USA TODAY NETWORK - MICHIGAN

Livonia has moved closer to having a new health care option along the Interstate 275 corridor.

The city council Monday night approved a site plan for the new Beaumont facility at the current A123 Systems property at 39000 Seven Mile. That facility would consist of four-and-a-half stories and contain offices for primary and specialty care physicians, as well as provide emergency care, imaging, outpatient surgery, cancer services, physical therapy and more.

Beaumont currently has facilities in Farmington Hills and a similar center as proposed for Livonia in Canton. The new center would be the Southfield-

Ford Road just got a little more Famous.

One of the newest restaurants in Canton has been around town for several years. Meet Famous Hamburger, now open at 44011 Ford Road at the former Canton Lighting location.

"It's been a couple weeks, and it's been exciting," said Moe Hider, the president and franchiser. "Canton is awesome."

The restaurant began internationally, opening a location in Beirut, Lebanon, in 1970 by Hider's grandfather. His family then immigrated to the United

New recycling service could come to Livonia

David Veselenak Hometownlife.com
USA TODAY NETWORK - MICHIGAN

Could Livonia residents have a way to easily dispose of old clothing, blankets and shoes in the coming future? A recent proposal to the city council would bring such a service to the city.

A contract proposal came before the city council during its July 22 study meeting that would bring Ohio-based Simple Recycling into Livonia at no charge.

The company would pick up bags of soft recyclable materials on residents' designated trash days. The company would collect the materials and determine their future depending on their quality, and would pay the city $20 per ton collected.

Much like other trash pickup services, using such a service would be optional if approved.

"Residents will, of course, still have the option to not use this service," said Jacob Rushlow, superintendent of public service for the city. "They are more than welcome to donate to any charitable organization they currently do or would continue to like to do in the future."

Those charitable donations were an issue for Councilman Scott Bahr, who said he was intrigued by the idea and didn't see a downside, but originally had concerns that local organizations may miss out on donations they would normally receive.

"I would think it would have a downward impact on that," he said. "On one hand, it's another outlet for people for this, which I think is a good thing. Less waste is a good thing."

"But I'd be a little concerned if there is a huge drop in charitable donations."

Sonny Wilkins, vice president of Simple Recycling, said their research shows charitable donations aren't typically affected when they come into a community and offer their services.

"If you're a supporter of a local organization, whatever that organization may be, typically, those people are doing it because they want to benefit that organization," he said. "They'll typically continue that normal behavior."

Several surrounding communities already use this service, Wilkins said: Canton, Garden City, Milford Township, South Lyon and White Lake.

Possible issues surrounding recycling

Councilwoman Kathleen McIntyre said she thought it was a good idea, but

Who has filed to run in Observer-area elections?

Shelby Tankersley Hometownlife.com
USA TODAY NETWORK - MICHIGAN

With the 2019 filing deadline passed, the November ballots for local elections are nearly set. After the dropout deadline of July 24 these citizens will have their names on their city's ballot for Observer area city council, clerk, city commission or mayor.

Livonia had an earlier deadline with a primary election to narrow the candidate pool scheduled for Aug. 6.

In Plymouth, it looks like Suzi Deal, Kelly O'Donnell, Tony Sebastian and Marques Thomey will all return to their city commission seats for another term. The four are all running as incumbents for re-elections to their four commission seats.

In Farmington, Sara Bowman, Sarah Davies, Joe LaRussa, Geof Perrot and Steve Schneemann are competing for three city council seats. Bowman, LaRussa and Scheemann are running as incumbents.

The top two vote-getters in Farmington will serve four-year terms and the third-place finisher will receive a two-year term. Once set, the council elects a mayor and mayor pro-tem from among themselves.

In Farmington Hills, Vicki Barnett and Richard Lerner have filed to run for mayor. Barnett is a former Farmington Hills mayor and state representative, and Lerner currently serves on the city council. The winner will serve a two-year term.

For the three open city council seats, Jackie Boleware, T. R. Carr, Danette Duron-Willner, Kenneth D. Massey, Mary Newlin and Theresa Rich will be running. Rich is an incumbent, and Massey is currently the city's mayor. The three elected parties will serve four-year terms.

In Westland, Richard LeBlanc is running unopposed for city clerk, a position he currently holds.

For city council, Michael E. Delph, Timothy Gilbert, James Godbout, Debra Kehrer, Michael Londeau, Mike McDermott, Andrea Rutkowski are running. Of the four open seats, the top three vote-getters will receive four-year terms and the fourth-place candidate will serve a two-year term.

Bill would clear some marijuana crimes

Plan would let low-level offenses be expunged

Kathleen Gray Detroit Free Press
USA TODAY NETWORK

LANSING — Misdemeanors involving low-level marijuana use and possession would be automatically cleared from Michiganders' records under a bill that will be introduced this week by Sen. Jeff Irwin, D-Ann Arbor.

The bill would allow roughly 235,000 people to have their misdemeanor records for marijuana use and possession automatically expunged without having to go through the courts.

"We would go in through the Michigan State Police's database and make changes to records electronically and administratively without having to go through all the time and expense of going through the courts," Irwin said. "This is so important to a large number of people in Michigan ... who when they're applying for jobs or student loans, they're put in a position where their record can affect their future."

The Michigan bill is similar to action taken in California to clear low-level marijuana crimes after voters approved legalizing weed for recreational use. In Illinois, the legislature passed a bill earlier this year that, in part, will provide an automatic gubernatorial pardon of possession of 30 grams or less of marijuana.

Both Gov. Gretchen Whitmer and Attorney General Dana Nessel have said they favor clearing low-level marijuana crimes from people's records and the Michigan Cannabis Industry Association, which advocates for the industry, applauded the bill.

"Having a marijuana arrest on your record can impact your ability to get a job or even a student loan," said association spokesman Josh Hovey. "This legislation will give back economic opportunities to people who were engaging in what is now a legal activity."

William Vaillencourt, the Livingston County prosecutor and president-elect of the Prosecuting Attorneys Association of Michigan, said while he hasn't seen the specific language of the proposed bill, "we are willing to work with the Legislature to provide relief as long as it's done in a workable fashion."

Many prosecutors around Michigan are looking at pending cases and dismissing some misdemeanor marijuana crimes if those charges are no longer illegal under the new legalization law, Vaillencourt said.

"We look at the conduct involved and if it's not a violation of what voters approved in November, we've dismissed the charges," he said. "But we're taking it case by case."

Michigan does have a way for people to apply for expungement of their records, but according to the cannabis association, only about 6% of people with marijuana charges on their record have participated because of the time and expense involved.

The bill also includes an avenue for people with more serious marijuana crimes to apply through the courts to have their record expunged.

"If you're one of the 25,000 people who have a more serious, related cannabis crime, there would be more opportunity to seek an expungement," Irwin said. "This bill would say, you can seek even if you have more than one conviction."

One example is a difference in the way counties charge marijuana crimes. In Washtenaw County, for example, a person caught with a pound of marijuana may only get charged with misdemeanor possession, while in other parts of the state, the person would be charged with the felony of possession with intent to deliver for the same amount of pot.

"We can't do that in an automatic way because the State Police database doesn't get into that level of detail," Irwin said. "But this will provide tools for expungement for those people, too."

Meet some of Michigan's oddly-named towns

Gene Scott
Special to Hometownlife.com
USA TODAY NETWORK - MICH.

Past and present, Michigan's history includes a wild and crazy assortment of towns (cities, villages, hamlets), many with funny or peculiar names. Let's take look around Michigan, starting alphabetically.

Adventure, a town in Ontonagon County in the Upper Peninsula, had a short-lived copper mining life in the 1850s. The venture lasted just nine years.

Alamo, a town of less than 100 northeast of Kalamazoo, dates to 1841. The town and township (population 3,500) were named for the battle of Alamo to separate Texas from Mexico.

Aloha. This little town south of Cheboygan began in 1903. It was so named by its sawmill owner James Patterson after his trip to Hawaii.

Bachelor in Mason County, named after its mill owner, lasted just a few years after its founding in 1889.

Bad Axe, south of Port Huron, started in 1861. Its early settlers found a much-used ax there. Population 3,000, it's been a city since 1905.

Bloomer was a town in Montcalm County (1851-1886). It was named by several rowdy ladies who came there to a dance. Bonanza was a bust. Started in 1839 in Ionia County, the town moved to Lake Odessa in 1880 and died.

Climax, east of Kalamazoo, was named by its first settlers who climaxed a long search for a town in 1835. Rural Free Postal Delivery in Michigan began here 1896, three years before it became a village.

There once were two towns named Clinch. The one in Iron County has been gone since 1900. The other, in Lenawee County, had the same fate in 1842.

Dice, just west of Saginaw, has been rolling along in Thomas Township (pop. 11,000) since 1894. Without a casino too. Hard Luck, near Gladwin, had a short life around 1906, quickly becoming a ghost town.

Keno anyone? We once had two towns named Keno in Newaygo and Roscommon counties, both long gone. However, historic post-offices remain at these sites - reminders of the days when gambling in Michigan was illegal.

The former train station in Moscow, Michigan, north of Hillsdale (population 1,400) now serves as the town's historical museum. COURTESY OF GENE SCOTT

A town called Dot was in Charlevoix County until 1901. It was just a dot on the map.

There are or once were eight towns named Eagle in Michigan. The one in Clinton County is within Eagle Township (pop. 110) and has been there since 1873. Eagle Bay was in Huron County before 191. Eagle Harbor (pop. 70) has been in Keweenaw County since 1844.

An Eagle Lake once was in Oakland county in the 1850s and there are two little hamlets called also called Eureka, is still going strong and has 3,500 residents. Locals still call it Swizzletown. And, there was another Eureka, by golly. It was in Montcalm County from 1843-1854. First settlers called it Eureka, exclaiming "I have found it."

Excelsior was a town in Kalkaska County before 1902. The township of Excelsior is still there.

Faith in Crawford County only lasted a year until 1853. Joy, in Emmet County, lasted 15 years until 1899. There was a town of Hope in Midland County before 1900, but there's still a Hope Township. Another Hope, a copper mining town, was started in Keweenaw in 1884, but soon abandoned. No Charity.

Meanwhile, Flushing in Genesee County has been working well since 1835.

There once were three towns named Freedom. Two are gone, the Freedom in St. Joseph County lasting eight years until 1844. Another in Washtenaw, gone by 1869. The third Freedom, dating to 1875, has less than 100 residents. It's on US-25 south of Cheboygan. Lib- erty lasted eighty years in Jackson County until 193, but Liberty Township continues.

Michigan once had a Friday for a few years until 1903, in Missaukee County.

The only Frost in Michigan was in Saginaw County, 1880-1907. However, there was a Klondike in Oceana County until 1912 and a Pleasant in Kent County until 1889. Six other towns have Pleasant names (Pleasant View, Pleasant Ridge, etc.).

Berrien County once had Snow (a town gone by 1875). Antrim County once had a Snowflake in 1891 and Branch County had a Snow Prairie before 1870. Snowtown in Berrien County melted away in the 1850s.

Those are or were Michigan's weather name towns. Enough detour. Let's resume our town talk alphabetically.

Gay, in Keweenaw County, was started in 1898 by Keweenaw RR and copper mine owner Joseph Gay. Today it still has 60 residents, a school house and one business - a saloon.

Grace in Benzie County has been gone since 1884, but the Grace in Presque Isle County, founded 1893, is still there on US-25 at the Lake Huron shore.

The town of Granite near Marquette is long gone (1894), but Granite Island nearby still rocks and has a lighthouse too.

There was a Gravel Pit in Menominee County in 1878, but it emptied before 1900.

There's a little hamlet (less than 50 residents) called Hatmaker south of Coldwater. It's been there since 1884. And, a place called Hawks is south of Rogers City. Named after Detroit and Mackinac RR president James Hawks, it's been there since 1895.

Michigan towns include Hodunk and Podunk. Hodunk (less than 50 pop.) has been in Branch County since 1833. Podunk, a ghost town in Ingham County, dates to 1851.

There once were three towns called Home – one in Keweenaw County in the 1860s, another in Montcalm County (which also has a township called Home) until 1872, and a third in Newaygo County until 1882.

There was a Horseshoe in Allegan County before 1904. The name remained with a nearby resort area. Midland County had a Jam for nearly ten years around 1900.

Our state has a Jerusalem (est. 1832) west of Ann Arbor and a Nazareth (est. 1897) north of Kalamazoo, but no Bethlehem. Alas, there's a Christmas – started in 1938 in the Upper Peninsula, five miles west of Munising on M-28. Until a few years ago, visitors could stop at the post office in Christmas to have their holiday cards mailed from there in December. Since then, a prevailing township vote changed all that when Christmas got a casino.

Little Lulu, west of Monroe, has been hanging on since 1853. Lum in Lapeer County nearly died after its train depot blew up in 1904, but it's still here.

Magician Beach in Cass County didn't totally disappear back in 1903. It became a resort area on Magician Lake.

Less than 50 still live in Merriweather, a mining town started in Ontonagon County in 1916. There was a Mint in St. Joseph County until 1913. Moonshine in Tuscola County dried up by 1900 and Whiskey Creek in Oceana County became a ghost town after 1856.

Yes, comrades, there's a Moscow in Michigan – a town in Moscow Township (1,400 pop.) – on US-12 north of Hillsdale. Been there since 1831. We also have had a London west of Monroe since 1832, but only 40 people still live there. And, there's been a Paris (240 pop.) north of Big Rapids since 1865. The town has a 20-foot Eiffel Tower replica.

Napoleon (est. 1900), a town and township of 1,200, is south of Jackson. Waterloo has been nearby since 1834. Bonaparte was the name of Detroit's Joy Road before 1850, by the way.

Nirvana (Buddhist for "Highest Heaven") is still there, a hamlet of less than 50 in Lake county since 1874. Which brings us up to Ontonagon and the town of Nonesuch, buried in the 1890s near Lake of the Clouds, a beautiful sight indeed.

Michigan once had two Oranges – towns in Branch and Ionia counties a century ago. Pigeon is a town of 1,200 in Windsor Township, Huron County.

Quick in Otsego disappeared soon after it was started by Postmaster James Quick in 1899. No one came to save Rescue in Huron County in 1880. It's now an historic post office site.

Michigan has cities named Remus (Mecosta County), founded 1869, Romulus (Wayne County), 1827, and a Romeo (Macomb), 1821. There was a Rome in Lapeer County in 1839, but it became known as the Deserted City.

Shiloh (Ionia County), named for a Civil War battle, got started in 1876 and has less than 50 residents today. Standard (Genesee) and Stump (Muskegon) have been gone since 1900. Gone also is the town of Summit in Baraga County northwest of Marquette, named for being near the highest point in Michigan (Mount Arvon, 1,979 feet).

Sun stopped shining in Newaygo County in 1893, but there's been a White Cloud nearby since 1873. It's a city of 1,200.

Turtle slowly left Iosco County after 1904. The same thing happened to the town of Wait in Lapeer that same year. Montmorency County lost its Valentine in February 1907.

The village of Waltz (est. 1857) is in southwestern Wayne County and has 1,500 residents today. Some still like to waltz and square dance there. The still popular Waltz Inn was opened by town founder Joseph Waltz in 1872. Wise was a town north of Mount Pleasant.

There's still two Wolverines, fictitious state nickname towns: one in the Lower Peninsula and one in the Upper Peninsula. Started in 1882, one is south of Cheboygan and has 240 residents. The Wolverine in the UP (also with 240 residents) is in Calumet, Houghton County.

Now, let's go to Hell, a wild and crazy place near Pinckney in Livingston County. It was started in 1841 and named for the frequent brawls by local Native Americans then living in the area. Today, it consists mostly of a few businesses catering to the folks who like to party. No one admits to living here. Heaven only knows why.

Take heart, Michiganders. There's a place called Paradise, on M-123 at Whitefish Bay, Lake Superior in Chippewa County. Founded in 1925, only 40 people live there – three miles from Tahquamenon, the most beautiful of Michigan's 196 waterfalls. A curious fact perhaps: Hell is in Michigan's Lower Peninsula and Paradise is in the Upper Peninsula.

Some of our state's towns are named after other states (15) and at least 30 honor U.S. presidents. There's also some major U.S. cities and others besides London, Moscow and Paris that are or were towns in Michigan.

Among the sources for more information about Michigan's places of the past and present are: R. Dodge, "Ghost Towns of Michigan;" L. Wakefield, "Ghost Towns of Michigan;" W. Romig, "Michigan Place Names;" G. Scott, "Michigan Shadow Towns;" and 197 county histories. These reference books can be found in major libraries, including those in Detroit, Ann Arbor and Lansing.

Beaumont

based health care provider's first major expansion into Livonia.

"I'd also like to welcome Beaumont to Livonia proper," said Councilman Brian Meakin. "Welcome to Beaumont as well, and I wish everyone luck in this project."

While he said he would vote for the plan, Council Vice President Jim Jolly said he was slightly worried patients needing urgent treatment seeing the "emergency" signage that would need extra attention that could not be given at the new facility may end up needing to be transferred elsewhere if they were to drive straight to the new center.

He said he was worried it could lead to ambulance runs across town to hospitals or other health care centers.

"I think overall it's a great project and it's going to add great value, I just have some concerns," he said.

Constance O'Malley, president of outpatient services for Beaumont Health, said the center will be staffed with operating room suites and surgeons able to care for patients.

"There will be board-certified physicians in that center," she said. "The setup will be exactly what you see in the hospital."

If a situation arises where a patient needs to be transferred, Beaumont Farmington Hills is just minutes away at Eight Mile and Grand River, she said.

The facility, which could bring around 300 jobs to the city, was proposed earlier this year and unveiled as a Beaumont facility earlier this spring. The building construction could begin later this year, as A123 Systems is moving its headquarters to a new building in Novi.

The health care center is expected to open next year.

suggested going with a two-year contract over the proposed four-year contract, since she was unsure how the program would be received in the community and did not want to commit long-term to something if it wouldn't work out for the city.

She said it could lead to trash-pickers going through bags, as well as the "sloppiness" people have when it comes to throwing things into recycling containers. She said it's difficult currently to get residents to better understand what can be put in recycling bins now, and worries that same problem would continue with the soft material recycling program.

"We hear a lot of complaints ... because the recycling bins are not used properly," she said. "My concern is - and some of the other communities have had this experience - the bags aren't tied up and you end up with a mess of wet clothes on the curb on recycling day."

Wilkins said the company has not had an issue with litter or clutter in the communities in the last several years and did not believe it would be an issue. Items would be attempted to be reused first in the United States, then internationally, and then recycled into a different material if they cannot be used anywhere.

Rushlow said the administration requested a four-year contract to allow Simple Recycling time to recoup its costs in setting up the program and coming into the community.

"That's why it was presented as a four-year initial term," he said.

The council will take the issue up at its next regular meeting, scheduled for 7 p.m. Aug. 12.

Councilman Brandon Kritzman said he hopes using such a service would help residents recycle items properly instead of throwing them into bins incorrectly.

"I think this will actually alleviate some of the stress on that," Kritzman said. "I had the same thought about our own recycling program. As much as we try to educate people on what is acceptable materials to throw out and ... what is not acceptable to throw in the recycling bins, I see it all the time, things that shouldn't be in there."

Hamburger

States and decided to bring the Famous Hamburger concept with them. The restaurant serves a multitude of burgers, fries, salads, wraps and milkshakes, to name a few.

It now operates three restaurants, one at Canton Center and Michigan Avenue in Canton and another on Michigan Avenue in Dearborn.

Deciding to open a second location in a community they already serve was a no-brainer, Hider said, given the extensive traffic Ford Road sees.

"We're doing well, people started really liking us," he said. "We created a following in Canton."

"We've been driving up and down Ford Road for years just trying to find a space. Ford Road, you can't beat it."

They found that space late last year and spent the last several months renovating and remodeling the interior.

They still have some wall decor planned to go up, but it's otherwise ready for diners at any time.

One such diner was Canton resident Christopher Covert, who decided to stop in Monday afternoon to try out a Sricacha Burger, which includes jalapenos, Sriracha sauce, beef bacon, Swiss cheese, lettuce and tomato.

He was looking forward to having another dining option in the neighborhood.

"So far, everything's been pretty cool," he said sitting at the counter. "They're the new kid in town, so we might as well be neighborly."

Famous Hamburger's expansion won't be limited to just Canton, Hider said. Another location is expected to open in Great Lakes Crossing in Auburn Hills later this year, and other locations in Detroit and Troy are being considered.

A grand opening celebration is planned in the future, though no date has been set, Hider said. The restaurant is still taking applications for employees, which can be accessed on its website at famoushamburger.com.

Hider said his father, Feisal Hider, is proud to see what has become of the family business in the U.S.

"He loves seeing this. It's truly a dream come true," he said. "For my dad, he really appreciates coming in here and seeing where his hard work took us."

"It's really cool."

Plymouth native Zacharias named PGA WORKS Fellow

Andrew Vaillencourt
Hometownlife.com
USA TODAY NETWORK - MICHIGAN

The Southern Ohio PGA Section, in conjunction with PGA REACH, the 501(c)(3) charitable foundation of the PGA of America, has named 2019 University of Michigan graduate Abbey Zacharias, of Plymouth, as its second PGA WORKS Fellow.

Zacharias' appointment makes her one of 11 individuals nationwide currently serving in a PGA WORKS Fellowship. Focused on engaging a diverse demographic of participants - with consideration to gender, age, race, national origin, sexual orientation, disability and veteran status - the PGA WORKS Fellowship is designed to establish a strong bench of talent prepared to ascend into key employment positions in the business of golf.

Working out of the Southern Ohio PGA Section's headquarters, Zacharias' primary responsibilities will be to help execute program elements that support the mission and purpose of the Southern Ohio PGA Section Foundation.

This includes the PGA HOPE veterans golf program, as well as junior golf initiatives such as the PGA Jr. League Section Championship and regional Drive, Chip and Putt events, among other foundation activities.

At U-M, where she earned a Bachelor of Arts degree in sport management, Zacharias was a member of the Michigan Sport Business Association, the Michigan Women in Sport and Entertainment Organization and the Women's Club Water Polo Team.

Plymouth Christian hiring athletic coaches

Andrew Vaillencourt
Hometownlife.com
USA TODAY NETWORK - MICHIGAN

The Plymouth Christian Volleyball program is looking for a junior varsity head coach and varsity assistant. The program won Class D State Championships in 2016 and 2017. "There is a lot of excitement and energy with the program," athletic director

Matt Windle said. A freshman team will be added to the program this fall as well. Anyone interested in applying for either or both of the available positions should contact Windle at Matt.Windle@plymouthchristian.org. Livonia Run Crew looking for area high school athletes

Andrew Vaillencourt
Hometownlife.com
USA TODAY NETWORK - MICHIGAN

The Livonia Run Crew Summer Running Program is seeking female high school athletes who are interested in developing their fitness for all fall or winter sports. The program is a way for high school athletes to train and stay in shape during the summer months leading up for the season, while also learning about the Livonia Stevenson cross country program, whose coach, Rick Brauer, leads the Run Crew. Run Crew began June 18 and ends Aug. 10 and is open for new athletes any time. The program currently meets four mornings per week at various locations in the Livonia area with workouts beginning at 7:30 a.m. and completed by 9:30 a.m. The primary emphasis of the program is aerobic development, overall strength and conditioning to ensure the athlete is at their optimal fitness level, and reducing the risk of overuse injury prior to beginning their chosen sport season. Run Crew is also the informal training group for the Livonia Stevenson women's cross country team. "I'm trying a different approach to recruiting Stevenson cross country runners and opted to not call this summer training but Run Crew and invite athletes from other sports, hoping they see what cross country training/running is really like and that they can become successful at it," Brauer said. "I know they are out there, just need to give them the correct information and experience, not the misinformation they get from non-cross country or track athletes. "Over the years, I've found there are a lot of kids in the 'wrong sport' or no sport at all. Ones who were not getting playing time in their selected sport, watching them run and seeing very clearly the success they can have." For more information about the summer Run Crew or Livonia Stevenson High School women's cross country, please contact rickjbrauer@mi.rr.com or 734-642-6664. She also served as an events and graphic design intern for the Wolverines football team, working closely with coaches and administration on marketing initiatives. Additionally, Zacharias was the head intern for the LPGA's Volvik Championship in Ann Arbor from 2017-2018, assisting in tournament operations while leading a five-person team that helped support the event and its related programming. "Working at the Volvik Championship introduced me to the business of golf and gave me a great opportunity to explore a career in the industry," Zacharias said. "Now, I have the chance to work with the Southern Ohio PGA Foundation as the PGA WORKS Fellow, giving an incredible opportunity to start my journey in golf." The PGA WORKS Fellowship is a 12-month paid position funded by PGA REACH, which currently hosts Fellows in 11 PGA Sections: Carolinas, Connecticut, Gateway, Metropolitan, Michigan, Middle Atlantic, New Jersey, Northern Ohio, Southern Ohio, Western New York and South Florida. "We chose Abbey because we believe she has a tremendous passion to work in the golf industry after this fellowship is completed," Southern Ohio PGA Section Executive Director Amanda Fisher said. "Abbey's education and experiences at the University of Michigan, combined with her golf internship at the Volvik Championship, have prepared her for the PGA WORKS Fellowship, and we see her as a great asset for our growth-of-the-game programs." For more information on PGA REACH, visit PGAREACH.org. "All career paths start with awareness and opportunity, and providing individuals from all backgrounds employment opportunities in the golf industry is a priority for PGA REACH," PGA REACH Senior Director Ryan Cannon said. "PGA WORKS is an important initiative that supports the Inclusion pillar of PGA REACH, and we're thrilled to create new possibilities through the PGA WORKS Fellowship to pursue the dream of a career in golf."

Don't overthink effect of 'Medicare for All'

Ken Fisher
Columnist
USA TODAY

Health care was a hot topic at June's Democratic debates. Several candidates jawboned about "Medicare for All" – government-funded coverage eliminating private insurance.

Many investors are nervous, fearing fallout for health care stocks. But it's too early to fear (or cheer) this – or any policy proposals that flash-forward this year. Slow down.

Setting aside all political views, if Medicare for All passed, health insurance and hospital stocks likely would suffer. Possibly drug and medical device makers would, too, although they are more insulated. Even if legislation doesn't pass, a heated debate could hurt sentiment, sparking volatility in these stocks. But you shouldn't think that way. Here is why:

Nothing changes fast

Health care loomed large in President Barack Obama's 2008 campaign, but The Affordable Care Act didn't pass until 2010 and took effect in 2013. Markets barely blinked either time. Health care reform campaign talk and tweets scared investors in 2016, also, but little changed. Any post-2020 changes will be similarly slow.

Setting aside all political views, if "Medicare for All" passed, health insurance and hospital stocks likely would suffer. GETTY IMAGES

Stocks don't really react to this kind of thing, even though we commonly think they do. First, markets pre-price widely known information. That means stocks typically reflect all opinions about policy changes long before they take effect – like in 2010. But then, if the new law actually was watered down from initial proposals, it would be a positive surprise, potentially boosting health care stocks. Second, markets move most on probabilities, not possibilities. We're at least a year away from being able to assess the probability of Medicare for All happening.

Uncertain outcomes

For single-payer health care to become reality, the Democrats need comfortable margins in both chambers of Congress – plus a president supporting it. Will that happen? I haven't a clue – no one does, really. Who knows who the Democrats will nominate. It's way too early.

Then, too, candidates often moderate their views during the general election and while in office. Early big ideas aim to win over the party base in primaries. California Sen. Kamala Harris moderated on Medicare for All the very day after her debate. If you believe any Democratic victor would govern as they talked at the debates, there is some great Arizona oceanfront property you may like.

Congress' post-2020 makeup is similarly unknowable.

You shouldn't start weighing any election's outcome and market impact until the summer before the vote. We need presumptive nominees and relatively defined, state-specific, head-to-head details. We need a clearer sense of how the economy will look. And will Democrats choose an appealing campaign strategy for Midwesterners who swung 2016 to President Donald Trump?

This logic extends to all big policy promises flying around, including tech company breakups, student loan debt cancellation, new taxes or whatever. The chatter can spiral anywhere now, making today's big issues distant memories in 2021.

So don't overthink them. While rising election uncertainty may slow U.S. stocks' gains, the bull market grinds upward despite campaign promises.

The major pros and cons of 3 common leadership styles

Erik Titner
thejobnetwork.com

At various points during our professional lives, most of us find ourselves on opposing sides of the leadership coin — we play the roles of both leader and subordinate, which gives us a first-hand, multi-faceted look at what leadership styles work in which situations and where they come up short. Another truth is that most of us have had direct experience with both good and bad bosses, which helps us develop a keen sense of which type of leader we're dealing with in any given situation, for better or worse.

Building a solid understanding of effective leadership through experience empowers us to be better leaders and to better appreciate the leadership of others, especially in challenging situations. The truth is, no one leadership style is perfect in every conceivable situation. Some work well at certain moments and fail in others. Great leaders know when to modulate effectively to ensure that they're providing steady, reliable, and appropriate leadership whenever it's called for.

Whether you're primarily a leader or subordinate at work — or both — having a core understanding of various leadership styles, along with the pros and cons of each, can really help you as you travel through your career path and take on various roles and levels of responsibility. Keep reading for a closer look at some classic leadership styles, along with their pros and cons.

The Dictator

Have you ever heard the expression "it's my way or the highway"? It wouldn't be surprising if it was first uttered by someone who embraced the dictatorial style of leadership. This type of boss requires ultimate and absolute adherence to their rules, methods, and style of handling work tasks and projects, often down to the smallest details. Furthermore, they often tolerate no questions regarding their decisions, and force strict allegiance from subordinates — or else.

Pros: Although it might not seem so, there are some "benefits" to adopting this extreme style of leadership. Effective dictatorial bosses are often able to get a great deal accomplished at work and usually get to have things go precisely their way, for what it's worth.

Cons: As you may have guessed, there are a great deal of potential negative consequences. Dictators rarely have the hearts and loyalties of their subordinates, so if things go wrong for them on the job they may not have many allies to cover for them. It can really be lonely at the top for someone who's always behaving like a petulant tyrant at work. Also, subordinates under a dictatorial leader are often operating and motivated by fear—which is usually not a place to do your best and most focused work. And dictatorial bosses shouldn't be surprised when their underlings flee the job in droves in search for greener pastures.

The Best Friend

Many of us have had a boss whose primary agenda at work seems to be becoming everyone's best buddy. They're overly friendly, eager to please, and just want everyone to get along — especially with them. Workdays with a "best friend boss" are often spent engaged in amiable, lighthearted conversation, exploring personal topics to get to know each other better, planning after-work social outings, and all manner of general frivolity, all to build friendships with their coworkers.

Pros: Obviously, a best friend boss can be pleasant to work with. Who doesn't like getting along well with their coworkers and having a boss who's willing and eager to get on our good sides and stay there? Also, it's sometimes the case that a good personal relationship is an excellent foundation for a strong and effective working relationship — after all, isn't collaboration much trickier with folks who are combative?

Cons: The best friend boss often opens themselves up to several potential leadership pitfalls. They often fail to engender the respect and confidence that a leader should receive from subordinates, and often their decisions are questioned, ignored, and side-stepped. They also tend to go out of their way to appease others to avoid conflict, which may negatively impact their ability to navigate challenging situations, settle routine workplace differences, and make tough but necessary decisions. Best friend bosses are often easy to manipulate, which tends to decrease motivation and professionalism among others in their orbit.

The Ghost

Perhaps this situation sounds familiar: You start a new job and, practically from the very first moment you arrive, your new boss shows you your desk, wishes you good luck and then for all intents and purposes disappears from your life. Ghost bosses never seem to be around when you need them, regardless of your preferred mode of communication — whether by email, phone, or a drop-in to their office; they are either absent or unavailable to help you through any situations that pop-up at work, leaving you on your own to fend for yourself.

Pros: The truth is, many folks like having a largely hands-off boss, especially when they've reached the point in their careers where they have the experience and expertise to be truly accountable for their work responsibilities and can make decisions on their own. Self-starters and those who enjoy a little extra autonomy at work typically enjoy having ghost bosses.

Cons: The unfortunate truth about having a boss who lets their employees sink or swim on their own is that many just sink, often due more to a failure of guidance and leadership than anything the employees did wrong. Some folks simply need the trusted and steady hand of a boss who's willing to put in the time and effort to really be involved in work matters on a regular basis, and not having this can make for an uncomfortable and stressful work experience. Also, having a ghost boss early on in one's career, when mentorship and guidance are critical, can be traumatic and have negative long-term effects on an employee's confidence, self-worth, and opportunities for growth.

The truth is, no matter how effective and ironclad a leadership style may seem, it inevitably has its own unique set of pros and cons that vary depending on the situation. Use the information provided here to help you make sense of what leadership styles work best for you — whether as a boss or an employee.

Here's How It Works:
Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!
