and competitive fire from opening tip to final buzzer for the Belleville girls basketball team.

Once the Western Wayne Athletic Conference varsity contest starts, her team's nickname — Tigers — is the perfect way to describe Sherwood's cat-like movements up and down the floor.

Sherwood, a 17-year-old senior guard and Canton resident, simply doesn't stop. She played all 32 minutes Feb. 2 in Belleville's 52-44 loss to host Dearborn Heights Crestwood, scoring 12 fourth-quarter points in a valiant comeback bid.

But scoring is only part of the story. She misses a short jumper, but is the first Belleville player back to the other end of the floor to grab a defensive rebound. When she makes a pass to a teammate, she fires the ball.

There are tips, blocks and ferocious defense fit for a "tiger."

See SHERWOOD, Page 2B

THE SHERWOOD FILE

Who: Katelyn Sherwood, senior guard, Belleville varsity girls basketball team. She recently signed to play women's basketball at Wayne State University.

Skills: The Canton resident, 17, who attended Plymouth Christian Academy during grade school, is on the watch list for the 2017-18 Miss Basketball Award.

Record: Last month, Sherwood shattered the Belleville record for career points for when she surpassed Mariah Gordon's longstanding record (1,287). Gordon happens to be the current Tigers coach. As of Feb. 2, Sherwood had 1,353 points during her four-year career.

Roots: Sherwood, daughter of Richard and Genine Sherwood of Canton, has played AAU basketball for Factory Basketball. She also was a travel baseball player on the Canton Cardinals.

College: With Wayne State, her coaches include longtime Schoolcraft College coach Karen Lafata. Sherwood's plans are to go into the medical field.

Pete Stoyanovich made a name for himself as an NFL kicker for 12 seasons, but soccer has always remained his first passion.

Recently named the new varsity girls soccer coach at South Lyon East, the 50-year-old Stoyanovich met the incoming players last week.

"I think the girls are really excited," he said. "They're starting their conditioning and they're off to a great start and, hopefully, we'll hit the ground running. And I'm excited my first year to help these kids and move in the right direction and turn this program around."

The Cougars finished 2-12-1 last season in Shawn Darnell's only season as varsity coach after winning back-to-back Division 2 district titles in 2014-15 under Jon Cadwallader.

"Pete found me," first-year East athletic director Greg Michaels said. "He's attached to the Novi Jaguar organization. He heard we had an opening and he reached out. We talked shop a little bit, we got him in here and he's going to be our soccer coach. He moved from

Community remains in mourning following J.J.'s death

Loss of Johannson leaves hockey world reeling as Olympics, Five Nations Tournament unfold

Tim Smith
hometownlife.com
USA TODAY NETWORK — MICHIGAN

With the U.S. men's and women's hockey teams competing in South Korea at the 2018 Winter Olympics and the prestigious Under-18 Five Nations Tournament about to pick up steam at USA Hockey Arena, this would have been the best of times for Jim Johannson.

Instead, a pall of sadness continues to hang low over the Beck Road arena in Plymouth, the very place Johannson sought to become the "front porch" of USA Hockey.

That's because the front porch swing is empty. Johannson, 53, died unexpectedly in his sleep Jan. 21.

"The last time I talked to him was (Jan. 19) and then we were texting the next night," said Scott Monaghan, USA Hockey National Team Development Program director of senior operations. "It was our 'Star Wars' night against Sioux Falls and he always wanted to know what the attendance was. I texted him and he texted back, 'Nice!'"

Still a shock

Monaghan and the rest of the hockey world woke up the next morning to the kick-in-the-gut news that Johannson died.

"He was a healthy guy, he worked out, exercised," Monaghan said. "Especially since the baby (Ellie, 2) came along, he spent a lot of time walking with her, going to the park."

BOYS BASKETBALL

Collins leads U-D by Catholic Central

Cubs capture sixth straight Central Division title with 66-47 victory

Brad Emons
hometownlife.com
USA TODAY NETWORK — MICHIGAN

Elijah Collins might be known for his prowess on the football field, but he's no slouch when it comes to basketball court, either.

The Michigan State football recruit figured prominently Feb. 6 as he scored a game-high 17 points to propel University of Detroit-Jesuit to a convincing 66-47 triumph over host Novi Detroit Catholic Central.

Collins

The chiseled and cat-quick 6-foot-2 Collins, a star running back, helped the Cubs (12-3) clinch the Catholic League Central Division title outright as they improved to 7-0.

U-D also won first meeting between the two teams Jan. 19, 72-60.

"The first half, we knew we had to come out strong on defense; that's exactly what we did," Collins said. "We came out and pressured them a little bit, wanted to speed them up a little bit, got a couple of turnovers and ran our transition a lot. Zach Winston also got some buckets early on."

Zachary Winston, The younger brother of MSU starting point guard and former Mr. Basketball Cassius Winston, scored his team's first seven points as the Cubs raced out to a 17-6 first-quarter lead.

The senior guard finished with 10 points, all in the first half, as U-D shot a blistering 64.2 percent (18-of-28) from the floor.

Junior Daniel Friday, who added nine points, threw down back-to-back dunks during the second quarter as U-D extended its lead to 39-22 at halftime.

"We talk all the time that defense has to create our offense and I thought we did a good job of that," U-D coach Pat Donnelly said. "We defended the 3-point line well, we got into passing lanes. I thought we got on transition off of some misses and some turnovers and that really allowed us to build a lead."

Collins scored 13 of his 17 in the opening half, converting 6-of-10 shots.

"He's an excellent football player and, had he decided that he wanted to play college basketball, he would have had opportunities for that, too," Donnelly said. "But the big boys came calling for football. He probably would have had some Division I looks on the basketball side, too, if that's what he would have concentrated on."

In the third quarter, U-D outscored CC 14-7 to go up 53-29 as Collins added two more baskets to finish off his stellar night.

"He just adds an element, that athleticism, that strength," Donnelly said. "He can defend. He can get to the rim. He can knock down open jump shots. He's a heck of an athlete and he just adds a different element to our team when he's on the floor."

As a 10th-grader, Collins was a starter on U-D's 2016 Class A state championship team.

"It started my sophomore year, the year we won the state championship," Collins said. "I was really trying to focus on playing basketball. I even took a year off to reach my goal of winning a state championship, but after that, I got back to the football field and football kind of blossomed for me."

The Cubs will be the top seed once again when the Catholic League A-B Division quarterfinals begin Saturday, Feb. 17, at Birmingham Marian.

"As of right now, we're still trying to perfect everything, try and get everything ready for the playoffs because it's coming up real quick," Collins said.

Here are some takeaways:

THREE-POINTLESS

Catholic Central did not make a 3-pointer all night, while U-D missed its lone free-throw attempt.

The Shamrocks, however, did connect on 15-of-18 foul shots (83.3 percent).

"We knew coming in that they're a great 3-point shooting team and that's something we really concentrated on is taking away the 3-pointer and making them score on the side," Donnelly said. "I'm a little disappointed we allowed them 15 points at the free-throw line, but for the most part we played a pretty solid game all the way through."

OFFENSE STALLS

The Shamrocks shot only 39 percent from the floor (16-of-41) and committed 20 turnovers.

Juniors Davis Lukomski and Justin Rukat scored 12 and 11, respectively, for CC.

"We didn't get it going all night, not at all, not in any sense of the word," CC coach Bill Dyer said. "Not defensively, not in transition, not off glass and didn't shoot it well. I think they scored 13 baskets in the paint against us on all run-outs. We weren't engaged at all tonight. We were never in it, just a frustrating effort on our part."

MAN IN THE MIDDLE

The Cubs' 6-foot-7 junior center Jalen Thomas, who has been offered by Xavier University, finished with two points and eight rebounds in his seventh game since returning to U-D after transferring back from Henderson (Nev.) Coronado High School.

Thomas gives the Cubs a post presence they didn't have earlier in the year.

CUBS SIX-PEAT

Despite the 19-point win, the Cubs were somewhat subdued in the locker room afterward despite clinching another Central Division crown.

But Donnelly was pleased with the result.

"We're really excited about that," he said. "We were talking about that in the locker room. It's six straight years and that hasn't been done. Proud of our guys, proud of the program and the guys that have played before. It's quite an accomplishment."

INTERNATIONAL SOCCER

After CONCACAF, World Cup next for Izzy, U.S. squad

Tim Smith
hometownlife.com
USA TODAY NETWORK — MICHIGAN

Izzy Rodriguez and her teammates on the U.S. Under-20 Women's National Soccer Team thrive on the international spotlight.

And after the team's recent success at the 2018 CONCACAF Women's U-20 Championship in Couva, Trinidad, Salem High School alum Rodriguez and the U.S. will have another chance.

The U.S. squad finished third at the CONCACAF tourney, automatically qualifying for the 2018 FIFA U-20 Women's World Cup set for August in France.

"Of course, I wish we would (have) won the tournament, we have high expectations for ourselves and wanted the best outcome," Rodriguez wrote in an email. "However, I am very excited that we qualified."

The U.S. made the cut (along with Mexico and Haiti) after enjoying a 4-1 run. After posting victories over Nicaragua (2-0), Jamaica (2-1) and Mexico (2-1) to win Group B, the American squad defeated Haiti in penalty kicks Jan. 26 in the semifinals.

The U.S. won 3-0 in PKs after the squads played a 1-1 draw through overtime.

But Jan. 28, the tables were turned on the U.S. against Mexico in the championship game. The teams were tied 1-1 entering PKs, but this time the U.S. fell short 4-2 in the tie-breaker.

Rodriguez is a 5-foot-5 defender and also a standout for the Ohio State University's women's soccer team.

The Canton resident had a strong rookie year with the Buckeyes, ranking fourth on the team with five assists. She made the all-Big Ten third team and the conference all-freshman team.

Before going to OSU, Rodriguez (whose parents are Robert and Audrey Rodriguez) was a member of the Michigan Hawks, who won the 2016 Elite Clubs National League championship. She also performed for the U.S. Youth National Team.

"We have a lot of work to do individually and as a team," Rodriguez wrote, now shifting gears as the U.S. looks to prepare for the U-20 World Cup. "So I'm looking forward to doing that over the next couple months with training camps and tournaments."

She's a battler

"I don't like to lose," Sherwood said. "We beat (Crestwood) at our home court. It was a tough game today because our shots weren't falling. ... I was, like, 'We can't go down without a fight.'"

She wound up with 20 points (along with six rebounds and five steals) to add to her growing career points record for the Tigers — as of that game, she's scored 1,353 points, further distancing herself from the previous record (1,287).

By the way, the former record-holder was Belleville head coach Mariah Gordon.

"We didn't talk about (breaking Gordon's record) too much, because at the time we lost the game against Fordson," Sherwood said. "I knew, this wasn't a good time to talk about it."

Gordon didn't seem to mind that it was Sherwood climbing past her to the top of the Belleville scoring charts.

"I think she's the true epitome of playing 94 feet of basketball," Gordon said. "She plays both ends of the floor. Offensively, she smells the rim. And defensively, I like to say she's got a laser eye on the ball."

"Whether that's in help defense, on-the-ball defense or on help-side coming over to block a shot, she does her due diligence to get the ball back for us."

All those qualities and more are why Sherwood is on the watch list for the 2017-18 Miss Basketball Award, going up against other area standouts such as Wayne Memorial senior point guard Camree Clegg.

"I think I can compete with (Clegg). I think I can compete with any of the girls," Sherwood said. "All the girls are extremely talented. The past couple years, when we played Wayne Memorial, we were able to beat them, so I think because of what we've shown in the past, I think we're able to compete."

Going hard through the lane against Dearborn Heights Crestwood is Belleville standout Katelyn Sherwood. She scored 20 points during the Feb. 2 contest, including 12 in the fourth quarter.

TOM BEAUDOIN

Comfort zone

Sherwood already is locked in to play women's basketball at Wayne State University, beginning in 2018-19. The team plays Division II in the Great Lakes Intercollegiate Athletic Conference.

"When I was looking at Wayne State, it's in Detroit, so it's close by where my mom works (Detroit Medical Center)," she said. "It's not a far commute from home, so I can stay at home with my parents."

"When it comes to academics, I want to go into the medical field and Wayne State has a great medical program."

Sherwood, who has a 3.7 grade-point average, immediately fit in with the Warriors players and coaches and immediately felt comfortable on the campus. Not that she needed a push, but parents Richard and Genine Sherwood are Wayne State graduates.

Also a factor was that the Warriors did not bail on Sherwood after she sprained an ankle during AAU competition before her junior year of high school.

"She sprained her ankle real bad and missed a bunch there," Richard Sherwood said. "She was getting looks from St. John's in New York, different MAC schools in the state and Ohio."

"But when she hurt her ankle, they all stopped looking. But Wayne State never stopped. After her sophomore year, she said 'That's where I want to go.'"

Gordon did not hesitate when asked if Sherwood would be able to make the transition to the college game.

"I think she'll be super-successful there," Gordon said. "The kid's got a motor that never ends. Everywhere you go, you can get as much talent as you can, but you can never get too much work ethic."

"She's a hard worker, she's great in the classroom, she's a locker room kid. She's what every coach wants."

No fear

And then there's her dogged determination. Sherwood is a young woman who isn't afraid to buck norms and doesn't let anything stop her from giving something a go.

A few years ago, Sherwood — who played travel baseball on her dad's Canton Cardinals team — also umpired youth games. She dealt with abuse from spectators and coaches and, ultimately, decided during 2016 to leave that sport completely.

"Honestly, I think it gave her more time to focus on basketball, with things," Richard Sherwood said about Katelyn quitting baseball. "But there were benefits from when she played baseball, playing different sports."

"Getting a mental rest from it, the different movements, especially playing against the boys. It kind of made her more aggressive, so I think it had a benefit playing."

As much as she enjoyed playing baseball, Sherwood agreed with her dad that maybe it was a blessing in disguise to concentrate solely on her hoops career.

"I thought, 'You know what? Basketball's going really well,'" she said. "I was starting to get recruited. I was thinking this is where I am going to be successful."

"And now that I can spend all my time on basketball, strengthening my shot, my ballhandling, it's been really good."

That work ethic and attention to detail is something Gordon is amazed by.

"We have a lot of kids that have breakout games or breakout moments," Gordon said. "But it's hard to get all II of those to be as consistent as Kate."

She is a coach's dream. Perhaps it's not surprising that Sherwood also breaks down games the same way a coach might.

"Her thing is, she loves to play every bit of the game, not just one aspect," Richard Sherwood said. "She wants to play everything."

"We go home every night and watch the game on film. She'll watch and go, 'I could have done this.'"

And she very well might next time. Any player with Sherwood's boundless energy and basketball IQ is virtually unstoppable.

Johannson

"(He) took good care of himself, didn't eat a lot of garbage. He was a fairly clean living dude. That's why it's hard to come to grips with."

In the weeks that have followed, Monaghan tried in vain to find any photograph including him and Johannson in the same image.

"I worked with him 18 years, I worked numerous events with J.J.," Monaghan said. "But I don't have one photo of us together."

Monaghan then tapped the side of his head: "But I have one up here that I'll keep for a long time."

It's safe to say Johannson's memory is something that never will fade in the hockey community, especially with those linked to USA Hockey.

Since Jan. 21, the American flag has been flown at half-staff outside USA Hockey Arena — the very place Johannson envisioned as a permanent home for NTDP teams, rather than renting other facilities such as the Ann Arbor Ice Cube.

"Jimmy'd probably be going, 'Hey, put the flag all the way back up, OK?' He wasn't a guy that wanted a lot of attention drawn to him or things that he did," Monaghan said. "He was the ultimate patriot."

There will be other subtle tributes to Johannson, who is survived by his wife Abby, daughter Ellie and many, many family members and countless hockey friends.

Players on the U.S. NTDP U-17 and U-18 teams already are wearing stickers on their helmets with "J.J." on them.

The handsome NTDP shield logo, which Johannson proudly designed, will be painted into the USA Hockey Arena ice and remain there for the rest of the season.

Plans are to install a plaque of Johannson on the Characters of the Game display, along the history-laden corridor between the arena's two constantly busy ice sheets.

Something more official to honor Johannson is in the works, but Monaghan said he did not have details.

Perhaps the ultimate tribute to the man is the high-quality international hockey taking place this week (Feb. 13-17) at USA Hockey Arena. Johannson wouldn't have been able to attend the tournament, but only because of the 2018 PyeongChang Olympic Winter Games.

"He was already upset he was going to miss it this year," Monaghan said. "But he was going to go to Russia with us in April for the (U-18) world championship."

The sudden death of Jim Johannson means his familiar face no longer will be up on the podium during USA Hockey press conferences, such as this one in Plymouth. USA HOCKEY

Making the call

Johannson was the main man for selecting the 2018 U.S. men's hockey team for the Olympics and told everybody he could find that calling up minor pro and college players to tell them they made the roster was one of the proudest moments of his nearly two-decade career at USA Hockey.

Because NHL players are not permitted to play this Olympics (for the first time since 1994), Johannson had to get creative to fill the roster.

"This was going to be his opportunity to be the guy on top," Monaghan said, shaking his head. "And one of the things he said publicly, he talked to me about it a couple times, one of the things that he said was one of the best moments in his life in hockey was calling this particular group of guys and telling all of them, 'You made the Olympic team.'"

"All guys that weren't superstar NHL players, guys that had that dream on their table their whole life. And finally, had a shot. He said it was one of the neatest things he ever got to do. So I know he was looking forward to the event."

Although Johannson would have missed the Five Nations tourney, he would have been regularly texting Monaghan to find out how games were going and how the attendance was at USA Hockey Arena.

"He loved coming out here (Plymouth)," Monaghan said. "He loved the fact that Detroit is a hockey center, so close to the rest of the hockey world. Here, he loved being at the arena because you just bump into guys. Plus his wife's family (Tompkins) is from the area."

With Johannson the catalyst, USA Hockey bought then-Compuware Arena from Peter Karmanos (owner of the Ontario Hockey League's Plymouth Whalers) for an undisclosed sum in 2015 and then poured millions into renovations and an impressive, state-of-the-art expansion.

"Jimmy had a great relationship with Pete Karmanos and (longtime Whalers GM-coach) Mike Vellucci," Monaghan said. "I think they started to talk about it and it made sense to everyone."

"He could get along with just about anybody. I don't think I ever saw Jimmy just entirely put off by a person. He could find something in common with anybody he met."

Love and respect

Veteran hockey broadcaster Pete Krupsky, who called Whalers OHL games for years and now is the voice of the NTDP, also marveled at Johannson's down-to-earth persona.

"You wanted to do well to please him, but you felt like you were both on the same team," Krupsky said. "Sometimes with supervisors, you know they're the supervisor and you know you're the worker. With Jim Johannson, I think everybody felt like one, we were all part of the same team and he made you feel real comfortable like that."

"The thing I really enjoyed about Jim Johannson, he would speak before a packed house at a press conference and then, maybe 10 minutes later, be down having a cup of coffee with the equipment manager or the athletic trainer or even a little guy like me."

"It didn't matter. He seemed to treat everybody with the same respect and he had a real sneaky sense of humor."

There was nothing sneaky about Johannson's love of hockey and devotion to the people who make it happen.

"The (arena's) porch swing is empty right now," Monaghan said. "We'll all have to do our best to fill it. He's a one-of-a-kind person that's not going to be replaced as an individual ... an individual that breathed life into this place."

Stoyanovich

Northville to South Lyon four years ago and has coached youth soccer the past nine years."

The oldest of Stoyanovich's three daughters, Sasha, is an eighth-grader at Centennial Middle School and plays locally with the Novi Jaguars club team. He and his wife Daniela also have two other daughters, Sofia, a sixth-grader, and Anastasia, 4.

Good timing

"I always thought one day, when the time was right and I had the time, I'd probably want coach (Sasha) in high school or take over the local high school," said Stoyanovich, who moved back to Michigan from Florida in 2001. "They were looking for somebody and, after meeting Greg and his staff, it just felt like the time was right and it's something I want to do. As you probably know, it's in my blood. I've got a great passion for it. At least this was a way for me to reconnect to the game. I certainly follow it quite a bit. I have a lot of friends locally and nationally that are coaching at every level, college level, high school level, even the MLS, USL and NASL levels. I have friends and former teammates coaching everywhere across the country."

Coming out of Dearborn Heights Crestwood High School, Stoyanovich was a high school All-America soccer player and national team level player who went on to play three seasons at NCAA powerhouse Indiana University.

During his first three seasons at IU, Stoyanovich played under coaches Jerry Yeagley (soccer) and Bill Mallory (football).

During his freshman year at IU, Stoyanovich was the subject of a Sports Illustrated article, which chronicled how he was able to juggle the two sports. He would normally play soccer games Friday nights and Sunday afternoons and, in between, it would be football on Saturdays.

Knight's plane

"I had Bobby Knight's Cessna, his private jet that he used to fly around in and recruit and what not," Stoyanovich said of the legendary IU basketball coach. "The university jet I had at my disposal basically in the fall to get me around soccer game to football game or vice versa. It racked up a lot of miles, I got to tell you. Doing two sports in the same season was not heard of."

"The fact that I was kicking made it a lot easier, because I'd go to football practice and I would kick, do everything I needed to do and get those things out of the way from a special teams point of view and, once I was done with that, I would go back to the locker room, get into my soccer gear and get transported to the soccer stadium and join the practice in session. There was a lot of hard work; it really was. At times it was a struggle, but I had good people around me and a lot of support and I was able to manage through that for three years before finally deciding to retire from soccer my senior year."

After playing three soccer seasons at IU, Stoyanovich decided to concentrate on football going into his senior year (1988).

"Coming out high school, I was one of the top (soccer) players in the country, a top forward coming out," he said. "Indiana was a two-time national champion in 1982 and 1983 and in 1984, they went to the final and lost to Clemson in overtime. We had six or seven top (high school) All-Americans that year ... we all went to IU. We were going to run the table there and shooting for four national championships in a row. We had the talent to do it, but after the first year, the team kind of got disassembled because players transferred, dropped out or got kicked off for one reason or another and the team kind of fell apart."

College kicker

Stoyanovich finished his four-year football career by setting school records for field goals in a season (17 in 1988), extra points in a season (45 in '88) and consecutive extra points (107, which was a then Big Ten record).

In those four football seasons with the Hoosiers, he converted 47-of-71 (66.2 percent) field-goal attempts and scored a total of 248 points. During his senior season, Stoyanovich connected on two 53-yard field goals and made 77.3 percent of his field-goal attempts (17-of-22).

"We turned that (football) program around," said Stoyanovich, who earned second team All-America honors as a junior in 1987 and was first team all-Big Ten following his senior season. "We won three bowl games and in four years and had some great individual players. Coach Mallory certainly turned the program around those years and got some respect around the Big Ten."

After juggling two sports for his first three seasons, Stoyanovich found himself at a crossroads in his athletic career.

"Doing both as long as I did started to take a toll on my body, emotionally, physically. I was just getting worn out," he said. "The pressure, the training and the travel ... the culmination of those things just wore me down. I just couldn't do it anymore. It was the hardest things I've ever had to do, was choose football over soccer because soccer gave me quite a bit, as did football, but soccer was my first love."

Dolphins draftee

Miami selected Stoyanovich in the eighth round and he went on to play seven seasons there (1989-95) before being traded to Kansas City prior to the 1996 season. He spent the next five years with the Chiefs and one abbreviated season in 2000, his last, with the St.

Louis Rams before retiring.

During his 12-year NFL career, Stoyanovich made 272-of-342 field goals, 420-of-425 extra points and was named All-Pro in 1992. He booted the longest field goal in Dolphins history with a 59-yarder against the N.Y. Jets on Nov. 12, 1989, which at the time was the fourth longest in league annals.

Meanwhile, a once promising soccer career had all but faded into the sunset.

"I had offers to play overseas and maybe play here, too, but at the time, there really wasn't much soccer going on," Stoyanovich said. "The NASL had folded. It was just strictly indoor at the time. There wasn't a whole lot of outdoor soccer here. Probably one of the hardest things I ever had to do, because soccer was my first love. Unfortunately, the timing of things just wasn't right for me to go overseas and play in the late 1980s, so I opted to stop soccer and focus solely on football my senior year at Indiana after playing three years of both."

For the past 10 years, Stoyanovich has owned and operated Kickers All-Star Bar and Grill, located behind Victory Park off Michigan Avenue in Canton Township. (His restaurant is adjacent to the High Velocity and Arctic Edge indoor sports facilities.)

Meanwhile, Stoyanovich said he remains an avid NFL spectator. He watched the Super Bowl on Sunday.

"Since I retired in 2001, I haven't had much contact with football," he said. "There wasn't much that I could do. I didn't want to get into coaching football at the time and had some local businesses here. Obviously, I've made a lot of friends with a lot of my teammates. I follow the players, the coaches, the teams ... teams that I've played for and, certainly, I have a lot of interest and still love watching the game."

BOYS HOCKEY

Top-ranked Shamrocks down Stevenson, 2-0

Brad Emons
hometownlife.com
USA TODAY NETWORK —
MICHIGAN

For a regular season game, it was a dream match-up Saturday night at USA Hockey Arena in Plymouth as the state's No. 1-ranked teams in Division 1 and Division 2 locked horns.

And when the final horn sounded, host Novi Detroit Catholic Central came away with the 2-0 victory against Livonia Stevenson in what proved to be a defensive struggle throughout, especially during the first two periods.

"We knew we were going to have our hands full, without a doubt," CC coach Brandon Kaleniecki said. "Dave (Mitchell) does a great job with that team and they're always really strong defensively. They block a ton of shots and keep everything to the outside and make things difficult."

Here are some takeaways:

BREAKING THE ICE

CC sophomore Brendan Miles, in his first season on the Catholic Central varsity after playing Midget AAA for Compuware the previous season, scored what proved to be the game-winning goal with 5:06 remaining in the final period to break a scoreless deadlock.

The shot came just inside the blue line, with assists going to Dylan Montie and Brendan West.

"Eventually, we were able to wear them down and get a shot through from the point with a lot of traffic and that turned out to be the game-winning goal," Kaleniecki said. "I thought the third period was our best period and we definitely were on the front foot for a majority of the period. You kind of had the sense that something was eventually going to go in."

Prior to the Miles goal, CC's best scoring chance came earlier in the period at the 4:52 mark, when Mitch Morris hit the right post.

The Shamrocks put it away with only 1:47 remaining, when Carter Korpi took advantage of a Stevenson defensive giveaway for an unassisted goal to make it 2-0.

"You've got to be ready to flat-out, out-compete them to score from how they play," said Kaleniecki, whose team outshot Stevenson 13-4 in the third. "And from our perspective, we were finally able to break that down. It took some time and, obviously, their goaltender Will (Tragge) is one of the best in the state. He played a really good game. They always have him as their kind of last line of defense."

GOALIES BATTLE

Tragge, a senior who made 24 saves, was solid all night, blanking the Shamrocks through the first 39:06 before yielding the game-winning goal by Miles.

"Will Tragge is an outstanding high school goalie and has been outstanding for our program," Stevenson coach David Mitchell said. "He's just solid back there and he keeps us in every game. He was there again tonight and gave us a chance to win, especially when we were under siege as we were a number of times in the third period."

CC goalie Zach Allen was not quite as busy on the other end, but made all nine saves, including a key stop in the second period on Stevenson's Cole Parkhurst.

It was the Shamrocks' seventh shutout of the season.

"You're going against CC, they're so deep and they're so well-coached, they run such a solid system and they play so hard and so tough that, it got to us in the third," Mitchell

TURNING POINT

At the 2:44 mark of the second period, officials whistled CC's Greg McQuade for a five-minute checking from behind penalty, as well as a 10-minute misconduct.

The Shamrocks played a man short, but were able to fight off the five-minute Stevenson power play.

"In a tight-checking game, a five-minute was going to be a big opportunity for them to take the lead," Kaleniecki said. "Our guys responded and did a really good job. I think they had only one shot in the whole five minutes. They had pressure, but we did a good job on steering them to the outside and getting pucks out when we had the opportunity and then really prevented them from having a great set-up. So it was a big kill for us at the point of the game that gave our guys a little more energy. From that point on, we played a much better game."

MISSED CHANCES

The Spartans went 0-of-4 with the man advantage.

"Their five-minute was huge," Mitchell said, "not only didn't convert, but I don't think we got enough shots or enough chances. And all the credit to them. Their penalty kill was extremely aggressive and kept us on our heels. When they pushed in the third (period), we didn't push back. We stayed on our heels and we stayed chasing. Against a team like that, you can only do that so long. I thought we limited their chances in the first and second period, but then we just didn't do a very good job of generating our own chances."

PATRIOTIC SUPPORT

The Five Nations Cup runs through Saturday, Feb. 17 at USA Hockey Arena.

U-18 national teams from Russia, Sweden, Finland, the Czech Republic and the U.S. will play a total of 10 games during the five-day tournament.

During the CC-Stevenson game, players from Russia and the Czech Republic were on hand in the stands to watch and the Catholic Central student section got an early start by chanting: "USA, USA, USA," and "We want Russia."

It was all in good fun, of course.

HAPPY RETURNS?

Both Catholic Central (18-3-1) and Livonia Stevenson (17-5) hope to return to the state finals at USA Hockey Arena in their respective divisions, March 8-10, in Plymouth.

CC, last year's Division 1 state runner-up, will be the odds-on favorite to win its 14th state title in school history.

The Shamrocks are unbeaten against all their Michigan opponents, with their only three losses coming against Culver (Ind.) Academy, the nation's No. 1-ranked team. They also have a tie against Lake Forest (Ill.) Academy.

Stevenson also lost to Culver at the Trenton Showcase, 4-2.

The Spartans have a Division 2 state title under their belt (2013) along with back-to-back runner-up finishes (2014-15). Stevenson has very difficult first-round regional match-up beginning 7 p.m. Tuesday, Feb. 27, at Livonia's Edgar Arena against Plymouth (16-4-1), which is ranked No. 2.

PREP WRESTLING

Catholic Central sending 14 to Saline regional

Shamrocks' three defending state champs all advance

Brad Emons
hometownlife.com
USA TODAY NETWORK — MICHIGAN

Sparked by its three returning individual state champions, Novi Detroit Catholic Central capped off a stellar week by sending a contingent of 14 wrestlers to this Saturday's MHSAA Division 1 regional tournament at Saline.

The Shamrocks, ranked No. 1 in Division 1 and defending team state champions, will be led once again by district champions Ben Kamali (119 pounds), who is 25-1 overall; Kevon Davenport (145 pounds), 32-2; and Cam Amine (152), 34-2.

On Feb. 10, Davenport defeated teammate Joe Urso (30-8) in the final by major decision, 12-3.

Other CC individual district champions included Brendin Yatooma (189), who defeated teammate Rory Cox in the final, 2-1; Stone Moscovic (125), who won on criteria in overtime, 2-2, against teammate Dominick Lamazzo; Easton Turner (215), Josh Edmond (130), Derek Gilcher (135); Logan Sanom (140); and Steven Kolcheff (285).

CC's Aiden Wagh now stands 30-7 overall after finishing runner-up to Dearborn Fordson's Ali Makki in the 171 final, 1-0.

Catholic Central's Easton Turner (right) edged Franklin's Mannie Willie for the 215-pound district title. SCOTT CONFER

Other records for Saline regional qualifiers from CC include Yatooma (29-8), Cox (32-5), Moscovic (29-6), Lamazzo (28-8), Turner (29-1), Edmond (14-0), Gilcher (29-5), Sanom (35-6) and Kolcheff (29-6).

"The goal was to come in here and perform, wrestle hard, and to make gains as we move towards the state tournament," CC coach Mitch Hancock. "We have a few adjustments to make and we look forward to this week of practice to prepare properly."

Busting up the CC domination at Novi was Livonia Franklin's Russ Rusnell, who improved to 44-6 with a 2-0 decision over Dearborn's Aaron Garcia in the 112-pound final. The other winner was Dearborn Heights Crestwood's Zein Bazzi (103).

Franklin was next best to CC with a total of eight individual regional qualifiers, led runner-up finishers Mannie Willie (215), Jake Swirple (285) and Johnny DiPonio (135).

"Russ, Johnny, Marino, Manee and Jake were all high seeds and have been to regionals before, so we expected then to do well," Franklin coach David Chiola said. "Hopefully they can use that experience. Howie wrestled well and is a senior, so I was really happy for him."

serve the opportunity to compete, which is why so many of them wrestled tonight."

Here's How It Works: Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!
