Theatre Historical Society tours landmark

The marquee was lit. The smell of nachos was in the air. The band played on the sidewalk.

This was the scene Wednesday evening at the State Wayne Theater in Wayne as dozens of members of the Theatre Historical Society of America descended upon the multi-screen complex to see the landmark building. With the organization's annual conclave taking place in southeast Michigan this past week, the group stopped by the theater at 35310 W. Michigan Ave. and was welcomed by a reception thrown by Phoenix Theatres, which owns the State Wayne.

The visit marks the first time the Pittsburgh-based organization visited the State Wayne Theater in its history, one that Phoenix Theatre owner Cory Jacobson said was a milestone for the 71-year-old theater. He said the group was connected to the theater by local theater historian Mike Hauser, who had the Wayne theater added to the list of places to tour.

"In this situation, they wanted to come and see the theater and see the marquee and enjoy it," he said. "So I said, 'We're going to do something special for them at the State Wayne' and I thought it was important for us, because not only do you have people from all over the United States, but all over the world. I think it's pretty interesting to welcome them to Wayne and the community and to this theater."

The group, which came 85 strong to the four-screen theater, enjoyed live music on the sidewalk and a buffet dinner before heading inside to screen "Indiana Jones and the Last Crusade," which will celebrate its 30th anniversary in the coming months.

EATING WITH A PASSION

Summer festivals are paradise for gourmands

Food, glorious food! With that refrain from the musical "Oliver!" gourmands can celebrate the abundance of eats available at tents, trailers and food trucks across the area as the festival season, in the words of celebrity chef Guy Fieri, kicks it up a notch.

kitchens serving ethnic dishes to corn roasts and chicken barbecues sponsored by local service organizations, this summer's festival-goers have plenty of options for pleasing their palates.

Last week's 27th annual Liberty Fest in Canton Township was a festival foodie's dream, with a food truck rally and the restaurants participating in Taste of Liberty Fest offering their wares in the area around the amphitheater, plus more traditional concessions, like popcorn, cotton candy and, yes, deep-fried Oreos, scattered among the carnival attractions at Heritage Park.

"For me, it's kind of like an adventure," Tameesha Holmes of Westland said Friday after ordering a pork sandwich — the La Mancha — from Simply Spanish, billed as the only food truck in Michigan that serves authentic

Alzheimer's, dementia documentary airs June 27

Dealing with Dad
Dan Dean
USA TODAY NETWORK — MICHIGAN

A sold-out Royal Music Theater audience got a preview June 3 of Keith Famie's documentary "Those on the Front Lines of Alzheimer's & Dementia" and the full-length documentary hosted by JoAnne Puritan will air at 9 p.m. Wednesday, June 27, on WTVS-TV (Channel 56), Detroit Public TV.

I first met Famie when he reached out after I wrote a column about dealing with my dad and dementia. He invited me along as he filmed and interviewed many locals for his documentary. He even invited us to share dad's story for his film.

I had no idea that this terrible disease would reach me and have such a profound affect on my life. It hit hard, it hit fast and has left us reeling with not only sadness, but incredible stress as we navigate the waters of caring for both our parents and our own families simultaneously. As Famie states below, if you have a head with a brain in it, you'll do yourself a favor and pay attention, gain knowledge ahead of time and plan for your own cognitive future and the future of your family.

Below are 11 questions with Famie about "Those on the Front Lines of Alzheimer's & Dementia."

Hometown: Dementia is not exactly a sexy subject. Why spend two years filming a documentary that is not only a tough subject to talk, about, but one that few want to hear about?

Famie: If you ask most aging baby boomers what scares them the most about aging and illness, just about everyone's first concerns is losing their cognitive health, knowing what this would mean for loved ones left caring

Theater

In addition to the State Wayne Theater, the society had several prominent area theaters on its agenda to visit, including the Crosswell Opera House in Adrian, the Fox Theatre in Detroit and the State Theatre in Ann Arbor.

Richard Fosbrink, president and CEO of the Theatre Historical Society of America and a Pittsburgh resident, said he had not been to the State Wayne Theatre before, but was impressed, especially by the signage facing the road.

"It's a spectacular marquee," said Fosbrink, who lived in Detroit for three years while attending graduate school at Wayne State University. "It's massive, curved and has the great vertical sign. Not many of these are left."

Hauser said bringing the group to Wayne was an obvious choice when looking for historical theaters in the area, continuing to have the historic glow about it but with the modern conveniences like the reclining seats at all Phoenix Theatres. The State Wayne celebrated its 70th anniversary last year with a giant party and continued that celebration Wednesday night with theater-goers from all over the world.

"It's also been meticulously maintained by Cory and his staff," Hauser said. "It's got so much great history to it, too."

Tasty Kabob features Lebanese cuisine

Darrell Clem
Hometownlife.com
USA TODAY NETWORK - MICHIGAN

Mike Sobh smiled as he took sizzling-hot chicken off the kitchen grill, sliced it and rolled it up with grilled veggies, rice and spices into a large sandwich wrap.

Next, he turned his attention to a fattoush salad with toasted pita bread, topped off with a generous portion of char-grilled chicken. All the while, a big pot of yellow lentil soup simmered on the stove.

Sobh seemed to give his best effort to every order at his restaurant, Tasty Kabob, which serves up authentic Lebanese cuisine at 8207 Middlebelt, south of Joy, in Westland.

"This is the real deal," he said.

Sobh came from Lebanon in 1987 and brought with him the recipes and flavors of his homeland. With his brother, he opened his first restaurant, the former Pineland, on the same site of what is now Tasty Kabob.

Now, the restaurant has received a makeover and Sobh runs it with his wife Nana. Their two sons, ages 16 and 19, and two daughters, 17 and 21, pitch in to help.

Sobh has added new recipes and spices to an extensive menu, which offers jumbo shrimp kabobs, lamb chops, fried kibbee, chicken kaftas, grape leaves and beef or lamb shish kabobs, among numerous other dishes.

He also gave the eatery its new name, saying he believed Tasty Kabob had broader appeal and spoke to the quality of the food served there. The restaurant draws customers ranging from local families to Westland police officers to business people grabbing a quick lunch.

"I'm happy with my customers," Sobh said. "They are very nice and friendly. They are like family."

Employee Sonia Maamari, who worked for about 20 years with Sobh at Pineland and now Tasty Kabob, also is like family. She can name the menu items that are among the most popular.

One customer favorite is the Tasty Kabob Plate, which feeds three to four people and comes with a shish kabob, shish kafta, shish tawook, falafel, fried kibbee, grape leaves, chicken shawarma, meat shawarma, hommous (the restaurant's spelling of the popular dish), rice and salad.

"The customers really like it," Maamari said.

Families can mix their own combo meals and Maamari said another favorite is Mike's Combo, which feeds up to six people with three shish kabobs, three shish kaftas, four shish tawooks, three boneless chicken breasts, hommous, baba ghanouj rice and salad.

Customers simply looking for a sandwich can choose from more than 20, such as the super falafel, the chicken kafta and the vegetarian ghallaba, among others, or they can opt for other menu items such as fish and chips or a salmon kabob.

Maamari said Tasty Kabob also has fresh juices in flavors such as mango, banana, carrot, apple and strawberry, while dessert items include baklava and rice pudding.

Sobh tries to be a good neighbor in the Westland community by offering discounts to senior citizens and Westland city employees. He said Tasty Kabob also delivers within an eight-mile radius, offers catering for special events, accepts reservations and partners with online services such as grubhub.com to offer online ordering.

Sobh is hopeful his restaurant can be successful for years to come. If so, he hasn't ruled out opening another eatery someday.

"Maybe in the future," he said, with a smile.

Food

Spanish food.

Holmes said she usually heads for "something you can't find anywhere else" when it's time to eat at festivals.

"Anything you can walk with," she said, listing pizza and shish kebab as examples. "You're constantly moving, going to the next tent to see things there."

Holmes said she's a fan of festival food because "you get a chance to try it all."

Simply Spanish, owned by Xavi Vittal, who hails from Valencia, on Spain's Mediterranean coast, is in its fifth year year of operation, but only its second year traveling to different locations, server Susan Naveen said. The truck could formerly be found at the now-closed Mark's Carts food truck lot in Ann Arbor.

"Once people try, they love our food," Naveen said. "This is, like, straight from Spain."

There were seven food trucks Friday at Liberty Fest and Evan Sweet, a Canton Leisure Services facility specialist who organized the event's food offerings, said it's a growing trend. There were none in 2016, Sweet's first year as Liberty Fest food czar.

"We're trying to bring things that people can't get every day to the festival," Sweet said.

Canton also has a food truck rally, as part of a benefit for the Canton Farmers Market, planned for next month.

At Crêpe Day Twah, a traveling crêperie adorned with fancy lettering and a miniature copy of the Eiffel Tower, owner Johnny Keith said patrons are often surprised to find crêpes can be made savory as well as sweet. Crêpe Day Twah is in its second year.

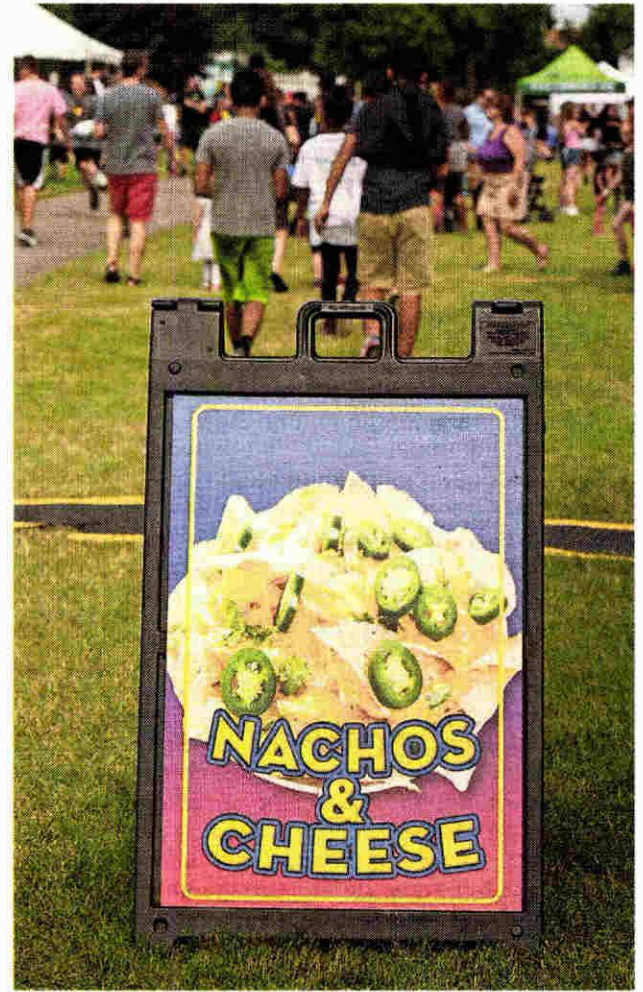

"People come back for seconds, always," Keith said, adding, "It's not your everyday option."

John Curdi of Canton had picked up beef brisket tacos, for himself and wife Susie, from Cosa Sabrosa, a Mexican food truck. He's been attending Liberty Fest for a few years, but Curdi said it was only the second time he'd ever tried festival food.

"You have such a wide variety of choices to offer," he said. "I think that's an awesome thing."

Other food trucks at Liberty Fest included Naughty Boys Rolled Ice Cream, Nu Deli (an Indian flair), the Come As You Are Smoke House Grill and Kabob Kart. Taste of Liberty Fest participants included the Chopstick House, Cold Stone Creamery, Krispy's Fish & Chicken Market.

Insurance isn't for everyone in all situations

Money Matters
Rick Bloom
USA TODAY NETWORK —
MICHIGAN

Q: I am recently divorced and have a couple of questions about insurance. I'm in my mid-40s, divorced, with no children. In the divorce, my ex-husband got the house and I got about $150,000 in cash. As opposed to buying a house, I am renting. My salary more than covers all my expenses. Other than about $25,000 in cash, the rest of my money has been invested in a long-term growth portfolio geared for my retirement. I am also saving in my company's 401(k) plan. I was approached by a friend of a friend who is a life insurance agent and he told me that I should buy life insurance and he recommended eight times my yearly salary. My initial reaction was I don't need life insurance, but I wanted to get your opinion. Someone at my credit union recommended that I buy a renter's insurance policy. Is this something that you would recommend? You should know that since my husband got the house in the divorce, I had to buy all new furniture.

A: I don't believe that everyone needs life insurance. Life insurance is no different than any other type of insurance in the fact that it's need-based. If I didn't own a boat, there would be no reason to have boat insurance. If I didn't have a car, I wouldn't need auto insurance. Inurance is need-based and is meant to cover a risk.

With life insurance, the risk is not that you are going to die — we all know that eventually we will. The risk that life insurance covers is if you die and don't have the financial resources to support those who are financially dependent upon you. Life insurance would be needed for someone who is the sole bread winner of the family and who does not have the financial resources upon death to support the family. In your particular situation, where no one is financially dependent upon you, there is no reason you would need life insurance. As far as I'm concerned, the agent is solely looking at what's good for their bottom line, not yours.

Renter's insurance is generally something I would recommend. Renter's insurance provides you protection if for some reason your personal property is destroyed. A typical renter's insurance policy would cover such things as your furniture, computers, clothing and other personal possessions.

Like all types of insurance, you should shop around. You would be surprised how much rates differ within companies. In addition to your credit union, which generally has very good rates, it does pay for you to receive a competitive bid from another company. The money you save looks better in your pocket than it does anywhere else.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Supports net neutrality

My name is Andrew Carl, I am a Boy Scout from Troop 271 and am working toward my communications merit badge. I would like to state my opinion on net neutrality. I believe that all ISPs should treat all data equally because people should be able to browse and use apps/websites that they want freely. I think that some people may have different opinions on services like Discord and Spotify. If some people choose to use those services then that is their choice and they should not be criticized for it. I also feel that it is an infringement of free will to block use of these particular services.

I believe that if someone pays for internet, then they should be able to use it at its full potential. I do not think that ISPs should be able to deprive the user of using certain services or websites differently than any other person. All people browsing the internet should be treated the same way. User's internet should not be limited or decreased due to the services and websites that they use. In my opinion it is an infringement of free will to limit or block use of services. ISPs should not be allowed to limit data on services that they do not own or officially manage. That is my personal opinion about this controversial event.

I think that many people have a similar opinion as me in this topic. I think that there are the majority of internet users believe that they should be able to use any services equally. Thank you for reading my paper and listening to my opinion. I hope other people will agree with me and this issue will be solved.

Sincerely,
Andrew Carl

Is Ford Road close to becoming less treacherous?

Ed Wright
hometownlife.com
USA TODAY NETWORK — MICHIGAN

Canton Township's nine-year quest to add crash-reducing boulevards along a 2.5-mile stretch of Ford Road was injected with a shot of momentum Monday in the form of a letter from the Michigan Department of Transportation.

In the correspondence addressed to township Supervisor Pat Williams, MDOT pledged its funding support to Canton's Ford Road Boulevard project if an Aug. 7 ballot initiative asking residents to approve a 1.45-mill hike is approved.

The $5.6 million generated by an approved millage would go strictly to roads improvement in Canton.

Major county roads (Warren, Cherry Hill and Canton Center, to name three) would receive 55 percent of the funding; 35 percent would be earmarked for subdivision roads, while 15 percent would go toward improving state-owned roads, the category in which Ford Road is slotted.

Engineering studies predict crashes along Ford Road would be reduced by 35 percent with the addition of boulevards, saving drivers an estimated $4 million per year.

Williams said the Ford Road boulevards would be similar to the ones that separate northbound and southbound lanes of Telegraph Road, not the wider medians that divide Michigan Avenue.

"The majority of the accidents that occur now on Ford Road involve left-hand turns from the center lane," Williams said. "With a boulevard, these dangerous turns would be eliminated."

Williams said many of the most serious accidents along the treacherous stretch of Ford are caused by "polite" left turns, when cars traveling in the opposite direction of the turning car stop to create space for the vehicle to turn. Collisions occur when oncoming drivers in the far lane are obscured from the turning vehicle.

MDOT decided to offer financial support pending a millage approval because it wanted to see the township put "more skin in the game," Williams explained.

"In order for the project to be more viable and attractive for funding, the township has to make Ford Road more 'shovel-ready,' meaning ready for actual construction to begin," Williams said.

Elusive TIGER

Canton has applied for federal Transportation Investment Generating Economic Recovery (TIGER) grants nine consecutive years up to this point, so MDOT's support (pending the millage hike approval) is encouraging, Williams noted.

"Ford Road has gotten so bad that people go out of their way to avoid it," Williams said. "Two of its intersections (Ford/Haggerty and Ford/Sheldon) were recently listed on the top 20 most dangerous intersections in Michigan.

"The addition of boulevards along Ford Road would make it so much safer to drive on."

The creation of boulevards on Ford Road was a recommended alternative in the 2013 traffic and environmental study approved by Canton Township, MDOT and the Federal Highway Administration.

"No one has ever argued that the addition of boulevards would not make Ford Road much, much safer," Williams said. "The problem has always been the funding of such a project."

To figure out how much an approved millage would cost a homeowner annually, take the taxable value of one's home and multiply it by .00145.

For instance, if the taxable value is $100,000, the owner would pay an additional $145 per year, roughly $12 per month.

If the August millage is approved, the Ford Road Boulevard project would be slotted into MDOT's 5-Year Plan.

Among the first steps to take place would be a detailed engineering design, which would allow engineers to determine the amount of property that would be required along Ford Road to install the boulevards.

Once that step is completed, appraisers would be tasked with negotiating the purchase of the property with private property owners.

In 2013, this was estimated to be approximately 2.35 acres.

for them. Unfortunately, these baby boomers have first-hand experience with this, having to care for their own parents or spouse. So while the production was challenging to start, once the research and initial interviews were completed, it was clear we had a very important story tell.

Hometown: What is the biggest lesson you have learned during the filming of "Those on the Front Lines of Alzheimer's & Dementia"?

Famie: Personally, I need to become far more aware of basic things like sleeping well at night, physical activity, how I eat and find the time to nurture brain-related activities.

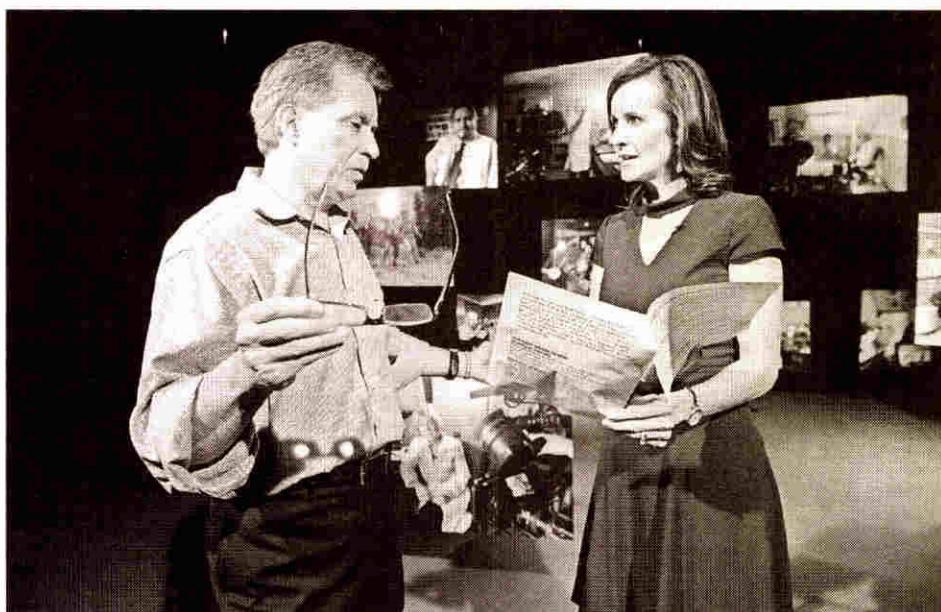

Hometown: Your dad died of complications from Alzheimer's. Was there a special motive pushing you during this film?

Famie: When my father died in 2003 after several years of his Alzheimer journey, I had a front row seat to his cognitive decline. Many times I tried to embark on this film, but just couldn't come up with the right direction. There is no question that my time caring for my dad was the catalyst behind the film.

Hometown: As a former celebrity chef, you know a thing or two about food. Is there anything new involving diet and dementia that has come to light?

Famie: We all have learned a great deal about what is good eating and not so good eating; common sense should be the first line of defense for everyone. You don't have to be a health guru to know that sugar-filled soft drinks or fast food is not good for you. With that being said, eating for brain health is the same as eating for body health, we are just now learning that foods good for cardio health are also good for brain health. So dark leafy greens, blueberries, lean meats like chicken, turkey, diet low-fat meats and dairy — all as organic as possible, wild, fresh salmon, moderate consumption of alcohol and low consumption of alcohol well before bedtime, since it can disrupt your sleep.

One of the biggest takeaways was what we learned about the diet of the people who live in the Blue Zone region of Ogimi, Okinawa. They have some of the lowest rates of any dementias in the world, almost non-existent. One of the researchers who has studied their diet, Dr. Paul Alan Cox, came to the conclusion that they consume far more L'Serine through foods they eat than we do, like, off the charts amount. His studies focused on answering the question could a diet high in L'Serine actually become a protector to tangle diseases like Alzheimer's?

Hometown: Who needs to pay attention in the dementia battle and why?

Famie: Anyone who is walking and breathing with a head on their shoulders that has a brain in it. One thing I learned, for sure, we take our cognitive health for granted. Once a cognitive problem surfaces, the horse has left the gate, meaning it's too late to reverse the problem. The tangle-related diseases that are creating the plaques in your brain have been developing for years. So a simple way of looking at this is this: "How you live your life today will determine how you cognitively age tomorrow."

Hometown: Are there any funny stories that you can share from the filming of "Those on the Front Lines of Alzheimer's & Dementia"?

Famie: A few come to mind, When Teepa Snow was working with families at the Brown Center, she would interact with both care givers and dementia patients.

On a couple of instances when talking about living with their diseases, Teepa was interacting with the participants one on one. Many of them while trapped in this world were still quick-witted enough to come back with some one-liners we kept in the film. Larry Dean, when asked about his forgetfulness, quickly responded, "Sometimes I like to forget on purpose." Of course, everyone laughed and Debbie Horwitz sitting next to her mother Jane was surprised when Teepa was talking with her mom and commented that she has a beautiful daughter. Jane looked over at her and said, "Sometimes."

Hometown: If you were Michigan's next governor, would this be a topic you would pursue? If so how and why?

Famie: As a governor (for sure not in my cards) I would do everything in my power to protect our most precious resources of the water we drink and the water we play in. One very disturbing finding in our film is how we, as stewards of our environment, may be causing our own cognitive decline and not realizing it.

Hometown: How does the subject of dementia stack up with other tough subjects you have tackled as a documentary film producer?

Famie: All of our productions take us down a path of uncertainty; each one has offered complicated challenges. We never really know where the journey is going to take us. When dealing with very personal topics that involve family and loved ones facing life-altering circumstances, such as a disease like Alzheimer's, the challenges come with being able to build relationships of trust when I am filming and interviewing with those families. For me personally, each time I sat with a person, especially an older gentleman, I would find myself thinking deeply about my father Albert.

Hometown: Is there a dementia hero that emerged in your mind while filming this project?

Famie: Clearly that would be Teepa Snow. Her work in helping families better understand how to help a loved one who is on a journey with a form of dementia can be a game-changer for so many. I think also the heroes in this film are all those who were brave enough to allow us to share their very personal story in an effort to help others to learn.

Hometown: The film has plenty of local angles, but this is more than a local story?

Famie: The film is far more than a local story. While we hail proudly from Michigan, we filmed all over the country for this film. Dementia does not have a particular ZIP code. Anywhere you go in America, if you ask someone do they know of someone with a form of dementia, you will for sure hear "yes." An example is our beloved Robin Williams. We all know that he had died of suicide, but what many are not aware of, because they only recently found this out through an autopsy, is that his diagnosis of Parkinson's was incorrect. They now know that he was suffering from Lewy body dementia.

Hometown: What's next for Visionalist Entertainment Productions?

Famie: In the coming 16-24 months, we will embark on the film "Those on the Front Lines of Cancer" as well as a look at the life of Capuchin friar Solanus Casey for the film "Blessed Casey's Journey to Sainthood."

Dan Dean is content strategist for Hometown Life. Both of his parents live with dementia and his dad Larry is featured in "Those Living on the Front Lines Of Alzheimer's & Dementia."

Marian seeks to make it three straight in 2019

Marty Budner
hometownlife.com
USA TODAY NETWORK — MICHIGAN

There's no doubt the soccer bar is set high at Bloomfield Hills Marian.

That's the way veteran head coach Barry Brodsky likes it. Brodsky established that standard from the beginning and hasn't wavered from that approach.

In his 17 years at the helm, Brodsky's Mustangs have advanced to the final four of the state tournament 12 times. Marian owns seven Division 2 state championships and three runner-up trophies, losing in the semifinals on the other two occasions.

The latest state crown came June 16 at Williamston High School, where Marian doubled-up Grand Rapids Forest Hills Northern, 4-2. It was the second straight state title for the Mustangs, who also defeated the Huskies in the 2017 final, 2-1.

It marked the third time Brodsky's Mustang's have captured back-to-back state titles, giving them opportunity to make it three straight next spring.

Brodsky figures if it's going to happen during his tenure, it better happen next year.

"We've never gone any further than back-to-back," said Brodsky, whose career record is 317-26-36. "So you say is there motivation (to win a third straight)? There is. I'm too old to go for another couple years to try and win back-to-back again."

"So there's motivation to get three," he added. "I mean, there absolutely is."

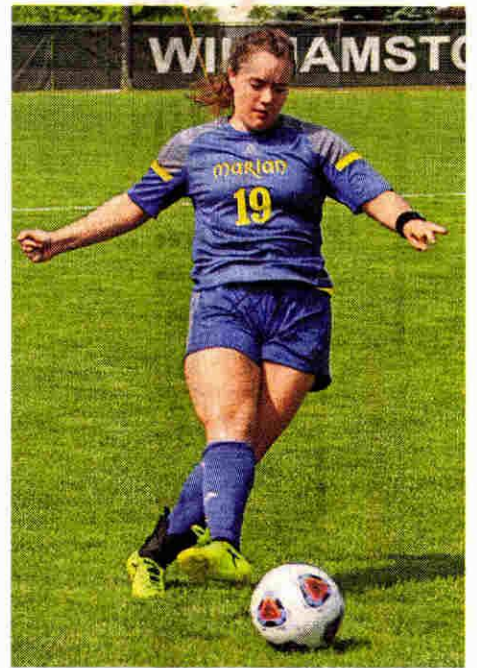

All about having fun

The Mustangs were nearly invincible this season.

They posted a near-perfect 22-0-1 record, with the only blemish a mid-season 1-1 draw with Catholic League rival Farmington Hills Mercy. The Mustangs captured the Catholic League Central Division and tournament championships in the regular season.

Top-ranked Marian was simply dominant in the postseason, outscoring its seven tourney opponents by a 44-3 Relaxed, but anxious, Davis Schiller is headed to boot camp next week at the U.S. Air Force Academy.

"I'm not too nervous. A lot of people told me I should be more nervous, but I think it's going to be a character-strengthening experience," Schiller said. "I'm honestly kind of looking forward to it."

The 2018 Cranbrook Kingswood

graduate is headed to the Air Force Academy, where he plans to further his academic and athletic careers while serving the country. The 18-year-old Beverly Hills resident excelled in lacrosse and hockey for the Cranes, but will play lacrosse in college.

Schiller had considered offers from various other Division 1 programs, including schools from the Ivy League, Big Ten, Patriot League and Atlantic Coast Conference. However, Air Force flew on-

Lewis gets nod as new Plymouth High coach

Brad Emons
hometownlife.com
USA TODAY NETWORK — MICHIGAN

A new era of Plymouth High School football has been ushered in with the naming Tuesday of Brian Lewis as the school's new varsity coach.

The 29-year-old Lewis spent the previous season guiding Ann Arbor Gabriel Richard to a 7-3 record, a Catholic League Prep Bowl appearance and a berth in the MHSAA Division 5 state playoffs.

Lewis replaces Mike Sawhuk, who stepped down in late April after 12 seasons to pursue another coaching and teaching position in Florida.

Sawhuk posted an overall record of 73-48 (not including seven forfeit losses during the 2012 season) while leading the Wildcats to eight state playoff berths, including a runner-up finish in the 2010 Division 1 state finals.

Lewis becomes the third new varsity football coach hired this year at Plymouth-Canton Educational Park, joining Justin Reed (Salem) and Andy Lafata (Canton).

Plymouth athletic director Luke Swanson said there were more than 30 applicants for the position and eight candidates were interviewed, but Lewis was able to separate himself.

"We actually went through three rounds of interviews and part of that was because we had some really highly qualified candidates but, obviously, Brian was the one that really impressed us at the end," Swanson said. "When we went out and found somebody, we were really looking for somebody who is going to be dedicated to

USA Hockey alums waiting to learn NHL futures

hometownlife.com
USA TODAY NETWORK — MICHIGAN

Young hockey players with god-given talent and a dream to skate in the National Hockey League find out this weekend at American Airlines Center in Dallas whether or not their hopes will take off or be stuck on the runway.

Anybody with a Hockeytown pulse knows that blue-chip defenseman Rasmus Dahlin will be Buffalo's selection with the No. 1 pick, shortly after the 2018 NHL Entry Draft begins at 7:30 p.m. Friday.

Seven players who took major leaps toward potential stardom the last two years in the Plymouth-based USA Hockey National Team Development Program stand an excellent chance to hear their name called during the televised opening round (NBC Sports Network).

"We're excited for our guys," NTDP head coach Seth Appert said as he prepared to travel Thursday to Dallas for the draft. "They've put a lot of work in during their two years here, but also throughout their careers and their life to this point."

"It's a very nice moment for them and their families, to have the opportunity to be called to the podium by a NHL team. It'd be a dream come true."

The Detroit Red Wings could select an NTDP alum, possibly defenseman Quinn Hughes (who played 2017-18 at Michigan), with the sixth pick. Perhaps off the board by then will be power forward Brady Tkachuk (Boston University last season), the No. 3 pick, according to the Hockey News.

Podium parade

Five other NTDP players from 2017-18 also could get to walk up to the podium, pull an NHL sweater over their head and stand next to their next coach and general manager.

That elite list includes forwards Oliver Wahlstrom and Joel Farabee and defensemen Bode Wilde (of Birmingham), K'Andre Miller and Mattias Samuelson. In the Hockey News draft preview, those players were listed between Nos. 8-31.

Centers Jake Wise and Jake Pivonka, also just two months removed from closing out their NTDP careers at the U-18 Worlds in Russia, could each be selected by the time the second and third rounds wrap up Saturday.

Other teammates might still be waiting to hear their name called as the final four rounds (each with 31 selections) are finalized on Day 2 of the proceedings.

That is the nerve-wracking part, as far as Appert is concerned.

"It can be a stressful time," Appert said about the waiting game for still-young players who have worked their entire lives to position themselves for pro careers. "Draft day, draft weekend, can be agonizing at times for guys this age. I think sometimes we forget that they're still young men."

"They're being watched on national television, they're sitting there waiting, hopefully not too long, to hear their name called. What I try to remind them is to enjoy it, to have fun, to embrace the moment with their family and their friends."

A long wait

Appert wasn't with USA Hockey in 2016-17, but a very similar scenario played out as defenseman Philip Kemp wasn't drafted until near the end of the final round — virtually 24 hours after the bright lights shone on top pick Nico Hischier.

Kemp was the 208th pick of the 2017 draft, taken by the Edmonton Oilers. He played last season for Yale University and has not yet signed with Edmonton.

Whether a player gets the call or not, Appert emphasized that they will continue to follow the USA Hockey guidebook and do all the right things as they prepare for whatever comes next in 2018-19 and beyond.

"What we're always concerned about here is getting them, developing them, giving them the skills on and off the ice that are going to keep carrying forward for them to have careers in the National Hockey League," Appert said. "Not just to be drafted."

He cited things such as poise, maturity, knowing how to handle expectations of professional hockey life.

"Those are critical skills," Appert said. "The work ethic, the commitment, the discipline that you need to be a world-class athlete, it's incredible. There's a lot of things that can get in the way. ... Those are things we preach about on a daily basis."

Appert also said that although it is gratifying to see seven NTDP players potentially be drafted in the first round, all that means is USA Hockey is doing its job.

"That's something we're supposed to do here," Appert said. "That's part of our mission, it's to develop the next wave of elite, American NHL players."

"Does it feel good? Yeah, absolutely, it feels good that we're doing the things necessary to attract the type of young men we get and then to enhance their development in their two years. But like I said, that is part of our mission, that's our goal ... we'll just try to keep getting better every year."

Anderson takes over reins at Franklin from Phelps

hometownlife.com
USA TODAY NETWORK — MICHIGAN

Livonia Franklin boys hockey will have a new voice behind the bench for the 2018-19 season as Ken Anderson is taking over the varsity reins for Dan Phelps.

Anderson, 50, posted a record of 122-147-13 in 12 seasons for the North Farmington-Harrison unified team, which will be combined for the 2018-19 season with Farmington High. The Flyers finished 1-23 during his final season.

Prior to his stint with the Flyers, Anderson served as an assistant coach under Pete Mazzoni at Livonia Churchill.

"I was familiar with the high school hockey in Livonia and how important it is and I'm excited to be a part of it," Anderson said.

Anderson posted his best season in 2009-10 with the Flyers, who finished 16-6-2 overall and captured the OAA Red Division.

"Certainly he came with a lot of high recommendations from a lot of people in high school coaching that I think the world of," Franklin athletic director Ron Hammye said of Anderson. "He had some excellent references and he came in and impressed me as a good teacher of the game and somebody who was interested in developing a program."

Anderson

Anderson, who works for a Detroit-area power industrial group, attended Redford Union High School before graduating from Marquette.

"I'd like to play an aggressive style; hockey is a fast game," Anderson said. "As long as everybody is working together, I think you can afford to be aggressive, even against your better teams. It depends, of course, when you have to lay back. But my overall style is be aggressive, get after it and don't make many mistakes."

Phelps went 8-17-1 in back-to-back seasons with the Patriots before stepping down earlier this spring to take a coaching position with Victory Honda's U-16 team.

Phelps coached eight seasons at Novi

High starting the program there in 1998. He also spent two years in the Central States Hockey League Tier III/Junior A and was a coach and administrator for six seasons at Adrian College men's hockey club program (2008-14) going 165-65.

He joined Franklin's staff as a volunteer assistant in 2015-16 under Dennis Gagnon before taking the Patriots head coaching position after Gagnon resigned to take the Milford High job.

"I left on a good accord, I left on a good note. It's just a choice I made and looking to pursue some other things," Phelps said.

being in the building with the kids and helping them be successful in their academics, as well as their athletics."

Lewis, who also spent two seasons as an assistant at Gabriel Richard (2015-16), played football, baseball and basketball at Warren De La Salle, where he graduated in 2007.

He was the quarterback as the Pilots reached the 2006 Division 2 title game before losing to Muskegon, 32-30. He also was on the 2007 De La Salle basketball team that reached the Class A state semifinals.

Lewis graduated in 2011 from the University of Michigan, where he served as a football student assistant and manager under head coach Rich Rodriguez. He also worked under Brady Hoke for a year in recruiting operations and then as an offensive analyst for three years before going into the high school ranks.

"I think the Plymouth program is a unique, unique entity in itself, because of the values and core values that coach Sawchuk has instilled into this program," said Lewis, who lives in Pinckney with his wife Teddi and daughter Evelyn. "He built the program from the ground up. And from an outsider looking in and a guy that recruited one of his players, his program is based on integrity, hard work, accountability ... those are some things that are already instilled into these kids, which makes it a unique job to come open. It's just a phenomenal community with great families, great support system and this is an intriguing job."

In Sawchuk's final season, Plymouth finished 4-5 overall and 3-3 in the Black Division of the Kensington Lakes Activities Association. The Wildcats open their 2018 season at 3:30 p.m. Friday, Aug. 24, at the Battle of the Big House at U-M Stadium.

"As far as scheme goes, we're going to try and be a physical football team that runs the football, move the chains and, hopefully, get some chunk plays as we go with some of the weapons that we have," Lewis said. "On defense, we're going to play together and we're going to swarm to the football and try get 11 hats to the football as we play."

On Tuesday, Lewis held a meet and greet with the players and started team workouts Wednesday.

"We just want to play together," Lewis said. "We just want to play as one collective unit. We're going to predicate ourselves on being guys that work really hard, put forth max effort in everything we do. We're just going to stick together through thick and thin, through good times and bad times. We're going to be a team when you walk on the field and you're going to be proud because we're a team. And we're going to see adversity throughout our year and all men are judged in their adversity situations. So hopefully, we're going to stick together and that's what we'll do."

Mike Lewis, who played football at Detroit Catholic Central and Eastern Michigan University, will follow his son to Plymouth and become the Wildcats defensive coordinator.

"He's the first piece of the pie," Brian Lewis said of his father. "And as far as the rest of the staff goes ... (Sawchuk) had a great staff here and trying to sit down and talk with those guys this week and into next week and, hopefully, we can have something solidified here, hopefully by the end of next week, but it's hard to put a time table on these things."

In addition to being hired as the third varsity coach in school history, Lewis has also been contracted to teach physical education and health starting in the fall at Plymouth High School.

"I'm a teacher first, coach second," Lewis said. "So knowing that I'll be in the building, being able to be around these kids and seeing these kids on a daily basis and build relationships with them, that's huge."

Swanson said Lewis checked off many boxes and fit the bill as the prime coaching candidate during the interview process.

"Leadership, just a desire to learn, to always have that growth mindset, someone who really cares about kids and kind of the holistic student-athlete and somebody who is dedicated to leading to the department as a whole as well," Swanson said. "I think we were impressed with the way he approached the interviews, his experience and background and he's somebody who is going to come in here and be here for a while, take care of our kids and be successful."

Marian

margin. The Mustangs shut out five of those foes while averaging six goals per game. Their closest result was a 1-0 semifinal victory over DeWitt, while Forest Hills Northern was the only team to score twice against the stingy Mustangs defense.

Annie Bruce, a senior tri-captain who will attend Marquette next year but will not play soccer, indicated it's all about having fun at Marian.

"Barry always says to us, 'Just play to have fun,'" Bruce said following the victory over Northern. "Everything is over. We made it to (the state championship game) and that was our main goal. He just wanted to see us go on the pitch and have fun. So that's all we came to do."

"It was a pretty crazy season and I'm just really glad with the way we performed," she added. "I can't even express in words just how fantastic it is."

The Mustangs will enter next year on a 47-game unbeaten streak and, with 18 underclassmen on this year's roster, figure to be strong title contenders in 2019.

Junior Jansen Eichenlaub will return next year to lead the offense. The speedy Virginia-bound forward led the team with 33 goals this season while finishing with a team-high 44 points.

Marian's other starters who figure to return next year are juniors Neve Badalow (defense) and Sara Stroud (midfield) and sophomores Kate Hughes (forward), Anna Leonard (defense) and Chloe Aberlarde (forward). Marian's two goalies — junior Megan Krause and freshman Annabella Deinse — will be seasoned veterans.

"We gave up two goals (against Forest Hills Northern) in a game for the first time, I think, since March," Brodsky said. "I can't give enough credit to Anna in the back and Neve Badalow and Sara Stroud, those are players who maybe aren't scoring many goals, but they are the heart and soul of the team in the back. They get the hardest assignments and they do a great job."

"I can't say enough about the toughness of the Marian kids, because our coaching staff is tough," he added. "We're not easy to play for and some people can't do it. We've had people come from clubs and they can't handle it and they leave. For us and the players who stay, they get a good experience out of it and it makes them tough."

Marian's 'secret formula'

Marian's six seniors — Claudia Schilling, Grace Kinna, Rayya Harb, Julia Surratt, Emme Deconinck and Bruce — certainly left a strong legacy.

"We only had six seniors this year, but they were the players who glued the team together," Brodsky said. "Not all of them played, but you need those players who are willing to be part of the team and I think that's our secret formula.

"Two years ago, when Claudia Schilling committed to Western (Michigan University), I said to her that I want to get a state championship for you before you leave. And she said, 'Barry, let's get two.' And she did. She did it."

"We have enough players who want to be part of the team and that's a great thing. Just like the coaches, we just want to be part of the team because it's fun. We've got a good team," he added. "We've got an abundance of talent. But you can go up and down (Divisions) 1, 2, 3 and 4, a lot of teams have a lot of talent and, if you don't put it together as a team, you're not going to win. And these kids put it together as a team."

Next year's group hopes to put it together again and take the program to unprecedented heights with a historic three-peat.

to his radar early as he committed to the Colorado Springs-based service academy the summer before his junior year.

"I was going on recruiting trips to different colleges and I never really thought the Air Force Academy is where I would end up," said Schiller, who did not apply to any other school but Air Force. "But I visited it and, first off, the grounds are beautiful. It's right on the edge of the Rocky Mountains. The coach showed me around and convinced me it is the right place to go and I think it is."

"I loved my official visit. There's nothing else like it," he added. "I also was thinking about my grandpa, who served in World War II, and my other grandpa, who served in the Vietnam War, and I wanted to continue that lineage as well."

Early student of the game

Schiller started playing lacrosse in the second grade as a member of the Birmingham Bulldogs, where he played for his dad Ralph, who played lacrosse at Indiana's Culver Military Academy. He continued to hone his skills with the True Michigan program, where he was a national team member. He also was a three-time participant in the Jake Reed Blue Chip Showcase and a two-time player in the Maverick Showtime Showcase.

Schiller went on to play four years of varsity lacrosse as a starter for head coach Mat Wilson at Cranbrook Kingswood. The hard-working attack was a member of the 2015 Division 2 state championship team, was a three-time all-state player and an All-American this year.

As a senior captain, Schiller scored 60 goals with 35 assists and was named team co-MVP along with Grant Coleman. In a 10-9 victory over St. Mike's (Ontario), he scored nine times and assisted on the other goal. In his junior season, Schiller averaged six points per game before tearing his ACL midway through the season. He topped 50 goals as a sophomore.

In hockey, Schiller played defense for three years under veteran head coach Andy Weidenbach. He was named CK's hardest worker as a junior by the team's strength coach Cliff Ewald. Schiller, who played travel hockey since age 9, did not play hockey as a senior due to injury.

"I've been playing lacrosse for a long time and I also played hockey and I think that influences how I play lacrosse, too," Schiller said. "It's crazy how much similarity that there is between the two sports. I couldn't play hockey this past year, which was kind of a bummer, but I spent that time rehabbing my knee and focusing on lacrosse, which I think really helped my shot. I gained a lot of power.

"And my travel coach, Dan Catzere, helped my skills a lot. I've gained a lot of strength and that helped a lot," he added. "And I have a signature move now — the jump shot I always take — and that was actually my dad who helped me with it in the backyard on summer nights."

Well-prepared by Cranbrook

While he played both attack and midfield at Cranbrook Kingswood, Schiller said he was recruited mainly as an offensive middle.

"Lacrosse is going to be one of the biggest draws of my time (at the Air Force Academy) and I'm really excited about playing there," he said. "Traditionally, Air Force has been a really good team and they're usually in the top 20, although this year they had a down year. But I think we're going to be really good next year because there are a lot of good recruits coming in from schools out east."

As part of the Cranbrook Kingswood school system since the fourth grade, Schiller believes he is well-prepared for college. He took AP computer science classes this past year and hopes to continue that line of education at the Air Force.

"Cranbrook has prepared me for the next level, both academically and athletically. They develop you as a student and, athletically, they really taught me how to play," Schiller said. "I loved it all the way through at Cranbrook and there are a lot of good people there who are just pushing you to do your best."

"When I was really little, I always wanted to be a navy SEAL, because I just thought those guys were so cool. But I really hadn't thought about joining the military since then up until now. I know I'm going to get a world-class education. The academy tends to focus on cyber security and all kinds of different things that have to do with computer science."

"At the academy, it's way more than an education that they give you," he added. "There are leadership components that are invaluable later in life. I'm really looking forward to it and I know I'm going to love it."

And it will start with boot camp.

Cranbrook Kingswood repeats as state champs

Marty Budner
hometownlife.com
USA TODAY NETWORK — MICHIGAN

Defending a state championship is never easy.

The Cranbrook Kingswood girls lacrosse team not only managed to defend its Division 2 state crown this year, but accomplished the task with a new head coach.

The Cranes, led by head coach Greg Courter, captured the 2017 title with a 17-16 overtime victory over East Grand Rapids. This spring, led by rookie head coach Evan Foulsham, Cranbrook Kingswood captured its second straight state championship June 9 with an 18-6 victory over Okemos.

Foulsham

Cranbrook Kingswood finished the season with an impressive 17-1-1 record and a stellar No. 16 national ranking. Its only loss was to Rockford (18-8) and the tie was to Forest Hills Central (8-8).

"There are a lot of emotions about winning as a first-year coach and I'm, obviously, ecstatic with the outcome," said Foulsham, who grew up in northern New Jersey, where she attended Madison High School. "It was a lot for the girls to come out of a championship year into a season with a coach they've never met and a vision they weren't used to, but they fully bought into the goal and invested in the vision and that's really hard to do as a player. I'm really thankful to have a fantastic group of girls."

Foulsham, who played four years of lacrosse as a defender at Penn State University, said her team had visions of repeating right from the season's onset.

Smooth transition

After all, the Cranes certainly had some talented players returning, including standout offensive stars in Isabelle Scane, Sophia Milia and Jessica Geiger. Brigitte Ballard, the winning goalie in last year's title-game thriller over East Grand Rapids, was back between the pipes. Senior co-captains Delaney Langdon and Scane were veteran team members.

Cranbrook Kingswood captured its second straight girls lacrosse state championship June 9, under first-year head coach Evan Foulsham.

They all helped make Foulsham's initial season as head coach a smooth transition.

"After the girls won last year, they knew what it felt like to come home with a championship and they put their minds to doing that again," Foulsham said. "From day one, they had their sights on it and they worked every day to make sure it happened. They showed up (for the title game) fired up and ready to leave it all on the field to come home with a championship. With all the work they've put in this season, they deserved it."

Freshman midfielder Mallory Brophy scored the first goal for Cranbrook Kingswood 39 seconds into the championship game, but Okemos senior midfielder Emily Renfrew scored five minutes later to tie the score. The Cranes scored four of the next six goals and held a slim 5-3 halftime lead.

Cranbrook Kingswood took charge by scoring five of the second half's first six goals en route to a 10-4 lead. The Chieftains would make it 10-6, but the Cranes finished out the game with eight unanswered goals.

"We were a little on edge the first half and understandably so — the girls just needed to get the jitters out," Foulsham said. "Our halftime talk was about back to basics and not over-thinking the game and they came out in the second half and did just that. We definitely made more of a mental shift for that second half.

"I can definitely relate to the girls' feelings after winning. As a coach, I view the tournament through a different lens than a player would and my overall goal is to help develop these girls into strong, confident young women.

"Obviously, I love to win and want the girls to win every game, but I also know a season isn't measured by wins and losses, but our growth as individuals and a team," she added. "That being said, I couldn't be happier for the girls, not only growing tremendously this year, but coming away with the win."

SUDOKU

Here's How It Works:
Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

LEXUS KEEPS GETTING IT RIGHT AS F-SPORT VERSION ADDS PERFORMANCE VIBE TO BRAND'S ICONIC RX 350 SUV LINEUP

How do you build on perfection? You make it sporty! That's what Lexus has done with the F-Sport version of its iconic RX 350 mid-size SUV, lending a bit of a black-trimmed, menacing vibe to a vehicle that has made a great living for decades as the ideal family getaway transporter.

And while the F-Sport version has only been around a couple of years, it represents a welcome dimensionalization of the nameplate that actually defined the luxury-SUV segment. The other major thing that Lexus has done lately with RX is to add a long-awaited three-row version.

Lexus has been in front of its fans lately in part because of its sponsorship of the just-completed U.S. Open men's golf tournament at Shinnecock Hills in Long Island, and also because the brand just launched a new marketing campaign that focuses on performance capabilities.

The new TV advertisements focus on Lexus's increasing lineup of performance vehicles, and fast versions of its other nameplates — and how they're built in Japan. Called "Performance: Crafted to the Extreme," the campaign includes TV ads that peek into Lexus factories building models including the LC 500 and GS-F, showing how high-tech assembly coupled with "Takumi mastery" yields "extreme exhilaration

The 2018 Lexus RX 350 F-Sport provides a sporty interpretation of the iconic nameplate on the road," Lexus said.

"Takumi" is the name of master workers who "preserve Lexus traditions and pass on valuable skills and processes, making certain every aspect of each Lexus vehicle is flawless," the company said. There are just 19 Takumi amid the 7,700 workers at the Miyata Lexus Plant in Kyushi, for instance. They make sure painstaking attention to detail is paid to the cars, which feature titanium engine components, aerodynamically sculpted bodies and extensive track testing.

Exciting product helps, too. Under CEO Akio Toyoda, the Toyota-owned luxury brand has been stepping up its development and production of performance vehicles and also hitting the re-set button on the exterior and interior of Lexus cars and SUVs, giving them a new, more dynamic styling language that is more consistent with the sportier image the brand wants to convey.

RX F-Sport has become a prime exemplar of Lexus's more pulse-pounding approach. For the new version of the entire RX line last year, Lexus cranked the styling volume up with an outsized front end that's punctuated by a yawning black grille, a roof that seems to float, and a lot more creases and bends in its surface treatment. Yet Lexus retained the line's classic raised seating position, comfortable interior and cargo-friendly confines.

Americans have responded enthusiastically by boosting RX sales. Lexus moved more than 100,000 of them last year, making it the brand's best-selling vehicle.

Then came RX F-Sport. With a base price of $51,295, F-Sport doesn't get a bump in power over the base RX, meaning that horsepower remains at 295 and torque at 268 pound-feet. But the F-Sport package does offer an adaptive suspension, 20-inch wheels and sportier materials inside the cabin.

In F-Sport as in its regular cousin, the engine provides trademark pick-me-up, smooth acceleration, and seamless shifts from the eight-speed automatic transmission. F-Sport's braking has been calibrated to be grabby from the get-go, which is a nice performance feature.

And despite its sportier stance and ride, F-Sport still provides all of the gargantuan room that you get inside any RX, with plenty of space for four adults and their luggage — as well as five for short journeys.

Inside, F-Sport offers brushed aluminum, leather and wood in an aesthetically quickening design that also is very pleasing. An angled, huge infotainment screen rises out of the dash alone but seems to be a continuation of the control stack below, which is a nice touch.

While its broadened RX lineup continues to benefit Lexus in the middle of the SUV market, Lexus also is paying attention this year to beefing up its presence in the hot subcompact-crossover segment and spilling up some of its long-standing sedan nameplates.

In December, the UX crossover will join the Lexus lineup at the bottom end of its lineup, just below the subcompact NX that was introduced a few years ago. It's aimed at young customers who are the target of most luxury brands these days and will replace the slow-selling CT Hybrid as Lexus' primary entry vehicle, with prices beginning in the low $30,000s.

Meanwhile, Lexus will introduce a redesigned version of its staple ES sedan, giving it a sharper new design, a more powerful six-cylinder engine, a more calibrated automatic transmission and a new underlying platform.

A massive info screen is integrated nicely with the rest of the IP.
