MDOT: I-275 project will take all season

Shelby Tankersley Hometownlife.com
USA TODAY NETWORK - MICHIGAN

Interstate 275 will be a bear for the 2020 construction season as the expressway between Ford Road and Six Mile Road will be under construction. The $50 million project through Northville, Livonia, Plymouth and Canton will affect westside commuters for most, if not all, the construction season.

On Tuesday, employees with the Michigan Department of Transportation (MDOT) met with residents in an open house meeting at Canton's Summit on the Park. Attendees could ask the engineers and designers present about the project's details.

The project will include repaving, shoulder widening and bridge maintenance, picking up where 2016's massive reconstruction project left off.

"You have the old concrete from the 1970s that was built, and you have 3/4 inches of asphalt that's on top of that," said Adam Penzenstadler, an engineer for MDOT and a Livonia resident.

"That surface is deteriorating.

"We have been out there every year doing patches and you can start to see the potholes."

He said that older concrete doesn't need to go just yet, so this repaving will focus on the asphalt.

Tucked deep inside a wooded plot of pristine property off Joy Road in Plymouth Township, the front yard of a 60-year-old magical slice of architectural history has been adorned with a for sale sign for the first time ever.

And fans of the home's architect, builder and longtime owner Tivadar Balogh, are taking advantage of the rare open-house opportunities to tour what many experts consider a mid-century modern masterpiece.

"We had close to 200 people here during Sunday's open house, which was more like a community event so that the public could see the house for, really, the first time in 60 years," said Realtor John Goetz, who is orchestrating the home's sale for Balogh's daughters, Melissa Balogh Waidley and Margaret Balogh. "The comment I heard most often throughout the open house was that when you walk in the front door, it's like walking into a time capsule from the 1960s.

The home's kitchen is highlighted by the original cabinetry and oven.

Manufacturing Day teaches students about factory work

David Veselenak Hometownlife.com
USA TODAY NETWORK - MICHIGAN

It was the first time Olivia Kollovozi saw a 3-D printer. It definitely was something to which she had been looking forward.

"I was interested in learning about all the different objects that manufacturers make," said Kollovozi, an eighth grader at Holmes Middle School in Livonia. "I was really fascinated with the huge printers and how they create these objects."

She joined several of her classmates Oct. 4 to visit Linear AMS, 12163 Globe in Livonia, as part of the Manufacturing Day celebrations. The day, marked during the first week of October, encourages students to visit and learn about various manufacturers in their area and get a better idea of what they do.

The day was marked with plenty of tours across the region, which boasts many manufacturing facilities. Ten schools from several area districts — Livonia, Wayne-Westland, Clarenceville, Garden City and Northville, as well as Peace Lutheran School in Livonia — planned stops at nine manufacturing facilities, as well as Schoolcraft College.

Such a day is important for students, said David Mitchell, a computer science teacher at Holmes, to help them learn about options they have once they finish high school.

The earlier students can be exposed to different options, the better, he said.

"I think it's really important they see real-world applications for the things that they're learning," said Mitchell, who also coaches the Stevenson High School hockey team. "Especially a day like today, where they can go out and experience the different opportunities that are available to them."

Manufacturing Day is a national event that's been put on for several years to bring attention to manufacturing and the opportunities it presents to students, especially as many companies face labor shortages.

Students from all the districts toured several companies across Livonia on Oct. 4, including McLaren, Roush Clean Tech, Linear AMS and AlphaUSA to learn more about the industry.

Students were also scheduled to gather at Schoolcraft College late that morning to hear U.S. Rep. Haley Stevens, D-Rochester Hills, discuss the importance of manufacturing as well.

Behind the scenes at the DIA: Barbara Heller

Susan Bromley Hometownlife.com
USA TODAY NETWORK - MICHIGAN

An Olivet College professor in the 1960s told Barbara Heller she was too slow and meticulous to be an artist.

But instead of dashing a dream, he helped forge a life, encouraging her to go into art restoration.

Heller took his advice, finding success in a career that now spans 40 years, bringing works from the 12th, 13th, and 14th centuries back to their original splendor.

"I just find it very gratifying," Heller said. "Everybody has different fortes and that is the diversity of what we love, what we do."

The Birmingham resident and art conservator for the Detroit Institute of Arts was honored Oct. 4 during the Birmingham Bloomfield Cultural Arts Awards.

The honor embarrasses her, she admitted, but the humble Heller is now resigned. While she prefers to remain out of the spotlight, her passion for her work behind the scenes remains undimmed.

Heller has had a hand in preserving and restoring countless masterpieces. As chief conservator at the Detroit Institute of Arts, that includes Diego Rivera's "Detroit Industry" murals and her favorite artwork, "The Wedding Dance," a 1566 oil on panel by Pieter Bruegel the Elder.

"When I worked in Italy, it was the one painting I wanted to work on when I had no idea of working in Detroit," she said.

Heller lived in Italy for eight years in the late 1960s and early '70s. She began by working on books and art damaged in the flood of the Arno River, a Nov. 4, 1966, event that damaged millions of masterpieces. She had an apprenticeship in panel painting conservation in the Laboratorio Restauri at the Palazzo

Pitti in Florence and was there in 1975, never planning to return to the U.S., when the then-director of the DIA visited, and learning she was a Detroit native, asked her if she wanted a job.

Her boss at the Italian studio told him, "anyone but her."

A holiday greeting card mailed to her from the DIA later that year contained a plane ticket to Detroit.

"They were reinstalling the Italian wing, and I had a 2-month contract and then the director asked me to stay full time," she recalled. "I never applied for a job, it just fell in my lap. So I started here and became head of painting conservation and then chief conservator, then director and conservator of special projects a little over 10 years ago. I've done a lot of things."

Livonia hotel gets major renovation

David Veselenak Hometownlife.com
USA TODAY NETWORK - MICHIGAN

Guests staying at the Fairfield Inn and Suites in Livonia won't feel like they traveled back in time anymore whenever they stop in.

That's because the hotel at 17350 Fox Drive, off of Six Mile, has recently undergone a $1.5 million renovation that saw changes in every guest room, the lobby and the conference rooms.

"Lamps, fixtures, hardware," said Jen Zeiger, the area director of operations for Troy-based Hotel Investment Services, which owns and operates the hotel. "Everything is brand-new."

Each of the 100 guest rooms of the hotel, which was originally built in 1998, has some new furniture and removed some of the carpet at the opening of the room and around the sink outside the bathrooms.

The hot breakfast area has also been completely changed. Gone are the darker colors and the fireplace in the dining area, replaced with more modern decor and a lighter color palette designed to brighten up the space. Work was also done around the meeting spaces, the gym as well as the pool area, which has a new color scheme.

"The floor tile is the only thing that's the same," Zeiger said. "Now it's a wood trimmed tile and beige."

Jen Zeiger, area director of operations for Hotel Investment Services, shows a renovated guest room at the Fairfield Inn and Suites in Livonia.
DAVID VESELENAK/HOMETOWNLIFE.COM

Work began in January and wrapped last month, taking about nine months of work to redo the hotel. It had been several years since the hotel had seen a major renovation.

Many of the clients that stay, including those in the auto industry and those coming to the Trinity Health world headquarters over on Victor Parkway in Livonia.

"A lot of people like the renovation, compared to the dark setting it used to be," said Chris Kelsay, the hotel's general manager.

A lot of infrastructure work, including heating and cooling, was done last year, Zeiger said.

Dan West, president of the Livonia Chamber of Commerce, appreciated the work being put into the facility to help make Livonia a better place for travelers of both the business and pleasure variety.

"We thank you again for another investment," he said. "You look at the business traveler and the youth sports family, and what a great property to handle both clientele here with a variety of suites and regular rooms here."

Heller

Much of her career has involved conservation, in which analysis of methods and materials used in creating an artwork are first studied. A restorer can then select the right materials to use to clean and repair art that has been damaged by years of dirt, smoke and grime, or suffered tears, cracks, scratches and fading. It is painstaking work that can take months, involves chemistry and must be done in a way that keeps the original intent.

"You want to retain what the artist wanted," she said. "You aren't changing or making corrections, just preserving so if there is a loss or tear, you can't see it. ... We all age, and works of art don't look brand new, but they don't look damaged."

All conservation methods used must also be reversible.

She has done this work all over the world and while she is no longer doing it at the DIA, she still does it elsewhere, including restoration of the frescoes dating to 1928 at Christ Church Cranbrook.

She has also been a volunteer with the Public Arts Board in Birmingham for many years and has been responsible for overseeing, promoting and facilitating the installation of public sculptures throughout the city.

She has volunteered her time on numerous art boards and for art competitions.

"My parents always told me, 'Whatever you want to do, go to college, but you have to be able to support yourself,'" Heller said. "You have to do something that gives you satisfaction."

She is doing just that, perhaps not in the way she first thought she would, but in a way that works for her and, most importantly, in a way that allows her to share her love for art with others.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Supports Laura Toy

She is... Ms. Livonia. "She believed she could, so she did!"

Laura Toy is running for Mayor of our city. I would like to express my support and encourage Livonia's voters to elect Laura Toy to this most prestigious office. I, like Laura have been a longtime resident of this wonderful place we all call home. Full disclosure, our fathers were Livonia police officers serving on the police department at the same time and they are/were two of the finest human beings on this planet! While I went off in my own direction, Laura was always committed to her work within our city working with and supporting many organizations on numerous projects to help our city grow and become most prosperous. Hence, Livonia rocks.

From a very young age, Laura was involved in recycling, before most people saw the value of recycling. She was a pioneer for her community right from the start. We both attended the famous Bentley High School, unfortunately now closed but never forgotten. Laura was the Class of 1970 president. Laura currently serves as our city council president but has also been a state senator for us working on many projects that were good for Michigan as well as our city.

Laura is also a successful Livonia business owner. Cardwell Florist continues to be one of Livonia's stable businesses that has stood the test of time. People are not successful by accident my father once told me. They in part are successful for many reasons. First you need to have a vision, and good ideas. Next you have to be a solid planner to execute those ideas well. Last, you have to have great communication skills to put your plan into action. Laura Toy has all of those key ingredients in her.

Laura is a true visionary full of integrity and great ideas. She has partnered with professionals as well as regular people like us that have Livonia's best future in common to make good things happen.

Laura Toy has a heart of gold and a special place in her heart for her city, her family, and her friends!

'Unicorn'

"People in my business sell a lot of houses and so we're in and out of a lot of homes. About 95 percent of everything we do is pretty similar. This is the unicorn, the super-rare occurrence. It's really a privilege to work with something like this."

The two-bedroom, two-and-a-half-bath home's asking price is $750,000, but the property is priceless to the architect's daughters, who, after countless hours of contemplation, decided to put their family's residence on the market a few months after their mother, Dorothy, passed away Aug. 2 at the age of 90.

Dorothy Balogh lived in the home until the summer of 2018, when she moved to an assisted living facility.

"It was a difficult decision, for sure," Waidley said. "Ideally, we'd like a mid-century modern enthusiast who can fall in love with it like we have over the past 60 years to buy the home."

Architectural icon

Tivadar Balogh, a native Detroit whose parents emigrated from Hungary before he was born, died in 2006. In addition to his immense collection of architecture wonders, he was also an esteemed artist and renowned professor at the University of Michigan.

A number of his works are archived at the Bentley Historical Museum on the University of Michigan Ann Arbor campus.

"I remember that after just about every family meal, my dad would take a napkin and his Cross pencil and free-lance sketch a picture of a project we were talking about, or whatever," said Margaret Balogh. "Both my parents were such interesting, caring people."

"My parents, fortunately, were very humble people," Waidley said. "My sister and I didn't grow up feeling any sense of entitlement. What growing up in this house did was instill in me a great love of aesthetics and beautiful design. My dad was a great designer, but I always look at him as an artist first. A lot of the artwork in this home is his."

Change of plans

Balogh initially planned to construct his one-of-a-kind gem in another Detroit suburb, Waidley revealed.

"My parents lived in Farmington soon after they were married, so that's where my dad planned to build," she said. "But then, I believe, the Farmington City Council didn't approve the site plan because it was too modern; they felt it would have stood out too much and they didn't feel comfortable approving it."

"One day my dad was driving along Joy Road and he stumbled upon this property. There were only two existing homes on the triangle (bordered by Joy, Ridge and Ann Arbor roads). He appreciated the topography of the land, how he could build the house at the back of the property and get a panoramic view of the land. That's how this site came to be."

Given that their dad was young and self-employed, the Baloghs soon discovered the meaning of frugality – but it enhanced their lives," Margaret Balogh said.

"I can still remember sitting down to dinner and saying, 'Hot dogs again?'" she said, chuckling. "But it taught us to appreciate what we had, and to this day the lessons our parents taught us still resonate."

"My parents did a lot of the construction on the house themselves to save money because they were a young couple; my dad was only 30," Waidley added. "It's a very striking, spectacular home I think because he knew he was designing it for himself, for his family, so he could do whatever he wanted. He wasn't compromised by other people's wishes."

"My dad told me he gave himself the challenge to design this with the layout of a colonial home, but yet make it as different as he could."

Every day was a treat waking up in the Balogh home, the sisters agreed.

"It was wonderful!" Waidley shared. "I remember lying on the living-room floor as a kid and just looking up through the windows at the trees. It's so calming. And the wildlife was amazing. We grew up here before (the insecticide) DDT, so there'd be Luna moths on the windows."

"It was beautiful."

Among the features of the home are built-in bedroom closets with tons of storage space, which was unusual for that era, Waidley confirmed, and the cedar paneling that gives the home a comforting presence.

"We definitely learned how to take care of the wood," Margaret Balogh said. "There were no drinks set on tables without coasters, we didn't put our hands on the walls as we were going up or coming down the stairs, and we learned the value of Murphy's Oil Soap."

"We live in such a throw-away society now. My parents, though, were so into preserving things and teaching my sister and I that things can last if you take care of them."

The house was a playground of sorts for friends of the young Balogh sisters.

"Obviously, kids don't have an understanding of the uniqueness of the architecture," Waidley said. "They're looking for things that are fun. What our friends thought was fun was making paper airplanes and launching them off the balcony."

"I can remember when my parents would host dinner parties, we'd peek through the space in the stairs ... until they caught on to us," Margaret added. "Growing up in a house like this didn't seem unusual to us because it was our norm. My father made sure that everything had a function and made sense."

A piece of history

The Balogh House has earned a position on the National Historic Registry, Goetz said.

"It's more or less a recognition," he explained. "It doesn't restrict the new owner from making changes to the home. Although, the person who buys this home is someone who, one, appreciates the design; and two, they want it because it's original. ... The person who is saying, 'Oh, we'll tear this out,' that's not the person who is going to buy it."

Goetz said he has embraced the opportunity to market the Balogh House.

"I've been working with Melissa and Margaret for several months. ... The first time we met, they asked me, 'Should we change this? Should we change that?'" Goetz said. "I said, 'Don't change anything. Let's get it clean, repair a few things, paint it and get it on the market.'"

People love it for its originality." Contact Ed Wright at edwright@hometownlife.com or 517-375-1113.

Project

"There's still a little bit of life left in that concrete pavement that's underneath and we're trying to maximize dollars and get as much out of that as possible," Penzenstadler said. "So what we're going to do is take off all of the asphalt, leave the pavement below and re-pave asphalt back."

None of the 20 bridges along the stretch need major repairs, but they will receive preventative maintenance like epoxy overlay, deck and sidewalk patching and rail replacements.

Throughout the project, two northbound and two southbound lanes will remain open at all times. Penzenstadler said residents can still plan to use I-275 throughout the project's lifetime.

"This isn't going to be like some of the larger projects where it's a full reconstruct and we shut down and detour," he said. "We're not doing that."

The only full closures drivers can expect are exit closures at Ford Road and Ann Arbor Road, but they won't happen at the same time.

"We'll alternate, so if we close one of the interchanges, we won't close the other," Penzenstadler said. "That way people don't have to go very far to get around."

What still has yet to be seen is the project's work schedule from day to day. Penzenstadler said MDOT is just exiting the design phase and doesn't have a contractor yet. Because of that, MDOT doesn't yet know what residents who live along the corridor can expect when it comes to noise and work hours.

Some residents who live near the area had concerns about additional traffic and noise levels.

"They're putting in a hospital where the KMart used to be on Haggerty Road," said Karen Senior, a Plymouth resident who lives near the Ann Arbor Road ramp. "So now we're going to have construction on 275 and, as soon as you get off, voilà, there's going to be the construction going on with the hospital... It's going to be crazy."

While there will certainly be traffic troubles for drivers, Penzenstadler said MDOT is confident the project will be completed during the 2020 construction season.

"We will definitely get it done during the season next year," he said. "There are penalties for not meeting the end date. If it's late and it's the contractor's fault, there are penalties."

Penzenstadler noted that residents who want to stay up to date on this project's and other's latest details can sign up for email alerts at www.michigan.gov/getmdotinfo.

Joe Gonzales, a technical specialist at Linear AMS who has worked with 3-D printing at the company for five years, said it was exciting to see so many students show up to learn about what the company does.

"I think this is the wave of the future," he said. "This is eventually what manufacturing is going to be mostly about, at least in the parts-producing realm."

Alice Ross McCarthy, PhD

EVANSTON, IL - Alice Ross McCarthy, PhD, 95 years old, passed away in her sleep on September 18, 2019 in Evanston, Illinois after a long illness.

She had moved to live in the Presbyterian Home in Evanston in 2011 to be closer to her family. However, for most of her adult life Dr. McCarthy lived in Birmingham, Michigan where she raised her five children.

She was born April 23, 1924 in Cooperstown, New York to Nelson and Amanda Ross. As the eldest in a farm family, she began her education in a one room school house for grades one through six. She often commented on the excellence of that experience, with older students assisting the teacher to teach the younger students. She was active in 4-H, and made many of her own clothes, including a prize-winning pair of tailored pajamas. As part of her 4-H experience she visited Cornell University, where she later received her B.S. in Human Ecology. Due to the war, she completed college in three years, and immediately enlisted in the United States Army, Women's Army Corps (WAC), where she served until the end of hostilities in 1945. She worked conducting neuropsychiatric interviews with blinded soldiers under the direction of a psychiatrist, Major Bernard Diamond, at Dibble General Hospital in San Francisco.

When she was discharged she returned to Cornell for graduate school and received her Masters Degree in Guidance and Counseling. While there she met her future husband, Walter J. McCarthy Jr., who was an engineering student. They married in 1949, and eventually moved to Birmingham, Michigan where her husband served as CEO of the Detroit Edison Company.

In Birmingham, besides devoting herself to raising her five children, Dr. McCarthy was involved with numerous educational and civic leadership endeavors. These included conceptualizing and leading the Birmingham Environmental Center, working for Common Ground and Art in the Park, and serving as President of the Board of the Merrill Palmer Institute in Detroit. She served on the Board of Regents of Lake Superior State University in Michigan and eventually became Chairman of the Board of Regents at the college.

Dr. McCarthy was an avid gardener, and for many years her gardens were part of garden tours for the National Garden Conservancy. She developed exceptional collections of tree peonies, hellebores, and miniature evergreens. She was very fond of entertaining in her home with her husband, and was known as an exceptional cook who prepared food for days before formal dinners.

Dr. McCarthy was a collector with a natural eye, and in addition to her love of antique furniture, she had special expertise in three areas. She was an early collector of Inuit sculpture and traveled often with her son, Jim, to Canada to acquire work in Windsor and Toronto. Her collection was displayed at regional presentations. Her knowledge of oriental rug history and design was extensive and she owned several dozen beautiful rugs. Her third collection was of pottery from the American Southwest. She went on multiple driving trips throughout the southwest with her sons David and Jim to acquire additions to her collection and to visit the Indian pueblos where they were made.

Always interested in learning, she returned to academia and received her PhD in Adult Education and the Family from Wayne State University in 1986. This allowed her to form her own publishing company, Bridge Communications, which focused on educational material aimed at parenting and childraising. She authored and published several books including the book Healthy Teens, subsequently used by numerous colleges to teach adolescent development and health. She authored and edited a weekly column for the Detroit Free Press for the "Parent Talk" page with advice on parenting from an advisory panel of 45 professionals. For many years Dr. McCarthy produced a newsletter on parenting for the State of Michigan with a readership of 1.5 million at its peak.

Dr. McCarthy was a dedicated proponent of the importance of parenting in children's lives, the advancement and equality of women in society and the importance of community service.

She was preceded in death by her ex-husband of 39 years, Walter J. McCarthy Jr. and her brothers David (Mary Ellen) Ross and Albert Ross. She is survived by her brother, Howard (Ivone) Ross, her sister-in-law Joyce Ross, her five children, Walter (Mary) McCarthy of Kenilworth, Illinois, David McCarthy of Kingston, New York, Sharon McCarthy (David Krackhardt) of Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, James McCarthy of Chicago, Illinois and William (Marina) McCarthy of Fort Myers, Florida and nine beloved grandchildren, Mike McCarthy, Christy McCarthy, Caroline (Ian) Murphy, Steve (Chelsey) Krackhardt, Katie Krackhardt, Dan Krackhardt, Alexa McCarthy, Caline McCarthy and William McCarthy.

Funeral services will be held on Saturday, October 26 at 1 p.m. at the United Methodist Church in Westfield, NY. Burial will follow at Westfield Cemetery.

Seaholm narrowly passes Stevenson

Colin Gay Hometownlife.com
USA TODAY NETWORK - MICHIGAN

Seaholm junior Cash Ericson saw one scoring chance in the second half against Livonia Stevenson. He was on a one-on-one with Spartan goalkeeper Eric Fifer with a defender behind him to his right.

In what he called his best opportunity of the entire game, Ericson put one in the back of the net with 13:40 to go in the game, securing Seaholm's (14-3-1) 1-0 victory against Stevenson (14-2-3) Tuesday night.

In district play, the Maples outscored opponents 9-0, adding to their five regular-season shutouts.

Seaholm head coach Jared Vince does think his team has some sort of momentum moving forward, but recognizes that the Maples have a lot to work on moving forward if they want to go deep into the MHSAA tournament.

"I think this is a little bit of a wake-up call that we will be playing good teams from here on out," Vince said.

Stevenson head coach Ken Shingledecker thought of the loss to Seaholm as "a tale of two halves," saying that his team came out sloppy in the first half, shifting focus near the end of the first and into the second half and playing extremely well in the final 40 minutes.

"I don't think it's a result that we deserved," Shingledecker said. "I could have seen overtime in this game."

"I thought we were playing very well, even through the middle of the second half."

Wildcats take down Farmington, 5-0, to move forward

Andrew Vaillencourt

USA TODAY NETWORK - MICHIGAN

Through one half, it appeared the district semifinal contest between Novi and Farmington would be much closer than anticipated.

However, that feeling didn't last as Novi scored three goals in the first 10 minutes of the second half to power the Wildcats to a 5-0 win over the Falcons Tuesday night at Northville High School.

Novi advances to the district final, where it will play Birmingham Seaholm, which upset Livonia Stevenson in the other district semifinal game, 1-0. That game was scheduled for Oct. 17 at Northville High School.

The Wildcats improve to 16-1-2 and Farmington ends its season at 8-11-1.

Canton stomps Churchill in district semis

Colin Gay Hometownlife.com
USA TODAY NETWORK - MICHIGAN

Livonia Churchill had four straight corner kicks, four chances to set momentum in the first half against Canton.

With the Chargers down 1-0 in the first half, Canton head coach Mark Zemanski said each corner kick attempt was a good one from Churchill. But, as Churchill head coach Eric Puroll said, the Chiefs continued to put their body in front of each attempt.

"All those chances against other teams go in," Puroll said. "They stepped up and rose to the challenge."

When the Chargers came out with zero goals on those attempts, Canton (11-7-4) took control, scoring five second-half goals and advancing to the district final with a 6-0 win against Churchill (9-7-3).

In two playoff games, the Chiefs have outscored opponents 15-1.

"We really played well," Zemanski said. "Moved the ball well, moved off the ball well, put the ball in the back of the net."

With Canton's only first-half goal coming from Max Scheffler off a scrum in front of the net, the Chiefs pumped up the offensive pressure in the second half.

Canton scored three goals in six minutes, a strike from Timothy Ling, a goal from Srikar Komanduri and an own-goal by Churchill to balloon a 1-0 halftime lead to a 4-0 shellacking.

"It's nice to get some goals," Zemanski said. "It lets our boys know we can score."

In the final five minutes, Nick Hattios and Christian Presley added their first scores as a member of the varsity team, securing the 6-0 final.

Puroll said that Churchill's second-half defense was "sloppy," crediting a lack of communication for six goals allowed. But he said he was proud of his team for not giving up in the final minutes of its season.

"You learn lessons from games like this," Puroll said. "Next year, I hope that the kids that played as underclassmen learn from this, can try and get passed this stage next year."

Canton, on the other hand, will face a familiar foe in the district final:

HS football playoff projections through Week 7

Andrew Vaillencourt
Hometownlife.com
USA TODAY NETWORK - MICHIGAN

Week 7 is in the books and as we approach this week's slate of high profile games, it's time to take a look at what the playoffs might look like in a few weeks.

Plenty of Hometown Life-area teams will be in the playoffs scattered around the eight divisions, with a majority in either division one or two.

The website snooze2you.com has put together a full projection of what the Michigan high school football playoff field would look like if the season ended after week six.

The site calls its projections "Mapetology." You can follow the site on Twitter at @Snooze2you.

Starting next year, the MHSAA will use a new point system to determine the playoffs, but the 2019 season will be the last one with the current format.

Here's a look at what area teams are in this week's projected bracket. Regions/districts without area teams will be left out for the time being. Higher seeded teams would be at home. Total points listed after record.

ATHLETE OF THE WEEK

RB Johnson vital to Canton's win over Novi

Colin Gay Hometownlife.com
USA TODAY NETWORK - MICHIGAN

Canton running back Marco Johnson has been named as Hometown Life's Athlete of the Week (for the week of voting that started on Oct. 7) after receiving 37,341 votes.

In the Chiefs' 28-14 win against Novi, Johnson was vital to the Canton offense that did not complete a pass against the Wildcats. The running back ran the ball 18 times for 140 yards, scoring three times.

Johnson recorded 53.54 percent of the 69,747 total votes that were cast. Farmington quarterback Max Martin finished in second place with 25,148 votes (36.06 percent) and Northville golfer Megha Vallabhaneni finished in third with 6,174 votes (8.85 percent).

South Lyon East running back Donovan Wright and Brother Rice quarterback Greg Piscopink finished in fourth and fifth place respectively.

We caught up with Johnson to learn more about the latest recipient of the Athlete of the Week award.

What do you think this Canton's potential is for the rest of the season?

I believe Canton's potential for the rest of the season, as a team, is to hopefully scrape into playoffs and finish on a strong positive note.

What are your personal and team goals for the season?

My personal goal for the season is to progress as an overall player and become a stronger leader. My team's goal is still obtainable, which is to get into playoffs and make a run.

Who is your favorite athlete to watch or who you model your play after and why?

My favorite athlete to watch and who has influenced me is Leonard Fournette, because of his toughness and physicality.

Canton running back Marco Johnson has been named as the Hometown Life Athlete of the Week. SUBMITTED

What are your favorite hobbies outside of football and why?

Outside of football, I enjoy baseball, which is my first love and passion for over 10 years now. I also enjoy spending time in the outdoors fishing and hunting. It is some of my favorite things to do and I love the memories I share with my friends and family.

What are your plans after high school? Will you be playing college football?

After high school, I will attend college, hopefully on an athletic scholarship for either football or baseball, even though I have not been given the opportunity for football yet.

Franklin suffers first loss of season to Fordson

Colin Gay Hometownlife.com
USA TODAY NETWORK - MICHIGAN

Livonia Franklin had a streak to uphold.

In each of the Patriots' six win in the 2019 season, the Franklin offense had scored more than 42 points. Simply, the Patriots were clicking, scoring the ball at a consistent rate.

But Franklin faced a Dearborn Fordson team that had not allowed more than 29 points in a game this season, a Fordson team that narrowly lost to Belleville, a team many consider to be one of the best in the state, in its previous game.

The Tractors showed up, and the Franklin (6-1) lost its streak, falling to Fordson (6-1) 33-21. Find results from this past Friday online at hometownlife.com.

Here are three takeaways from Franklin's loss to Fordson.

Offensive inconsistency

With 7:15 to go in the game, Franklin quarterback Jake Kelbert saw a glimmer of hope.

He had just converted a 1-yard touchdown run, ending Franklin's longest scoring drive of the night and cutting the Patriots' deficit to five.

But after the defense allowed a 44-yard touchdown run by Fordson senior running back Hassan Mansour, the Franklin offense could not get back on its feet.

Facing a 1st-and-22 at their own 29-yard line, Kelbert threw an incomplete pass and was sacked on third down, erasing any chance at a comeback.

"Our offense, we just weren't clicking like we usually do," Kelbert said.

Kelbert completed 10-of-17 passes for 117 yards, adding 146 yards and two touchdowns on the ground.

Despite the seemingly successful day on the ground, Kelbert spent much of his time running from Fordson blitzers. In the first half alone, Kelbert was tackled in the backfield nine times, including a forced fumble that Franklin retained.

In the ground game, senior running back James Carpenter added 49 yards on eight rushes.

As a whole, the Franklin offense could not get enough momentum when it needed it most.

"We were never able to get into a rhythm," Franklin head coach Chris Kelbert said. "We were never able to get momentum on our side. They did a great job.

Franklin junior wide receiver Tyler Whisman jumps over a Fordson defender.

TOM BEAUDOIN/SPECIAL TO HOMETOWNLIFE.COM

"Defensively, they're a big, physical team and they did a good job at us being out of rhythm."

Defensive lapses late

After the first drive of the game ended with a punt, the Fordson offense seemed to be putting something together.

Senior running back KeyShawn Smith found a hole on the outside, taking the ball 57 yards to bring the Tractors 10 yards away from their first touchdown of the day.

said. "The big plays are a problem for us. There were a couple of times where we had the guy in the backfield, we had tackled, and we couldn't finish."

Fordson running back James Wheeler Jr. opened the second half gashing through his offensive line for the 64-yard score, with senior quarterback Rayan Abbas finding senior wide receiver Andrew Holston for the 64-yard score later in the third quarter.

On the ground, the Tractors recorded 485 total yards, 319 of which were in the ground game.

Fordson senior running back Hassan Mansour added the other three touchdowns for the tractors, adding a 44-yard score in the fourth quarter to pull away with the win.

"We just made a few mistakes and we gave up too many big plays that led them down the field," Ufferman said. "We just can't afford to have those happen. It was a big motivator for them."

First loss of the season

Jake Kelbert remembers what it is like to lose.

He was the starting quarterback on the 2017 Franklin team that lost to De La Salle in the state title game.

When he addressed the team after its 12-point loss to Fordson, that's the game he brought up.

He said it was the worst feeling in the world. He said it's a feeling he never wants to experience again.

After Franklin's first loss of the season, Chris Kelbert said it's not one that ends the team's hopes.

"It's not the end of our season," the Franklin head coach said. "It's not the end of us reaching our goals. We still have everything in front of us."

However, Franklin faces a Week 8 matchup with the team Fordson lost to by one point: Belleville. That game was held after print deadline.

Franklin's senior quarterback said the team has to move on from this loss, learn from its mistakes because, if the Patriots do not, a very similar feeling could await them.

"If we let this loss define us, next week, we are in for a long night," Jake Kelbert said. "A long, long night."

Salem settles down in win against Crestwood

Colin Gay hometownlife.com
USA TODAY NETWORK - MICHIGAN

In the first round of district play in the MHSAA boys soccer tournament, both Salem and Crestwood found success defensively.

It was something the Rocks had done six times in the regular season, three of which were draws, while the Chargers had five, outscoring opponents 48-0 in those games.

But both offenses were ready to play, ending the shutout for both sides just five minutes into the match.

After allowing the first goal of the game – a mid-field dagger from Crestwood senior Mohamed Hammoud – the Rocks (12-6-4) found that stout defense again, defeating Crestwood (11-2-2) 4-2 on Monday.

Salem head coach Kyle Karns said that his team, as a whole, was rattled after the first four minutes, but collectively responded.

“At this stage of the season, every game is going to be difficult,” Karns said. “I think any game is going to be good. Getting that win, though, tonight moves us forward and puts us a step in the right direction.”

Salem sophomore goalkeeper Quinn Tews said he was confident in the Rocks offense after allowing a goal in the first four minutes. But he said the offense had to come quickly to turn the momentum.

After Hammoud’s goal, Salem sophomore forward

Salem goalie Quinn Tews makes a save against Plymouth. MICHAEL VASILNEK/SPECIAL TO HOMETOWNLIFE.COM

Anthony Deruvo found the back of the net, lightly heading the ball for the first Rocks goal of the game.

With 29:22 left in the first half, Salem midfielder Andrew Schwartz set up a similar play to junior midfielder John Soltis, who, off a free kick, headed the ball into the left corner of the net to take a 2-1 lead.

For the majority of the first half, Salem was in control offensively, barely missing chances to increase the Chargers’ deficit, including a wide-open miss off by senior Ryan Doyle off a defensive lapse and a kick that parallels the crossbar, leading to a header that went through the football goalposts.

“I feel like we started completing passes and working better as a unit,” Deruvo said. “Once we got the passes moving, we started getting more chances.”

Defensively, Tews settled down as well. As Crestwood started to attack in the second half – facing multiple attempts from Crestwood senior Saeid Jannoun – the sophomore goalkeeper made key saves, allowing Salem to keep its lead.

Tews said the defense cramped the Crestwood offense when it would get to the top of the box to force contested looks, while trying to stop crosses as well.

Salem senior forward Luke Benford added the team’s third goal in the second half, while the Rocks scored its fourth on an own-goal by Crestwood.

Crestwood senior Hussein Alyassari added a goal with five minutes to go in the game, but it was too late for the Chargers.

With the heightened defense in the second half, Tews said he is ready for the district final.

Novi

“You have to win seven games to win a state championship and not every game is going to be pretty,” Novi coach Todd Pheiffer said. “I think we were thinking ahead and thinking about what could potentially happen on Thursday. We talked a lot at halftime, I actually let them do a lot of the talking. We got away from our game-plan and what we wanted to do in the first half, so we settled down and talked about what we needed to do in the second half.”

Novi controlled the ball in Farmington’s end for most of the first half, but the Falcon defense, led by goalie Steven Ihm, who was called up from JV for the game, shut down Novi.

That didn’t last into the second half though, as the Wildcats turned their play up a notch, scoring a minute and 20 seconds into the half. That goal was scored by senior James Ashworth just moments after another shot went off the crossbar.

Ashworth, a senior captain, served as a key boost for the Wildcats, both with his leadership at halftime and on the attack.

“I don’t know if we had the right mentality going into this,” Ashworth said. “We started off slow, we didn’t finish our opportunities, didn’t create enough opportunities. Coming into the second half we knew what we had to do. We had to take advantage of any opportunity we got and the energy completely lifted once we started that second half.”

Just seven minutes later, Novi senior Blair Mayes knocked in his team’s second goal. Two minutes after that, Ashworth was back at it, scoring his second goal of the game.

“It’s really nice to get those goals, it’s the best feeling in the world,” Ashworth said. “More than anything, getting that first goal, it was the goal we needed to pick up the game.”

The 10 minute span completely swung the game in Novi’s favor and doomed the Falcons.

For good measure, Novi added two more goals later in the half. The first was scored by senior Taiga Shiokawa and the second by senior Mason Stroman.

Ashworth, Mayes, junior Shion Soga and sophomore Shoi Taguchi all recorded assists for the Wildcats.

Pheiffer said he thought Farmington did a good job of slowing the pace in the first half and kept eight or nine guys behind the ball, making it difficult for the Novi offense to attack the middle of the field. He let his seniors handle most of the talking at halftime.

“You can talk the talk, but then you need to walk the walk so to speak, it’s great for you guys to say all this stuff at halftime but you need to do the things we’re talking about, it’s great that you recognize what you need to do, and I said it starts with you captains,” Pheiffer said. “I thought James, Mason, Shion, Taiga and the captains did a great job and allowed everyone else to feed off them.”

Up next will be a difficult test against Seaholm, which enters the game with a 14-3-1 record. Pheiffer said he knows a little bit about the team and that it uses its size to its advantage.

“They had a great win over a very strong Stevenson team,” Pheiffer said. “Hopefully we can take some of the lessons we learned here and move forward. We’re a good team, but we’re never going to play perfect.”

Salem, who the Chiefs played last year in the district final in a game that ended in penalty kicks.

This season, Zemanski and his team tied the Rocks once and lost to Salem 2-1 in September.

“We are going to have a really tough battle,” Zemanski said. “Salem’s a really tough team. It won’t be a biggie score like that, that’s for sure.”

Seaholm

Vince said Seaholm came out slow in the second half, not playing as crisp as they needed to to defeat the Spartans.

But late in the second half, with overtime seemingly imminent, Ericson’s finish, with the assist by senior Nathan Spencer, was just enough for the Maples’ season to continue.

“We just knew we needed to keep pushing, we had to keep grinding until the last second,” Spencer said. “We were all just being very strong mentally.”

Moving forward, Ericson said Seaholm needs to work on its offensive consistency, especially the connection between the forwards and the midfielders, allowing more flow in the middle to create space and opportunities at goal.

But it’s something that the junior is not worried about.

“We’re a very high-chemistry team,” Ericson said. “We really bond together, so I think that will come easy as long as we put our minds to it.”

Some common mistakes that older job seekers make

 thejobnetwork.com

Hitting the open job market as an older candidate can be rough. There are all sorts of inherent bias, as well as the challenge of finding jobs that aren't entry- or low- level, with salaries geared toward new grads who live with seven roommates. But while you can't necessarily change what's out there, you can take steps by self-correcting on several common errors that could be costing you opportunities.

Not having a digital presence

For younger job seekers, using digital tools for self-promotion and building a professional presence is second nature from the start. Routine social media like LinkedIn and Twitter are extremely powerful professional tools you should be using.

Personal accounts (like Facebook) are better left private but don't confuse old-school privacy with keeping a low profile. Separate, career-focused profiles can be a great asset to your job search, without you having to show your whole life to recruiters or potential employers.

Holding on to dated tech

Unpleasant fact: Your contact information is typically going to be the first thing a person sees when they review your resume. If your resume kicks off with an outdated AOL address, or Hot-mail, or some other email service that hasn't been popular since Dancing with the Stars was that fun new show, the reader is likely to cringe a little. Fair or not, it makes you look like you're not really up on the current state of things, and it could color how they read the rest of your application package. Gmail and Outlook are both good bets for creating a new, professional account for your job search.

Not leveraging your network enough

As a job seeker with years of experience under your belt, you have a whole network of former colleagues, clients, acquaintances, etc., who could be a great help to your job search. Don't be afraid to do an audit of your network and start reconnecting with people to see if they have any information or leads. So many jobs are filled by word-of-mouth referrals—you never know when someone in your circle has an opportunity for you or might be able to put you in touch with the right people.

Writing a 'kitchen sink' resume

One of the biggest assets you have is your experience. So, every bit of that should go on your resume, right? Not so fast. Recruiters and hiring managers usually have very limited time to scan resumes (we're talking seconds here), so you need to be able to sell your story very effectively in a small space.

Your resume should be no longer than two pages, and you don't need to put everything in there. If you have a decades-long work history, include just the past ten years and list only the bullet points most relevant to the job you're seeking.

Because resumes are handled almost exclusively digitally these days, don't be afraid to make it a living document. Tailor it to each job you're applying for, with only the most relevant information included.

Taking job descriptions literally

How many times have you read a job description, thought "I don't have three out of these ten requirements, too bad," and then not applied? Job descriptions are often a company's wish list for the role. They may be flexible on certain aspects of the experience level or parts of the job itself. But you don't have anything to lose by applying if you feel like you're otherwise a good fit.

Just be sure your resume reflects why you're an especially good match for the job at hand.

Waiting for the perfect job

As someone who's put a lot of time and care into their career, you deserve a next job that works for your life and your goals. But (and this is true at any age) that "perfect" job might never come along. Be open to other opportunities that aren't just moving up to the next seniority level or making more money for more or less what you were doing before. After all, no matter how advanced you are in your career, you want a job that's going to help you learn and grow. If a job sounds like a decent fit for your skills or experience, but it's not quite what you had in mind, give it a second look.

Being flexible and keeping an open mind are assets in any job search, whether you're a grizzled veteran of the corporate scene or an optimistic kid just starting out.

If you're aware of what you're putting out there and working to keep that version of yourself updated and engaged, you'll likely start to see opportunities and benefits where you weren't seeing them before.

Here's How It Works:
Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!
